Special Companies.

The English system of organizing dramatic companies to play the works of some one great dramatist must become as great a nuisance as the "star" system. There are already Craven Robertson's "Caste" Company, specially organized to play the works of the late T. W. Robertson; Richard Younge's Comedy Company, playing only the pieces of Mr. H. J. Byron; L. J. Sefton's mythological and fairy comedies, and a company will start in February with Mr. Alberry's plays. Gayler's engagement of Shiel Barry to play in his pieces was a very weak imitation of the English special company business.

Not Far Advanced.

"Where are you going?" said a young gentleman to an elderly one in a white cravat, whom he overtook a few miles from Little Rock. "I am going to heaven, my son. I have been on the way eighteen years." "Well, good-by, old fellow, if you have been traveling toward heaven, eighteen years, and got no nearer to it than Arkansas, I'll take another route."

A First-Class Lady's Maid.

Punch has hit at the domestic service question in the following equib: "Lady's maid—'Please, ma'am, I wish to resign.' Lady—'Why, Parker? You came here only yesterday.' Lady's maid—'I've been looking over your drawers, ma'am, and find your things are not up to the mark, and wouldn't do me credit.'"

A Developed Woman.

Her name is Jerusha Ann Taylor, and when she lived down in Massachutts she used to faint at the sight of a mouse. Since she moved to Kansas she is brave enough to ride thirteen miles on horseback in the dark to see the circus. And yet they say our American women have nothing to bring out their latent traits of character!

The Variety Theatre of Berlin has introduced a novelty. Selections from operas and choruses are sung by 14 persons, each wearing a costume of a different nation. The effect is singular.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

The Panic is over

But it has left it's effects in the great depression in business throughout the Eastern States. California with its coin currency has escaped entirely and the consequence is that many strangers from the East are seen walking our streets, who find the climate salubrious and finances in healthy condition. They also find that living is cheaper here for proof of which go to Louis Meyer's White House Restaurant 112 Kearny St near Post where the most choice meats and vegetables are served in every style; and yet the prices are reasonable. 12-h

Important to Smokers.

GLOVES—Cleansed and dyed by a new process, at SNOW'S. 25 Post street. 8z

Mrs. John Wood in London.

The London Hornet thus comments upon Mrs. John Wood's performance of Philippa in "The Wandering Heir:" In her advertisement the Manageress of the Queen's says that one of her objects in producing "The Wandering Heir" is to present a brilliant actress in a character worthy of her powers; and this just compliment to Mrs. John Wood expresses the strength, and the success, and the popularity of the play. Philippa is a grand part, and Mrs. John Wood plays it grandly. London, having taken a fancy to Mrs. John Wood in burlesque, had no conception of the dramatic power, exquisite comedy, and brilliant humor which this actress had displayed in other cities. Those critics who saw her Georgette in Fernande and her Phoebe in Paul Pry at the St. James', two years ago, shrewdly predicted her future success; but even they were astonished last Saturday. As the heyden in act second, the pretended boy in act third, and the true loving woman of the concluding acts, Mrs. John Wood was marvellously perfect. It is not enough to say that no other living actress could have played so well; we know of none who have played the part at all. In her real Philippa—the Philippa of Mr. Reade's story, the Philippa of Mr. Fildo's pictures—stepped upon the stage. Now it is enough to say that London has seen no such actress since Mrs. Jordan or Mrs. Nesbitt.

Worn Out.

Lord Lansdowne was greatly perplexed to make out the origin of the word blackguard. He had heard that it was from a guard of soldiers in black, who attended at the execution of Charles 1; but Lansdowne believed it was in use previous to that time; and, besides, it did not appear that any such circumstance took place. No matter when or in what circumstance the word originated, it is evident that Ben Butler will so thoroughly exhaust its vitality that it will die with him.

Not Successful.

Miss Braddon and Charles Reade gave the dramatic critics of London employment recently on new plays brought out the same night,—Miss Braddon's four-act drama called "Griselda," Mr. Reade's dramatic version of "The Wandering Heir." They both get scant praise; so that there is little hope that they will stop writing books for the sake of greater emoluments in the theatre.

Curious Coincidence.

A gentleman who rather suspected some one was peeping through the keyhole of his office door, investigated with a syringe full of peppersauce, and went home to find his wife had been cutting wood and a chip had hit her in the eye.

What all Ladies are fond of.

Ladies are fond of whatever is elegant and luxurious all the world over, and nothing appeals so strongly to their dominant passion in that respect as a handsome carriage, with stylish appointments and spirited horses. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that a lady's envy is excited at seeing a more wealthy member of her sex in a beautiful Clarence, or other fashionable vehicle, with a proud, dashing team. It is important to know that the Occidental Carriages, which are second to none in elegance, may be used by any lady in the city at any hour for any length of time she may desire. This virtually places those who engage them on an equal footing with the most fortunate of their sex, and social harmony is there by established. Orders for these favorite carriages may be left at the Occidental Hotel, or at Bouton & Son's stables, No. 1016 Stockton street

Ladies in the above handsome carriages may be seen any time during the day in front of 315 Kearny street, near Bush street, waiting (for a few moments) for a dozen or two of those celebrated Written Visiting Cards, so elegantly executed by John P. Dwyer, card writer for the Grand Hotel. N. B.—Cards written, engraved or printed in the latest and most fashionable style, handkerchiefs marked, stencil plates neatly cut, and monograms engraved and printed. 11-z

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a complete certified copy of the Assessment Book of the Taxable Property of the City and County of San Francisco (REAL ESTATE and PERSONAL PROPERTY) for the fiscal year 1873-74 also the Assessment upon lands benefitted by opening of Montgomery Avenue, levied for payment of interest upon "Montgomery Avenue Bonds," have this day been received; that the State, City and County Taxes for said Fiscal Year are now due and payable at the Office of the undersigned (Room No. 1 City Hall), and that the laws in regard to their collection will be strictly enforced.

San Francisco, December 19, 1873.

A. AUSTIN,

Tax Collector of the City and County of San Francisco. o27td

TO TAXPAYERS

THE DELAY, CONFUSION AND ANNOYANCE experienced by you during the last week or two prior to Taxes becoming delinquent, is occasioned by your own procrastination in procuring your Tax Bills.

To avoid this, furnish the office with memoranda of your property, which can be done through the Post Office, if more convenient, and your bills will be made out and ready for you when you call, or, if you so request, sent to your address.

This being done, examine your bills, and if found correct, enclose check drawn to order, and when collected, receipted bills will be sent to you. By doing this you will greatly facilitate business in the Tax Collector's Office and save your own time.

Until further notice, the office will be open to receive Taxes EVERY SATURDAY EVENING, from 7 until 9 o'clock, for the convenience of those whose time is occupied during the day.

Taxes remaining unpaid on the FIRST MONDAY IN JANUARY, 1874, will be delinquent, and Five per cent. in accordance with law will be added thereto.

Respectfully,

A. AUSTIN, Tax Collector.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

This theatre was crowded yesterday afternoon and evening, and the brilliant performance of "The Veiled Queen" excited general admiration. The new specialties of the Pas de Cloches, Pas de Bouquet, performances of Harry Clarke and Mlle Laura, and the Champagne Chorus, were all well received. The same bill will be performed to-night, at the matinee to-morrow and to-morrow evening.

Opera House.

A splendid performance was given by the comedy company at this house last evening. Miss Jennie Lee, J. P. Burnett, Miss Fanny Young, H. D. Thompson and others all played their parts to perfection. The same bill will be presented to-night. To-morrow evening George Fawcet Rowe's adaptation of Dicken's novel of David Copperfield, entitled "Micawber vs. Heep" will be presented in conjunction with the play of "Beautiful Forever." The usual matinee performance will be given to-morrow.

Alhambra Theatre.

There was a large attendance at this house both at matinee and evening performance yesterday, and every one was delighted with the entertainment offered. To-night, for benefit of Billy Manning, the favorite minstrel, a great bill will be presented. The Siegrist troupe, Ella Wesner, George Knight and the whole company will appear in the programme published on our first page, and the performance will conclude with the two-act drama of "Ireland as it was," for which Miss Mollie Williams has volunteered to appear as Judy O'Trot. Miss Nellie Wetherill as Honor O'Carolan, and Miss E. Eberle as Florence O'Carolan; Con Murphy will play Dan O'Carolan, and Billy Sweatnam will appear in his great characterization of Rag'd Pat. The usual matinee performance will be given to-morrow.

Opera Night—California Theatre.

Next Sunday, the Fabbri Troupe will perform "Lucrezia Borgia" at the California Theatre. The cast is given on our first page.

Bella Union.

The holiday piece entitled "The Fays" will be retained on the bill for some time to come. It will be performed to-night in conjunction with a new variety entertainment, which is published in full on our first page. The beautiful scenery, pretty girls, good music and comic scenes introduced in "The Fays" make it very popular.

Buckley's Varieties.

"The Circassian Slave Mart" has made one of the greatest hits ever known at this house, and will be played a few nights longer. The full bill is published on our first page.

Garibaldi Guard Ball.

The sixth grand annual ball of this popular company will be given at Platt's Hall on Saturday evening, the officers of the Garibaldi Frigate will participate in the festivities.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attractions of the skating pavilion, museum, and art gallery, make an afternoon spent in these Gardens pass very pleasantly.

Happy New Year.

For Bon Bons and Mottos for your New Year's table, go to "The Leading Candy Store," George Haas & Co's, 20 Kearny street, near Market. Their display of holiday fancy goods will totally eclipse any former exhibition of this very popular firm. They have also imported the most elegant assortment of French Candy Boxes and Cornucopias ever seen in this city. 11-s

J. Vogeley & Bros. new Candy Store.

At 26 Second street near the Grand Hotel, is without doubt the most elegant Candy store in the city, and the crowd of ladies who patronize it openly declare their admiration, of the costly and magnificent appointments of the store, and praise the quality of the candies sold there. The supply of fancy boxes, cornucopias Christmas tree trimmings, and French confectionary for the holiday trade will be unrivalled. 12o

HAUNTED.

He stood by the castle door alone;
Over the moor the winds made moan;
Light from painted oriels streamed;
Bloom and fire on the snow-drifts gleamed;
Music trobbed on the bitter air.
Triumph chorus and trumpet's blare:
Only through it all,
Like a spirit's call,
Far, sad and low,
Crept a little voice that said—
Was it from the dead?—
"None shall ever love you,
None as I have loved you!
Farewell; I go."

Silk and jewels and satin sheen
Robe his bride like an Asian queen;
Gold hath no glitter like her hair;
Her sapphire eyes are past compare;
Her voice is clear as a wedding bell.
Somewhat softened her love to tell;
Only over all
Creeps the little call,
Far, sad and low,
As if once for life it plead,
Now forever fled;
"None shall ever love,
None as I have loved you!
Farewell; I go."

No more stars in the purple skies;
Only tender and mournful eyes,
Long, long looks of wan despair,
Haunted his vision everywhere;
By wooded mountain or moaning sea
From voice and presence he could not flee;
In the arms of love and the hush of prayer,
The same strain whispered everywhere:
"Hear above it all
My forsaken call!
Once a living woman said,
Though her life was fled,
None shall ever love you,
None as I have loved you!
Farewell I go!"

The Bars or the Bells.

Steel bars, we learn from a scientific journal, are to be used hereafter in some localities in place of bells. "They produce a pure, distinct and melodious sound, and are said to be cheaper, lighter, and are not so liable to crack, as bells." We can think of but one objection to this. It will sound dreadfully in poetry to say, "Ring out, wild bars, to the wild skies." Or, "Listen to the merry, merry bars!" "The sleigh-bars sound across the snow." "Toll the bars his warfare's o'er." "The church-bar tells the knell of parting day," etc., etc. Equally inconvenient will it be to have to say, "Mary Jane, ring the dinner bar; etc., etc. The use of the word bar in the latter connection might convey to the mind of an unsophisticated visitor that there was a grog-shop in the house. We shall stick to the bells for the present, we think. The new arrangement is somewhat too bar-bar-ous!

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Hints to Mr. Bergh by "The Fat Contributor."

It seems to me your Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, although a good thing so far as it goes, stops short of what it might accomplish. I offer a few suggestions as to the enlargement of its sphere of usefulness:

Eight hours should be a day's work on a dog-churn, the dog to be allowed one day in the week to himself. Let every dog have his day.

Life-preservers for Newfoundland dogs, to guard against sudden cramps.

A fine for imposing bogus watches on watch dogs. The watch dog's honest bark has often been raised against the swindle.

Protection of ants from their nephews and nieces.

Cushion toad-stools would be highly appreciated by toads after a "hop."

Punish boys who frighten the frogs and make them jump. Sudden shocks are sometimes fatal to a nervous organization.

Encourage trout to write poetry. We have seen some very beautiful trout lines ere now.

Rostrums in the ocean for whales to "spout" from. This is a want long felt, and the whales pout about it.

Abolish mosquito bars. They make mosquitos irregular about their meals.

Introduce the German language into our schools of fish.

Pocket handkerchiefs for crocodiles to wipe away their tears on.

A school in accounts for adders, who also multiply rapidly.

Encourage the cultivation of plum trees for the comfort of that fastidious epicure, the curculio, who can feed upon nothing else.

How I Made $20.

By buying my bed-room set of furniture of J. A. Shaber & Co., 707 Market street two doors from Third. They sell Furniture 20 per cent. cheaper than any other dealers. I tried them all. 12s

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—The deluge of rain has not seriously interfered with the success of the engagement of Miss May Howard at the Metropolitan Theatre, good houses being the rule. "The Wandering Heir" was played on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and on Thursday "The New Magdalen" was produced. It will be played at the matinee to-day, and again this evening.

SAN JOSE.—Mr. DeLacy, of the Opera House, is indefatigable in catering for the amusement of the people of San Jose, and they should encourage him by giving him liberal support. He is trying to get George Darrell and Miss Fanny Chalmers together with a dramatic company, for his next attraction, and there is some talk of producing "The Naiad Queen," with the scenery from the California Theatre. The next dramatic performance will probably be "The Octoroon," by the San Jose Amateurs.

VIRGINIA CITY.—The Templeton troupe have been playing here during the week at Piper's Opera House.

SALT LAKE CITY.—On December 26th, the burlesque of "The Nymph of the Lurlei Berg; or, at the Bottom of Salt Lake," founded on "The Naiad Queen," was produced with gorgeous new scenery by George Tirrell, and a transformation scene by W. Burberry of San Francisco. H. W. Voltiller's splendid Amazonian armor was displayed in this piece. Miss Eliza Newton played Lurline, and Miss Jean Clara Walters Sir Rupert. The production was quite successful, and the piece has since drawn good houses.

PORTLAND, O.—Carl Benco, the magician, gave a matinee and an evening performance at Oro Fino Theatre on Christmas Day.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Prince's gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window room to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

The Panic is over

But it has left its effects in the great depression in business throughout the Eastern States. California with its coin currency has escaped entirely and the consequence is that many strangers from the East are seen walking our streets, who find the climate salubrious and finances in healthy condition. They also find that living is cheaper here for proof of which go to Louis Meyer's White House Restaurant 112 Kearny St. near Post where the most choice meats and vegetables are served in every style; and yet the prices are reasonable. 12-h

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow
Just take a stroll down FIRE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Carrille keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast
And that he keeps the freshest
He ever heard his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or taste of fry'n please.
All the young men of fashion go
Might to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

What all Ladies are fond of.

Ladies are fond of whatever is elegant and luxurious all the world over, and nothing appeals so strongly to their dominant passion in that respect as a handsome carriage, with stylish appointments and spirited horses. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that a lady's envy is excited at seeing a more wealthy member of her sex in a beautiful Clarence, or other fashionable vehicle, with a proud, dashing team. It is important to know that the Occidental Carriages, which are second to none in elegance, may be used by any lady in the city at any hour for any length of time she may desire. This virtually places those who engage them on an equal footing with the most fortunate of their sex, and social harmony is thereby established. Orders for these favorite carriages may be left at the Occidental Hotel, or at Boston & Son's stables, No. 1016 Stockton street.

Ladies in the above handsome carriages may be seen any time during the day in front of 315 Kearny street, near Bush street, waiting (for a few moments) for a dozen or two of those celebrated Written Visiting Cards, so elegantly executed by John P. Dwyer card writer for the Grand Hotel. N. B.—Cards written, engraved or printed in the latest and most fashionable style, handkerchiefs marked, stencil plates neatly cut, and monograms engraved and printed. 11-r

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped is a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Fifth street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low

TAXES! TAXES!

1873-74.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a complete certified copy of the Assessment Book of the Taxable Property of the City and County of San Francisco (REAL ESTATE and PERSONAL PROPERTY) for the fiscal year 1873-74, and the Assessment upon lands homesteaded by opening of Montgomery Avenue, levied for payment of interest upon "Montgomery Avenue Bonds" have this day been received; that the State, City and County Taxes for said Fiscal Year are now due and payable at the Office of the undersigned (Room No. 1 City Hall), and that the laws in regard to their collection will be strictly enforced.

Taxes will become DELINQUENT on the FIRST MONDAY in January 1874, and unless paid prior thereto, five per cent. will be added to the amount thereof.

San Francisco, December 19, 1873.

A. AUSTIN,
Tax Collector of the City and County of San Francisco. o27td

TO TAXPAYERS

THE DELAY, CONFUSION AND ANNOYANCE experienced by you during the last week or two prior to Taxes becoming delinquent, is occasioned by your own procrastination in procuring your Tax Bills.

To avoid this, furnish the office with memoranda of your property, which can be done through the Post Office, if more convenient, and your bills will be made out and ready for you when you call, or, if you so request, sent to your address.

This being done, examine your bills, and if found correct, enclose check drawn to order, and when collected, receipted bills will be sent to you. By doing this you will greatly facilitate business in the Tax Collector's Office, and save your own time.

Until further notice, the office will be open to receive Taxes EVERY SATURDAY EVENING, from 7 until 9 o'clock, for the convenience of those whose time is occupied during the day.

Taxes remaining unpaid on the FIRST MONDAY IN JANUARY, 1874, will be delinquent, and Five per cent. in accordance with law will be added thereto.

Respectfully,

A. AUSTIN, Tax Collector.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—The decline of rain has not seriously interfered with the success of the engagement of Miss May Howard at the Metropolitan Theatre, good houses being the rule. "The Wandering Heir" was played on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and on Thursday "The New Magdalen" was produced. It will be played at the matinee to-day, and again this evening.

SAN JOSE.—Mr. Dellaer, of the Opera House, is indefatigable in catering for the amusement of the people of San Jose, and they should encourage him by giving him liberal support. He is trying to get George Darrell and Miss Fanny Cathcart together with a dramatic company, for his next attractions, and there is some talk of producing "The Naiad Queen," with the scenery from the California Theatre. The next dramatic performance will probably be "The Octoroon," by the San Jose Amateurs.

VIRGINIA CITY.—The Templeton troupe have been playing more during the week at Piper's Opera House.

SALT LAKE CITY.—On December 26th, the burlesque of "The Nymph of the Lurlei Berg; or, at the Bottom of Salt Lake," founded on "The Naiad Queen," was produced with gorgeous new scenery by George Tirrell, and a transformation scene by W. Barberry of San Francisco. E. W. Voltiflet's splendid Armenian armor was displayed in this piece. Miss Eliza Newton played Lurline, and Miss Jean Clara Walters Sir Rupert. The production was quite successful, and the piece has since drawn good houses.

PORTLAND, O.—Carl Bonco, the magician, gave a matinee and an evening performance at Oro Fino Theatre on Christmas Day.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Prince by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

The Panic is over

But it has left its effects in the great depression in business throughout the Eastern States. California with its coin currency has escaped entirely and the consequence is that many strangers from the East are seen walking our streets, who find the climate salubrious and finances in healthy condition. They also find that living is cheaper here for proof of which go to Louis Meyer's White House Restaurant 112 Kearny St. near Post where the most choice meats and vegetables are served in every style; and yet the prices are reasonable. 12-h

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Carville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or taste of fry'n please.
All the young men of fashion go
At night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

What all Ladies are fond of.

Ladies are fond of whatever is elegant and luxurious all the world over, and nothing appeals so strongly to their dominant passion in that respect as a handsome carriage, with stylish appointments and spirited horses. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that a lady's envy is excited at seeing a more wealthy member of her sex in a beautiful Clarence, or other fashionable vehicle, with a proud, dashing team. It is important to know that the Occidental Carriages, which are second to none in elegance, may be used by any lady in the city at any hour for any length of time she may desire. This virtually places those who engage them on an equal footing with the most fortunate of their sex, and social harmony is there by established. Orders for these favorite carriages may be left at the Occidental Hotel, or at Boston & Son's stables, No. 1016 Stockton street.

Ladies in the above handsome carriages may be seen any time during the day in front of 316 Kearny street, near Bush street, waiting (for a few moments) for a dozen or two of those celebrated Written Visiting Cards, so elegantly executed by John P. Dwyer card writer for the Grand Hotel. N. B.—Cards written, engraved or printed in the latest and most fashionable style, handkerchiefs marked, stencil plates neatly cut, and monograms engraved and printed. 11-z

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,

While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.

TO TAXPAYERS

THE DELAY, CONFUSION AND ANNOYANCE experienced by you during the last week or two prior to Taxes becoming delinquent, is occasioned by your own procrastination in procuring your Tax Bills.

To avoid this, furnish the office with memoranda of your property, which can be done through the Post Office, if more convenient, and your bills will be made out and ready for you when you call, or, if you so request, sent to your address.

This being done, examine your bills, and if found correct, enclose check drawn to order, and when collected, receipted bills will be sent to you. By doing this you will greatly facilitate business in the Tax Collector's Office, and save your own time.

Until further notice, the office will be open to receive Taxes EVERY SATURDAY EVENING, from 7 until 9 o'clock, for the convenience of those whose time is occupied during the day.

Taxes remaining unpaid on the FIRST MONDAY IN JANUARY, 1874, will be delinquent, and Five per cent. in accordance with law will be added thereto.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—The usual matinee performance will be given at this house. To-night great attractions will be offered, and such as cannot fail to draw a large audience. The performance will commence with the pretty little comedy, entitled "Beautiful Forever," in which John Howson will appear as Tom, Miss Jennie Lee as Jelly, a chambermaid, Willie Simms as Mr. Simpleton and Miss Fanny Young as Mrs. Simpleton. After this George Fawcett Rowe's highly successful dramatization entitled "Micawber vs. Heep" constructed from David Copperfield will be presented. This play had a great run at the Union Square Theatre, New York, and will doubtless make a hit here. John Howson will appear as Wilkins Micawber and J. P. Burnett as Uriah Heep. Julie Robinson will play the character of David Copperfield, Willie Simms will appear as Traddles, Miss Fanny Young as Betsy Trotwood, Miss Vavasour as Miss Micawber, H. D. Thompson as Mr. Wickfield.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Billy Manning had a splendid house last night when he took his benefit, and the entertainment given was thoroughly enjoyed by the immense audience present. In the after piece of "Ireland as It Was" Miss Mollie Williams was enthusiastic applause in the character of Judy O'Trot, Miss Nellie Wetherill played Honor O'Carolan very effectively, Miss E. Eberle made a pleasing Florence O'Carolan, Billy Newham was great as Ragged Pat, and Con Murphy did a capital bit of character acting as Dan O'Carolan, and Charley Reed was very good as Neil O'Carolan. At the matinee to-day, and again this evening a splendid first part will be given with Con Murphy as interlocutor, and Billy Manning and Billy Sweetnam on the ends. After this, Welch and Rice will appear in song and dance, Ella Wesner in character songs, George B. Knight in Dutch songs, dances, and stories, the Siegrist Family, and their wonderful troupe of dogs in a parlor entertainment, and Billy Manning, Billy Sweetnam and Billy Welch in the laughable Ethiopian sketch of "Bill Jones' Cousin."

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The "Naiad Queen" has been running over a week, and the rush to see it as great as ever. It will be performed at the matinee to-day and again this evening, with all the attractions of beautiful scenery, ballet by the Rommelsburg Sisters and Mlle Gaugain, wonderful performances by the Girard Brothers, Prof. O'Reardon's Tumblerosicon, and grand trapeze performance by Harry Clarke and Mlle Laura. In order to obtain seats it is necessary to reserve them, or to put in an appearance some time before the curtain rises.

OPERA NIGHT—CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—To-morrow night Madame Inez Fabbri will appear in her great character of Lucrezia Borgia, in the opera of that name, supported by Signor Pietro Bacci, Signor Orlandini, Miss Anna Elzer and others. There is sure to be a large and fashionable audience.

BENEFIT TO THOMAS MAGUIRE.—Not unfrequently we are requested to advocate the claims of this and that one to a public benefit, when in reality that task is an irksome one. It is with a far different feeling that we announce that on Friday evening next Manager Maguire will be recipient of a benefit tendered him by the representatives of the operatic, dramatic and minstrel professions in this city. Both the public and the profession owe much to Mr. Maguire. It is in a great measure due to his efforts that San Francisco holds her present high rank among the cities as a patron of music and the drama. When he has made money, he has held it only as steward of the public, and lavished it with a princely hand to furnish them with more entertainment. In such a testimonial as that which is to be tendered him on Friday next, all will be glad to join. The opera of "Un Ballo in Maschera" will be performed by a full company at the Opera House, and a great bill will be presented at the Alhambra Theatre, the company being augmented by a host of volunteers.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—Moore and Bray in song and dance, Tommy Barton in character songs, Fred Ritchie in Dutch impersonations Miss Jennie Johnson, John Woodard, Matt Kelly, Tommy Bree, Miss Fanny Garretson and others in the pleasing extravaganza of "The Fays," and a great variety of other performances will be presented at this favorite theatre to-night.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETIES.—The extravaganza of "The Circassian Slave Mart" is wonderfully popular at this house. It will be played to-night in conjunction with sketches by Mortimer, dances by Miss Margie Brower, acts by Parks, Dixon, and Morton, and other specialties specified on our first page.

THE GARIBALDI GUARD BALL.—The sixth grand annual ball of this popular company will be given at Platt's Hall this evening. The officers of the frigate Garibaldi will participate in the festivities.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—To-day and to-morrow the pantomime of "The Magic Trumpet," "Esmeralda Chiesa," and the exhibition of Prof Grant's trained animals will be among the numerous attractions offered.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms Guido Mangenberg & Co the proprietors get up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

NOTES.—Four weeks rainy weather have been too much for the Opera House projectors, and they have succumbed to the elements and suspended operations until Spring. In the meantime monetary negotiations are being entered into to continue the work when settled weather sets in.

Hutchings, the Yosemite Pioneer, stated in his lecture on Thursday night, that he had received a letter from Yosemite in which it was stated that nine feet of snow lay in the valley, which is two feet more than ever accumulated there before.

The California Association are seriously discussing the advisability of erecting a magnificent theatre on the lot at the corner of Fourth and Market streets, deeded to them by James Lick. Architects are getting out plans and specifications and there is a probability of the theatre being built.

The friends of Billy Manning presented him with a valuable watch and chain on the occasion of his benefit last evening. Con Murphy made the presentation, and Billy made characteristic, funny speech in licks, two words at a time, which was responded to by the audience with peals of laughter.

Dion Boucicault, the great modern dramatist will arrive by the overland train to-night. He comes under engagement to the California Theatre, where he will produce, and act in some of his new plays. The immense success of the "Naiad Queen" will give the management and attaches of the theatre sufficient time to produce the plays under their author's personal supervision most effectively.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, business continued at latest dates much the same as it was when we made our summary last Saturday. At the Fifth Avenue, "The Parricide" retained the boards.....At Booth's Theatre, Chanfrau was playing in "Kit" supported by Mr Fateman and Miss Bella Fateman.....The Olympic Theatre was closed on the 22nd and reopened on the 23d, when the new Christmas sensation dramatized by Fred Lyster, from a story by Charles Dickens, and entitled "Gabriel Grub; or, the Goblins who stole the Sexton," was produced: The characters were sustained by the members of the Majilton and Raynor families, as follows: Polly Dark, Polly Grub, Melusine, Thunderbolt, and the Saucy Fly, by Miss Marie Majilton: Mollie, Nadelgemehr, by Miss Carrie Majilton: Nat Dark, Mr. Golightly, Gabriel Grub and Marcofax, by Mr. Harry Raynor; Luke Twist, Jix Mistiggris, and Forceps in One, Mr. Charles Majilton; Auky Slender, Xit, Antennae, and Gburrh, Mr. Chas Raynor; Frank Dark, Nip, and Pipifax, Mr. Frank Magilton; The Mysterious Stranger, Mr. James Taylor.....At Niblo's, "The Children in The Wood" promised to run a week or two more .....Lord Astray" continued the attraction at Union Square Theatre.....At the Grand Opera House "Humpty Dumpty" is doing well .....On Christmas Eve, "Les Huguenots" was performed at the Academy of Music with Mlle. E. L. Davenport appeared in the evening in "Jack Cade".....At the Broadway Theatre, "The Woman in White" with Wybert Reeve as Count Fosco, continued to run, but to poor business.....At the Theatre Comique, "The Indian Box Mystery" was a great attraction. The Christmas pantomime was "Tell Tale Tit;" Delehanty and Hengler, and Miss Kitty O'Neil had rejoined the company.....At Bryant's Opera House "Cinderella" was the Christmas attraction.....At Tony Pastor's, the Christmas pantomime was entitled "Goosey Goosey Gander;" Harry Thorne, clown and pantomimist, appeared in it.....Charles B. Thorne, the veteran manager and actor, who has been confined to his residence in Seventh avenue by protracted illness for sometime past, is convalescing.

"The Naiad Queen" is having a splendid run at the Boston Theatre: the following items, gathered from the Boston Advertiser, may prove interesting: "The Naiad Queen" was first produced in America at Burton's Theatre, Philadelphia, in 1840, with Burton as Schnapps and Charlotte Cushman as Lurline. Its first Boston performance was in 1841, at the Old National. In 1843 it was revived at the same theatre, with J. R. Vincent as Schnapps, Mrs. J. R. Vincent (now a popular member of the Boston Museum) as Bridget, and Emily Messenger as Lurline. In May, 1861, it was performed at the Boston Theatre, with Agnes Perry (now Mrs. J. B. Booth) as Sir Rupert, Mr. and Mrs. Gomersal as Schnapps and Idex, Mrs Frank Mayo as Lurline, and Louis Aldrich as Amphibeo.

J. K. Emmet has been playing in "Fritz" at the Walnut-street Theatre, Philadelphia, and the papers have the following complimentary notices of Mr. Gayler's play:

The Herald says: "Fritz, our Cousin German," divested of its sensational situations, is as stupid a play as can readily be found."

The Telegraph observes: "Mr. Gayler's play will not take a very high rank as a work of art, but it answers the purposes of its creation in affording Mr. Emmet a number of animated scenes in which he can employ his accomplishments to advantage."

Mr. Arthur Cheney will commence building the Globe Theatre, Boston, on the old site next February.

"The Geneva Cross" was produced at the New National Theatre, Washington, on the 22nd.

"A Flash of Lightning" was the Christmas attraction at the Arch Street Theatre, Phila.

"Jack Harkaway Among the Brigands," was the Christmas novelty at Wood's Museum, Philadelphia.

Mr. Sothern commenced an engagement at the Academy of Music, Chicago, on the 22nd.

Miss Jane Coombs will commence an engagement at the Olympic Theatre, St. Louis, on Jan. 5th.

The Lydia Thompson Troupe are in St. Louis.

Messrs. Baker and Farron will commence an engagement at the Olympic Theatre on Jan. 5th.

The N. Y. Mercury thus tells what killed a variety Theatre: Died suddenly on the 11th, after a spasmodic existence of eleven nights, Deagle's Louisville Variety Theatre. The cause of this sudden demise was wretched management, no money, and a great deal of blow. The proprietor went to Cincinnati to get money to pay the company, and during his absence some of them called on the business man to get their salary, and found that the entire receipts of that night had been used to pay his board. Some of the people were under heavy expenses in getting here, and feel justly indignant.

Mr. Edwin Booth will play an engagement at the DeBar's Opera House, St. Louis, in February.

The San Francisco Minstrels were at the Globe Theatre, Chicago.

Salvini will play at DeBar's Opera House, St. Louis, for one week from Jan. 12th.

John and Maggie Fielding are engaged for Mortimer's Varieties, Philadelphia.

The "Vokes" are dancing and singing into the pockets of the good New York people, who love to see the "Children in the Wood," and a "Villain of the Deepest Dye."

The Philadelphia theatres are reported as doing "very badly."

Charles Thorne, Jr., of the Union Square Theatre Company, meeting the Herald critic, Mr. Sellheimer, on the 17th, at a restaurant in the vicinity, struck him between the eyes and instantaneously placed him hors de combat. This was caused by the critic having previously expressed an opinion of Mr. Thorne, not at all flattering to his social status.

Rural critics as a rule inspire awe and veneration, but the cupient dramatic scribe of a Perkopolis journal, of the 11th, has set the entire profession on a broad grin by the following astounding effusion relative to Clifton Tayleure, the well-known manager: "When a man named Taylor spells his name Tayleure it looks as though his early education had been neglected.

John E Owens and troupe have temporarily ceased traveling, owing to a fall sustained by Mr. Owens, at Newark, on the 16th, in "Foodles." He injured his spine, and may not recover for weeks. His sufferings are great, and he is constantly under the influence of opiates.

Wilkie's Spirit of the Times says: Edmund Leathes, who was utility man at the California Theatre, San Francisco, for two years, and was advised to leave the stage about nine months ago recently appeared at the Queen's Theatre, London, as the hero in the "Wandering Heir," and met with immediate recognition as an actor of merit. How inscrutable are the ways of Providence.

Augusta Dargon, Globe, Chicago, 29th.

By the recent demise of an uncle at Altbover, Hungary, Mlle. Haniola Kiralfy, premier danseuse Hongroise, now at the Boston Theatre, inherits a property valued at 120,000 thalers. Lucky Kiralfy.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers, Savannah, January 5th, four nights.

Carlotta LeClercq, Indianapolis, 29th one week; Olympic, St. Louis, February 2, one week.

The New York Varieties has the following: Ada Ryman and Johnny Hart now do a beautiful cast act. Ryman lays on the floor and balances Hart on one leg. They are getting along wonderfully, although Ryman has a bad habit of dropping his "card occasionally."

John Pocahontas Smith has applied for the position of postmistress at Squeedunck, N. J. He is recommended by Frank Rea.

John T. Raymond, Varieties, New Orleans, Jan. 5th, for protracted stay.

Barney Williams and Billy Florence are on Broadway from eleven in the morning, till five in the afternoon, "dressed to kill" all the while.

Every time Charley Thorne goes down Broadway the newspaper critics involuntarily cover their noses with their hands.

Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. The Oriental Wine House.

Gentlemen of taste are invited to visit the unrivaled and elegant establishment, at 227 and 229 Bush St., between the Cosmopolitan and Occidental Hotels. The long experience of the proprietor, J. E. Another Hamlet.

Wilkes' Spirit of the Times says:

Eph Horn, the well-known minstrel, who is shortly to appear as Hamlet, has been a Shakes. seren scholar for years. Fate, not choice, led him into the burnt cork business. When he first appeared on the stage it was with a tragedy company, and he thought he had struck it. L'homme propose, et Dieu dispose. He has used more burnt cork than the other man in the profession. It is related Eph began life as a carpenter with a very limited knowledge of orthography, and when the stage-fever struck him he purchased a copy of Shakespeare, and, turning to the play of "Hamlet," could be seen on the bright sunny days of spring ensconced beneath a shady tree with a little school-boy for his companion, spelling out the text of the divine tragedy. Touching picture! The future tragedian combining his lines with the help of the urchin cent boy who read the immortal lines to every sou which drank in each pregnant aphorism!

We hear that Sam Rickey is studying the part of Claude Melnotte in "The Lady of Lyons," and have long known that Billy Emerson considered Richelieu the part of all others in which his ability would be best displayed.

Fashions in Wine.

There are fashions in wine as well as in everything else in San Francisco. Sometimes one brand of champagne is in fashion, and is purchased and drank by those who only recognize it by the label on the bottle. Sometimes another has a temporary popularity. Just as silk hats are always in fashion, and are always worn by a certain class, so there is one brand of wine which always holds its reputation with connoisseurs, no matter how many fancy brands with flaring labels may be popular with the general public. Carte D'or, for which Locke & Montague, 112 and 114 Battery street, are sole agents, always has held its own, and always will. It is found on the table of every good judge of wine whose means allow him to purchase the best.

A Noble College.

Rumor says that the problem of the co-education of the sexes is to be solved by a Pennsylvania college, which just now is rather modest about divulging its name. The process is simply this: a department of cookery is to be established, a great kitchen to be built as an adjunct to the college, and the young lady students, after learning their lessons in Greek, Latin, mathematics, etc., are expected to prepare dinner for the whole establishment.

The only thing that is wrong about this arrangement is, that all the young ladies should not be made into cooks, because all are not fitted by nature to acquire that noble art. Some ladies cannot learn to cook.

Too Thin.

A Connecticut man recently shot his wife, and then pretended he was aiming at a stray cat. The coroner's jury committed him for trial.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

The Panic is over

But it has left its effects in the great depression in business throughout the Eastern States. California with its coin currency has escaped entirely and the consequence is that many strangers from the East are seen walking our streets, who find the climate salubrious and finances in healthy condition. They also find that living is cheap here, for proof of which go to Louis Meyer's White House Restaurant 112 Kearny St. near Post, where the most choice meats and vegetables are served in every style; and yet the prices are reasonable. 12-h

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-T

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. H

The Marsh Troupe.

The Boston Courier is publishing a "History of the Boston Stage" in its columns. In a recent issue it has the following concerning the juvenile troupe formed by R. G. Marsh, who has been so long identified with the profession in this State, as to be considered an old Californian: The night of December 18, 1856, witnessed the first appearance in Boston of the celebrated Marsh Troupe of juvenile comedians. They were composed of thirty-three young misses and some three or four young gentlemen. The ages of the entire party ranged from seven to twelve years. They essayed pieces of the most ambitious character, and of the widest dissimilarity. Seneca could not be too heavy nor Pluto too light for them. They opened in "Black Eyed Susan, and this is the cast:

Miss Louise (12 years of age) as.....William
Miss Carrie (9 years of age) as...Capt. Crossbree
Miss Nellie (8 years of age) as.....Jacob Twig
Little Christine (8 years of age) as...Blue Peter
With the song "All in the Downs"

Master Geo. W. Marsh (not 7 years) as Gnatbrain
Master Waldo (11 years of age) as.....Doggrass
Little Mary Marsh (9 years of age) as....Susan
Miss Helen (10 years of age) as Dolly Mayflower

The papers next morning were rapturous in praise of the young artists. Master George W. Marsh, the comedian of the troupe, was declared to be the possessor of a rich vein of original drollery which placed him in the front rank of comic actors, and of Miss Louise, the "leading man," of the troupe it was affirmed that the pathos of her William was only equalled by its nautical dash. The entire performance was praised as being marvellously smooth; no hitch, break or waiting of any sort occuring to mar its perfectness. After making every allowance for the inevitable enthusiasm, resulting from the novelty of a troupe of child artists, there still remains the impression that they must have been a remarkably clever band of youngsters. However, with the usual fate of prodigies not one of them reached dramatic eminence upon attaining their maturity; but without an exception these that remained in the profession subsided into comfortable mediocrity, and probably look back now with as much amazement as any one else at the stir they created in their youth.

Improved Prospects.

Mrs. Fawcet, in a lecture recently delivered in London, stated that there were 2,500,000 unmarried women in Great Britian, and half of these must remain unmarried. The world, however, was changing its views as to the position of women. She had heard that the Messrs. Baring were taking women into their banks, and were satisfied with the result.

Put in Soak.

A wife in Chillicothe, Ohio, has demanded a divorce upon the specification that upon one occasion her brutal husband "put her to soak in the rain-water barrel."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lat-ly from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast.
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,

A Pleasant Situation.

Our young friend Parker went round the other evening to visit the two Miss Smiths. After conversing with them for awhile, Miss Susan excused herself for a few moments and went up stairs. Presently Parker thought he heard her coming, and slipping behind the door he suggested that the other Miss Smith should tell Susan that he had gone. But it wasn't Susan; it was old Mr. Smith in his slippers. As he entered he looked around and said to his daughter:

"Ah, ha! So Parker's gone, has he? Good riddance, I was just come down to keep my eye on him. I hope he hasn't been proposing to you, Mary Jane. I don't want any such lantern jawed, red-headed idiot as that foolin' round here. He hasn't got the sense of a rutabaga turnip or money enough to buy a clean shirt. He gets none of my daughters. I'll shake the everlastin' life out of him' if I catch him here again, mind me."

Justas he concluded, Susan came down, and not perceiving Parker, she said:

"Thank goodness he's gone. That man is enough to provoke a saint. I was awfully afraid he was going to stay and spend the evening. Mary Jane, I hope you didn't ask him to come again?"

Then Parker didn't know whether to stay there or to bolt, while Mary Jane looked as if she would like to drop into the cellar. But Parker finally walked out, rushed to the entry, seized his hat, shot down the front steps and went home meditating upon the emptiness of human happiness, and the uncertainty of Smiths. He has not called since, and his life thus far has been unmolested by the head of the Smith family.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While lounging in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the meal on for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

Con T. Murphy, interlocutor, and comedian, has assumed the stage management of this house, and presents an admirably arranged programme for this evening. It comprises Ella Wesner in her changes, Billy Sweatnam and Billy Manning in "The Giraffe Brothers," George S. Knight in his own version of "Shaking Dice" the Siegrists and their canine wonders in a charming entertainment and Geo. S. Knight, Billy Sweatnam, Welch and Rice, R. G. Marsh and others in the farce of "The Rivals." Such a bill will crowd the Alhambra to overflowing.

California Theatre.

"The Naiad Queen" is in its third week, and there are no signs of its popularity diminishing. Not only is everyone in San Francisco anxious to see this brilliant spectacle, but many go again and again to enjoy the ballet, the wonderful acting of the Girards, and the numerous other attractions specified on our first page.

Opera House.

George Fawcett Rowe's dramatization of the novel of David Copperfield, entitled "Micawber vs. Heep" was produced before a splendid audience on Saturday night. John Howson as Micawber, kept the audience continually laughing, and pleased them so well that he was called before the curtain at the end of the play. J. P. Burnett as Uriah Heep, surprised and delighted anyone by displaying a talent for strong character impersonation not often found in a light comedian of his school. He sank his individuality and perfectly realized the wriggling eel-like "umble" Uriah. It was a capital bit of acting. The performance concluded with the farce of "Beautiful Forever" in which the evils of hair dyes and complexion-beautifiers were laughably exposed. John Howson as Tom, and Miss Jennie Lee as Jelly, did some very amusing acting and sent the audience home in high good humor. This very attractive bill was played last night, and will be presented again this evening. "Micawber vs Heep" should run until every lover of the works of Charles Dickens has witnessed it.

Bella Union.

Cassim and Fritz in a grand gymnastic novelty, Miss Susie Robinson in comic songs, Miss Fanny Garretson in ballads, Moore and Bray in song and dance, and a variety of other performances will be given this evening in addition to the very attractive and pleasing extravaganza of "The Fays," in which Miss Jennie Johnson appears as Gayland Graceful.

Buckley's Varieties.

George H. Foster in ballads and acts, Leon Samwells in acrobatic feats, Miss Lizzie Harmon in ballads, Miss Fanny Webster and M'lle Blanche in dances, and a great number of others in specialties, will appear to-night. The full programme is published on our first page.

Dion Boucicault.

The dramatist of the day in spite of all that has been said about him by adverse critics, is Dion Boucicault. No man living understands so well as he what will please the public and is so competent to furnish it. Dion Boucicault is a good enough Shakspeare for the nineteenth century, and caters for these times better than Shakspeare did for those in which he lived. Boucicault has won his reputation by legitimate means. He has a keen perception of dramatic art and wonderful industry. "The Octoroon" is one of the most dramatic plays ever produced on any stage and would be sufficient to establish the reputation of its author had he written no other play. Mr. Boucicault arrived in this city last night, and will open, two weeks from to-day at the California Theatre in one of his latest pieces "Kerry." He should receive a perfect ovation from the thousands who have enjoyed his plays.

Notes.

J. A. Arnold has not gone East as announced by this morning's papers. He has changed his mind and will remain here a week long r.

John Piper, the enterprising manager of Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, and Metropolitan Theatre Sacramento is in town on professional business.

George Darrell and Miss Fanny Cathcart, will commence an engagement at the San Jose Opera House this evening.

Miss Katherine Rogers arrived from the East on Saturday. Arrangement will probably be made by which this sterling actress will make an early appearance in this city.

Woodward's Gardens.

The gardens are now in the finest condition. Skating and the Trained Animals every day. A grand performances and the pantomime of "Les Brigands" and the grand act "Groupe Chinois" Saturday and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Ladies in the above handsome carriages may be seen any time during the day in front of 315 Kearny street, near Bush street, waiting (for a few moments) for a dozen or two of those celebrated Written Visiting Cards, so elegantly executed by John P. Dwyer, card writer for the Grand Hotel. N. B.—Cards written, engraved or printed in the latest and most fashionable style, handkerchiefs marked, stencil plates neatly cut, and monograms engraved and printed. 11-r

Happy New Year.

For Bon Bons and Mottos for your New Year's table, go to "The Leading Candy Store," George Haas & Co's, 20 Kearny street, near Market. They have also imported the most elegant assortment of French Candy Boxes and Cornucopias ever seen in this city. 11-s

DREAMS OF SPIRITLAND!

BY E. S. H.

Wafted above us are forms light and airy,
Softly they're drifting around us on high—
Angels of love, who look down from above
With a tenderly loving and watchful eye.

Standing beside us, friends long departed;
Standing behind us, relations most dear,
Passing us lightly, touching us slightly,
Bending and whispering words in our ear.

Is that a hand that is laid on my shoulder?
Surely there's something akin to me now;
Feelings intense bewilder my sense—
It is only my mother who's kissing my brow.

Only a mother, whose spirit is near you;
Will that not comfort and dry up your tears?
By disbelieving you yourself are bereaving,
For you banish her presence by cowardly fears.

Spirits above us, Spirits who love us
Summoned will answer to our command;
They'll never scorn us, but will always forewarn us
Till our souls join them in Spiritland.

Encouraging.

Here is a feather for the caps of the ladies: The report on the education of women in Cambridge University, England, says that their best essays were better than those of male students writing on the same subject in similar circumstances, and that the worst faults of the women were eclipsed by the worst faults of the men. The faults of women were a tendency to rest satisfied with very incomplete information, and very loose methods of expression, together with "very prevalent inaccuracy," flippancy, and even slang.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Old Friends.

Old friends are like old boots. We never realize how perfectly these were fitted to us till they are cast aside and others finer and more stylish, perhaps, but cramping and pinching in every corner, are substituted. Then we are often forced to hunt up the worn articles from the attic where they have thrown and for a little season, at least, rest our weary feet by wearing them. With our friends it is the same, after trying in vain to fit ourselves to their peculiarities we go back with a sigh of relief to the dear people whose very faults were brought about by serving us.

Stage Cosmetics.

The London Hornet remarks: When will our actors learn how to use cosmetics? The offences against the art of painting well are countless, and the gentlemen are as much to blame as the ladies. One actor, for instance, with a sunburnt, manly complexion, has (bismuth) white hands, by the side of which clean linen looks positively yellow; and the amount of black worn at the corners of most ladies' eyes is a real disfigurement. Eyelids don't grow at the corners of the eyes.

A Bad Take.

When Jones' menagerie was in Millersburg the last time, the proprietor wouldn't pay his bill for advertising in the Morning Argus, and so the editor attached the cage containing the hyena. The Sheriff secured the cage and brought it around to the Argus office, where it remained for several weeks. The bill amounted to but fifteen dollars—and as the animal ate two dollars worth of meat a day for four weeks, the amount of profit in that particular form of collecting the debt did not seem to be encouragingly large. One afternoon the hyena broke loose and nearly chawed up the foreman, while the editor saved himself only by suddenly climbing out on the roof. The hyena tore around through that sanctum, upsetting type, rolling in printer's ink, and feeding himself with poetry, and advertisements, and wood-cuts, and incendiary editorials on Cuba for four days, during which the publication of the Argus was suspended and the editor remained on the roof, thinking solemnly about things. Finally the sheriff placed a ladder against the building and undertook to destroy the hyena with a shot-gun. He fired eighty-seven times before inflicting a mortal wound, and when at last the editorial corps returned, the room looked as if the battle of Waterloo and three or four skirmishes had been fought in it. Probably no hyena was ever buried with more literature in its stomach than that hyena of Jones' had; and an impression did get abroad that it died, not from the wounds received from the sheriff's gun, but from its inability to digest those tough editorials of the Argus and the original poetry. Menageries which advertise in the Argus now have to pay in advance and give the editor's family dead-head tickets for the season.

MAX ADELER, in Boston Courier.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Colville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
Where you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Panic is over

But it has left it's effects in the great depression in business throughout the Eastern States California with its coin currency has escaped entirely and the consequence is that many strangers from the East are seen walking our streets, who find the climate salubrious and finances in healthy condition. They also find that living is cheaper here for proof of which go to Louis Meyer's White House Restaurant 112 Kearny St. near Post where the most choice meats and vegetables are served in every style; and yet the prices are reasonable. 12-h

GLOVES—Cleansed and dyed by a new process, at SNOW'S, 25 Post street. 8r

From an account of an interview with Matilda Heron by "Critic" of Wilkes' New York Spirit of the Times, we clip the following: In a word we stated our mission. After a moment's hesitation, during which the great Camille of the past seemed busy arranging the memories which came crowding one upon the other, she seized to Critic's hands, and with tears in her voice said:

"You come from my old friend Wilkes. I am glad to see you. I shall never forget him, nor never think of him but as my benefactor. It was he who found me a beggar girl, struggling for fame, unknown and friendless. It was his voice that won for me friends on the far Pacific Coast; it was his pen that at first told the world of my triumph. He placed upon my neck the diamond cross and helped me to fortune. (Here the stricken woman wept bitterly; in a few moments she resumed.) Ah, he is one of Nature's noblemen. When I first reached California I found him, and my success was due to him. He was like a brother. I shall never forget him. I can never repay him. God bless him." And here her thoughts went back to the distant days when unknown and friendless she sought the far Pacific Coast and won her first recognition as an actress—and for a minute she was silenced.

In hopes of rousing her from her reverie Critic dashed at once into the subject of Camille.

CRITIC—Is there any woman on the stage to-day who can play Camille?

MISS H. (starting)—Play Camille! No, not one; nor will there ever be again. I was Camille. When I ceased to play the part, Camille was seen no more. Do you know where I got my conception of her? I'll tell you. I got it from the word of God. From the story of Magdalen. No actress who depends on fancy boots and magnificent clothes can achieve greatness; they must take a redemtional view of Camille to give it greatness and to have the true conception of the character.

CRITIC—Who was the greatest Armand you have seen.

MISS H.—The greatest Armand in the universe is Fechter. All the others are alike, with but one exception. I saw Fechter in Paris years ago—young, handsome, and splendid; he played Armand as none but Fechter could do them or has done since. Doche played Margaret Gautier (Camille), but her haberdashery won half her battle. She attracted the eyes of the audience; Fechter won their hearts. It was an inspiration.

CRITIC—Will you ever play Camille again?

MISS H.—Yes; I shall play it once more before I die, to show the people that Matilda Heron still lives.

CRITIC—Who was the best American Armand?

MISS H.—Sothern—"Dundreary" Sothern, as they call him now; and I taught him how to play the part.

CRITIC—Who did you regard as the best American actors when you were on the stage?

MISS H.—There was but one—Forrest. All the others were babies—all but one; that one was Wilkes Booth. Had he lived he would have electrified the world; but he died and had to have a martyr for his victim.

CRITIC—What do you think of the stage of the present day; has it advanced or has it retrograded?

MISS H.—The stage of to-day is nothing. It is no longer my stage, my beautiful stage I loved so well. It is a hosiery stage, a "Black Crook" stage, an opera bouffe stage. There is no stage to-day. For the stage is like God. Put that down. Have you got it down? The stage is like God. It is nature. Twenty years ago there were actors and actresses, to-day there are none. But it will come again, mark that, it will come again, and soon; I see it coming. Do you ask my reasons? It would take longer than I have either strength or time to tell them. I grant that the places of amusement are called theatres, but are they Euripidean theatres? Are they the schools that have come down to us through two thousand years, the noble inheritance of dramatic art, the art that Shakespeare, whose voice was only second to Holy Writ, declared the regenerator of the human race? No, I protest against them as demoralizing, corrupting, and abominable—fashion, show, and folly; corroding, not only art, but I regret to say they are vitiating the taste of our youth.

CRITIC—Have you seen Salvini?

MISS H.—Yes, in Hamlet. He is wonderful, wonderful. The Americans can't comprehend his greatness.

CRITIC—Who do you consider the greatest living actors?

MISS H.—Fechter, Salvini, and Matilda Heron. It only needs Boucicault to complete the crowd. Dion would have been great if he hadn't been so small. (Here Camille laughed long and hearty.)

CRITIC—What do you think of Charlotte Cushman?

MISS H.—More than her name were less. She gave to life a thing that never would have lived without her. I mean Meg Merriles. To praise her were destruction. She is beyond praise. The difference between us is this: I made discord and she made harmony. I was queer and she was reasonable.

Miss Heron pronounced Mrs. Bowers the best American actress, but was very noncommittal about the younger actresses. She is preparing dramatic pupils for the stage, and has a large class of those unfledged geniuses under her charge.

Women will always interpose at inopportune times. So thinks a gentleman of Rutland, Vt., whose first spouse walked in as he was about espousing another. When he parted company with the deserted wife and the defrauded maiden that day, he looked as though he would never succeed in gaining the heart of a third. It was noticed that the wife was the more dexterous in scratching and hair-pulling of the two, though the gentle maiden did her utmost to emulate her. But the poor thing hadn't had as much experience as the wife.

Discouraged.

A lively three-year-old of this city being surprised by his mother in some infantile mischief, by the bother day, sought safety in flight. Being followed and asked why he ran away, he replied, "Cos I's so 'scouraged.

A Pushing Business Man.

A life insurance man in St. Louis is in the habit of getting himself on juries in doubtful cases when business in his line is dull. Then he "hangs" the jury until every man of the eleven is insured in his company.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new,
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish,
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the meal on for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-i

When Goods are so much below the cost of production as they are now, it is inevitable that prices cannot remain long as they are. The Eastern Mills are stopped. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The beautiful spectacular play of "The Naiad Queen" continues to attract crowded house, and will do so for many nights to come. A great improvement is visible in the ballet, the corypheus now performing with grace and ease and the principals, Miles. Betty and Sophie Rosenwaldberg and Marie Gangan executing pas de six in the most charming manner. The Girards still continue the wonder of all who behold them and Miss Ellie Wilton as Lurline, Lewis Morrison as Rupert, J. C. Williamson as Schnapps, Miss Maggie Moore as Idez and others in the cast perform their respective parts to perfection.

Opera House.

The play of "Micawber vs. Heep" has made a decided hit at this house. J. P. Burnett's impersonation of the "humble" Uriah is generally pronounced one of the best bits of character acting ever seen on the California stage, and John Howson as the grandiloquent Micawber is highly successful in pleasing the audience. The screaming farce of "Beautiful Forever" in which Miss Jennie Lee does some good burlesque acting and John Howson makes great fun as Tom terminates the evening's amusement. The gorgeous spectacle of "The Field of the Cloth of Gold" is in preparation.

Alhambra Theatre.

As is now the rule, the house was crowded last night. The new programme proved quite a success. Ella Wagner sang several character songs in capital style, and then "Bloodman" was called for. Sweetnam and Manning made much fun in "The Gerald Brothers." George S. Knight who has become quite a favorite was recalled again and again, and made a hit in his original version of "Snakiz Dicos;" his burlesque version of "Excelsior" also caused much laughter. The Siegrists appeared in a new programme of gymnastic feats and were loudly applauded. The performance concluded with an extravagantly funny sketch entitled "The Rivals" in which Geo. S. Knight made the audience roar with laughter by his impersonation of a Dutch shoemaker, and Billy Sweetnam was equally successful as a darkey tailor. The same bill will be played to-night.

Benefit to Thomas Maguire.

On the occasion of the benefit to the pioneer manager Thomas Maguire, which takes place next Friday evening, Verdi's grand opera of "Il Trovatore" will be presented at the Opera House with Madame Agatha Stateseat Lecours, Signor Pietro Bacon as Manrico, Signore Bianchi in her great character of Azucena, Mrs. George T. Evans as Inez, Signor Orlandini as Conte di Luna, Signor Fulvio Rigo as Ferrando and Mons. Charles a' Essix. At the Alhambra Theatre, Miss Jennie Lee, Mrs. John Melville, J. P. Burnett, John Howson, and H. D. Thompson, will appear in addition to the regular company. Tickets admitting one person to either house are sold at one dollar. There is no doubt about Manager Maguire's deserving an immense house on each side of the street and there is little fear but he will have it.

Bella Union.

Among the many attractive features of the bill to-night may be mentioned "Uncle Jim's Visit" by Nickerson and Bree. "The Tourists" by Nickerson Barton, Bree, Cassim and Ritchie "The Spirit Table" by Kelly, Nickerson and Ritchie, and the very successful extravaganza entitled "The Fays" in which Miss Jennie Johnson, Matt Kelly, John Woodard and others appear.

Buckley's Varieties.

An excellent entertainment of songs, dances, comic sets and gymnastic performance is given at this house. The capital sketch entitled "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" terminates the evening's amusement.

Woodward's Gardens.

The gardens are now in the finest condition. Skating and the Trained Animals every day. A grand performance and the pantomime of "Les Brigands" and the grand act "Groupe Chinois" Saturday and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

The Matinee Fruit Store

Keeps the choicest varieties of domestic and imported fruits, jellies, confectionary etc., and sells at the lowest rates. Pure, healthy Apple Cider, fresh from the press every day. No. 499 Bush street, one doorabove Kearny. 1r

Ladies in the above handsome carriages may be seen any time during the day in front of 315 Kearny street, near Bush street, waiting (for a few moments) for a dozen or two of those celebrated Written Visiting Cards, so elegantly executed by John P. Dwyer card writer for the Grand Hotel. N. B.—Cards written, engraved or printed in the latest and most fashionable style, handkerchiefs marked, stencil plates neatly cut, and monograms engraved and printed. 11-r

Happy New Year.

For Bon Bons and Mottos for your New Year's table, go to "The Leading Candy Store," George Haas & Co's, 20 Kearny street, near Market. Their display of holiday fancy goods will totally eclipse any former exhibition of this very popular firm. They have also imported the most elegant assortment of French Candy Boxes and Cornucopias ever seen in this city. 11-s

Asa L. Waugaman's New Saloon,

Corner of Halleck and Leidesdorff streets. Large and commodious saloon centrally located, with ante-rooms, supplied with the best brands of Liquors and Cigars; bountious hot lunch—his great specialty—served from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., and a cold lunch afterwards. Drop in and "be satisfied." 12bh

Nutmegs.

[From the Danbury News, December 27.]

The mud is thicker than cousins.

A theorist is a man who visits the sick in new boots.

The furore for dining is upon us again. The man who will make a diary that is "warranted to keep," wins a fortune.

A family on Pine street had an oyster supper, Saturday evening, and borrowed a very handsome Bible to set off their centre table.

Just as soon as a man becomes unfortunate in money matters, nature bombards him with boils. We don't understand it.

An unusual number of people are carrying their hands in their pockets, there being nothing in their pockets to interfere with the indulgence.

The skunk is no respector of persons. He is just as friendly to the owner of one suit of clothes as to the owner of a dozen, and, if anything, a trifle more so.

The Norwich Bulletin say "they have a new dance in Mystic which they call Kauri-kokjakokshatchekadonjako." We should like to hear them call it.

Two hearts that beat as one are singularly oblivious to mud. We never knew a man in love to circulate a petition for a new pavement or an additional lamp-post.

A unique device in holiday gifts is small cut-glass bottles of castor oil, each bottle containing a half-dozen doses, and prettily trimmed with brilliantly-colored ribbon.

A gentleman who recently addressed a Newtown Sunday school, said that he should "confine his remarks principally to parents who had lost their children or never had any."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
So sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapin!
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain!
Who goes there once will go again.

The Panic in New York.

A lady writing from New York to a friend in San Francisco says:

About the panic. The newspapers don't give any idea of the general distress. It is unprecedented, it is frightful. The stagnation in the shops, the theatres—the very streets have a Sunday look. What would Jane think—to go into Stewart's for instance and find a handful of people where she once saw thousands? For she used to stay all day. I am so poor, I don't dare to buy a postage stamp. Poverty is fashionable. The ladies wear their old dresses, and walk instead of riding. My brother in law's business from an average of ten to twelve hundred dollars a month, has fallen to almost nothing. It may be absolutely nothing before Spring. The swarms of beggars at the door all day long make one's heart ache. No Christmas presents for me this year, and only a year ago, watches and rings, and beautiful things in abundance. Blessed California! where you never seem to have panics, and don't mind the earthquakes."

We think the above true account of the state of things in New York, will make many of our readers confess that times are not so very hard in California after all.

Reason Enough.

A missionary among the freedmen in Tennessee, after relating to some little colored children the story of Ananias and Saphira, asked them why God does not strike everybody dead that tells a lie, when one of the least in the room quickly answered "Because there wouldn't be anybody left."

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. "Brother Journalists."

J. J. Owen, of the San Jose Mercury, and Calvin McDonald, of the Oakland Transcript, are at it again, hammer and tongs. We should not be so surprised at seeing the lion lie down with the lamb, as we should to see those two agreeing (in print.) The Mercury man sends the following shot after his "brother journalist" of the Transcript:

Bro. McDonald, of the Oakland Transcript, pretends to be a friend of the laboring man. And yet the men who cut railroad ties for $40 a month for the Central Pacific Company, and furnish their own whisky, cannot see the justice in the same Company paying a common editorial mud-shoveler $50 a month, and at the same time allowing him to replenish his jug from the company's private tap. It isn't right.

We think this kind of journalism quite "unproper." Does J. J. Owen mean to insinuate that Calvin McDonald drinks?

Very Brutal of Sandmann.

The London Daily News tells how Herr Sandmann, the actor, was arrested in Plymouth for pinching an actress, Miss Montaigne. She was playing Marquise de Pompadour, and while she was dying in Sandmann's arms he pinched her. The case was dismissed the evidence going to show that the pinching was necessary in order to make Miss Montaigne evince the agony of the death struggle. Miss M. wont play with Herr Sandmann any more. She thinks that man who would pinch a dying woman is a brute.

Senator Chandler, of Michigan, is reported to go down to his stables every morning to have hay-seed shaken over him. He has come to be so strong a granger in this direction that Senator Stockton said to him in the Senate the other day: "Why, you look as if you had been sleeping in a hay-mow, and you smell like a hoss." Chandler smiled with intense gratification and said: "Why, them's my principles. Don't you know I'm a granger? I represent the great agricultural interests in Michigan."

A Charming Wife.

A married woman whose will has been proved in England gave all her estate to Mr. Van Harrigh, her husband; directed her clothes to be sold to pay her funeral expenses and added: "It is also my earnest wish that my darling husband should marry ere long a nice, pretty girl, who is a good housewife, and above all, to be careful that she is of good temper."

There is a model for wives. Some women are so selfish that they hate the idea of their husbands ever being happy after they are dead.

A Pleasing Name.

Among the passengers from Guaymas is a gentleman of the name of Gregoris Urriologoyla. We do not know whether he is married or not, but we should fancy that he would find some difficulty in getting a girl to change her name to Urriologoyla. If he did so we can imagine Mrs. U. afflicted with a sore throat, using a gargle and Mr. U. saying "did you call me dear?"

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Haas are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 778 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-r

The Marysville Theatre.

The Appeal of the 30th says: The work of remodeling the Marysville Theatre was commenced yesterday, the proprietors proposing to change it into a public hall. As originally constructed, it was only suitable for a theatrical or operatic entertainment. The change will make it a suitable place for either theatrical entertainments, dancing parties, social fairs, lectures, or any public entertainment. The general convenience of the theatre will not be materially affected by the alterations. The seats, which were so conveniently located by their elevated position, are removed. The floor has been cut down to the level of that next the stage, making a level room 64 by 54 feet. The seats will be the same as those formerly in use, and will be movable. The entrance to the hall will also be somewhat remodeled. The ticket-box will be removed from the centre, and placed on the north side. A partition will be built on the first flight of stairs leading to the gallery. Inside the entrance will be erected on either side dressing-rooms for ladies and gentlemen. These changes do not disturb the elegant appointments of the stage and private boxes, or the gallery. The change is one intended to make the property more available, and at the same time accommodate the public with a large hall.

Texas Dead Heads.

Mr. John Lowlow, clown of Robinson's circus, related to a Cincinnati reporter the manner in which the Texas Thugs demand admission:

Mr. Lowlow—Sometimes a man comes to the ticket wagon, presents a revolver to the ticket seller's head, and asks if that (the revolver) is good for two tickets. Sometimes a man goes to the doorkeeper with a revolver in one hand and a ticket in the other, and asks which will admit him.

Reporter—Don't you think Jacksonville is in a neighborhood more run over by desperadoes than others?

Mr. Lowlow—I know that. At least it was our experience.

Reporter—Were you ever there before?

Mr. Lowlow—Never. This is the first time the show ever went there.

Reporter—What has been the experience of other shows at that place?

Mr. Lowlow—They all get into fights. They killed two men in Orton's show, two in Noyes' and one in Horace Smith's, in the last four or five years.

An Active Woman.

A Kentucky paper says:

Mrs. Searls, who lives in Grayson County, went out one day last Spring to dig ginseng. She is said to be one of the most industrious women in all her section. During the day she dug seven pounds of ginseng, killed five young foxes and two rattle snakes, slew two fawns, and went back home and gave birth to twins.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Panic is over

But it has left it's effects in the great depression in business throughout the Eastern States California with its coin currency has escaped entirely and the consequence is that many strangers from the East are seen walking our streets, who find the climate salubrious and finances in healthy condition. They also find that living is cheaper here for proof of which go to Louis Meyer's White House Restaurant 112 Kearny St. near Post where the most choice meats and vegetables are served in every style; and yet the prices are reasonable. 12-h

A Misunderstanding.

The Rochester Union has a ghost story. It tell how B. F. Sherman, agent of the American Express Company, of that city, died and after he had been buried three weeks walked into his wife's room, sat down on the bed and pulled off his boots. Mrs. Sherman, knowing nothing about ghosts, instead of welcoming the dear shade, ran out of the room in a fright. The next evening the same thing happened, and Mrs. Sherman, again fled and now refuses to occupy the rooms which were given her, rent free by the company. We are sure that the departed Mr. Sherman never intended to frighten his wife, and make her give up her rooms. It seemed quite natural to him to be a ghost, and he could not imagine how any one could be frightened at him any more than they would when he was in the flesh. He wished to make himself at home. This subject of ghosts is certainly worth study. If spiritualism does nothing more than cure people of the dread they have of what they call "the supernatural," but what is really perfectly natural, it will accomplish a good work. It is better for all parties that those in the body and the disembodied come to a better understanding. As far as we are concerned, we are always as polite and friendly to a ghost as to any other man, that is as long as the ghost behaves itself.

Righteous Wrath.

The Mexicans are good judges of opera, and when they don't like a performance they let the performers know it. Lately an audience in the city of Mexico became exasperated at the atrocious massacre of the music, and put a stop to it by hurling chairs, benches, cushions, and other portable appurtenances of the house upon the stage.

Economy.

Fashionable milliners now sell their "ideas" which purchasers take home and endeavor to expatiate upon. This is the latest.

Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

When Goods are so much below the cost of production as they are now, it is inevitable that prices cannot remain long where they are. The Eastern Mills are stopped. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

The play of "Micawber vs. Heep," by the author of "The Geneva Cross," is drawing large and fashionable audiences. The genial Wilkins Micawber and the villainous Heep are so familiar to every one that all are pleased to see them represented on the stage. Miss Esther Williams, who is making rapid progress in her profession, plays the character of Agnes Wickfield with much feeling. The farce of "Beautiful Forever" terminates the entertainment. The benefit to Manager Maguire will take place on Friday, when Italian Opera will be given.

Alhambra Theatre.

A bright first part, with Billy Manning and Billy Sweetnam on the ends and Con. T. Murphy as interlocutor, Welch and Rice in song and dance, Ella Wesner in character songs, Sweetnam and Manning in "The Giraffe Brothers," George S. Knight in "Shakin' Dices" and other specialties, the Siegrist Troupe in their popular performances, and George S. Knight, Billy Sweetnam and others in "The Rivals," make up a bill which crowds this house every night. Thomas Maguire's benefit will take place on Friday.

California Theatre.

The "Naiad Queen" is doing what may be called a steady business—a steady business that would delight the heart of any management. Every night the house is absolutely full, every seat occupied and chairs in the aisles. The ballet, the music, the Girards, the acting, the scenery, the Tumbleronicon, the trapeze performance by Harry Clark and M'lle Laura, and the numerous other attractions seem to be drawing every one in town, and lots of people from the country, to this house. On Thursday evening next the celebrated Box and Bag Mystery, which has created such a furore in the East, will be introduced.

Bella Union.

The extravaganza of "The Fays," Cassim and Fritz in great gymnastic feats, Miss Maggie Kelly in comic songs, Moore and Bray in song and dance, Fred Ritchie in Dutch impersonations, and a great variety of other entertainments will be offered this evening.

Buckley's Varieties.

"Obeying Orders," comic songs by Miss Lizzie Armon, acrobatic feats by Leon Samwells, and numerous other specialties by other members of the company will be presented to-night. The drama of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" will conclude the performance.

Woodward's Gardens.

The gardens are now in the finest condition. Skating and the Trained Animals every day. A grand performance and the pantomime of 'Les Brigands" and the grand set "Groupe Chinois" Saturday and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go

So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped is a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.

PLAY OF THE PERIOD.

BY ORPHEUS C. KERR.

The lingering, last orchestral swell
Along the crowded lobbies drifted,
When, at the prompter's signal bell,
The curtain from the stage uplifted;
And then, the flutter of applause
Was not that favorite might be bolstered,
But murmured through the house because
So finely was the scene upholstered.

A glowering husband strode and fumed,
To think upon his wife unstable,
While she in pensive beauty bloomed
Beside a really lovely table;
What time a certain young Alphonse,
Whose flirting caused connubial choleras,
Stood leaning near a statue bronze
Worth, easily, a hundred dollars.

The general story seemed to be
Of marriage that had been too hasty;
And ran its round of misery
'Mongst chairs and sofas rich and tasty;
"I love you not!" the lady said;
"And, knowing that, 'tis all you can know;"
Then from her husband's pleading fled,
And fainted near the Grand Piano.

From this ensued a meeting grim
Between the husband and the lover,
Within a park of verdure prim,
Where chasts settees were spread all over.
A bullet planted in his face
Cut short Alphonse's life of honey,
And sprawled him by a marble vase
That must have cost a pile of money.

When next appeared the lady fair,
She was declining, with consumption;
Upon a 'broidered lounge, so rare
To guess its price would be presumption;
And when, at last, for love she died,
With husband, priest, and poodle near her,
The scene was greatly glorified
By an imported, spacious mirror.

If such was not the plot exact,
It seemed the meaning of the bathos,
And, judged by any sober fact,
Had equal want of pith and pathos,
'Twas not in captious spirit rash
That people when the play was ended,
Pronounced it most immoral trash;—
But then the furniture was splendid!

Tyrannical Gas Company.

Gas companies are the same all over the world: Very considerible indignation is being felt in London at the announcement which has been made by the gas companies that they mean to raise their rates with the new year. It is felt that whatever excuse there may have been for this step last Winter, there is none now that coals have fallen seven shillings per ton in a fortnight. The gas companies are killingly cool. They simply send round a circular telling people that if they do not object to a rise in price the gas will be continued to them; if not, it will be cut off next year. Many householders have laid out hundreds of pounds on gas arrangements for their houses, and they must submit or return to oil.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that wineow seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer.""
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style—just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

The Model Negro Farmer.

The model negro farmer buys an old mule or blind horse on credit, rents land either for a part of the crop or so many bales of cotton, procures tools as best he can, buys corn, bacon, etc., for which he gives a lien on his crop; and then, about April, he commences to prepare for planting corn, either breaking or laying off in rows, to break out the middles after the corn is up. Corn planting over, he proceeds, sometime in May, to prepare for cotton: "Cuffee, gwine to use any juanner?" "No, bless your life, I'se not gwine to buy juanner to put on other folks' lan'."

Well, after dinner, some sultry evening, he saunters from his hut, and, after surveying his prospects, he says: "Whew! sun gitten hot; time I's plantin' my cotton." Hitches up his mule to his one-horse cart, and off he goes to hunt cotton seed. Well, after cotton planting, then for a fish and hunt.

Some June Monday morning he wakes up one or two hours by the sun, and, after breakfast, he hitches up his mule to run round his corn.; After treating his cotton in somewhat the same way, he proceeds to chopping. Then for another big frolic, to say nothing about going to his meetings and to town every Saturday.

After this fashion he gets through the year. He then takes what little cotton to market he makes and sells it for provision bills, returns his mule to its former owner, and goes home broke, consoling himself by saying, "If I didn't get any money, I's had a heap of freedom." He takes down his plank and fire-coal and figures thus:

"0 is naught, 5 is a figure,
All for de account, and none for de nigger."

He lays his plank back up in the crack, and, while reaching out for the poker to pull out his potatoes from the fire, he breaks out whistling his favorite song:

"Nigger work hard all de year,
White man tote de money," etc.

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

A Place to Visit.

The new dry goods store of Gleeson & Fell 911 and 913 Market street, just beyond Fifth. This firm was well-known for years to purchasers of dry and fancy goods, at their old stand 634 Market street, as a house where good articles at reasonable prices could always be obtained. They advertis d liberally, and have built up a large trade, the wants of which required a store of much great proportions. Such a store being impossible to obtain near their old locality they fitted up the lower part of building 911 and 913 Market street, most sumptuously in one immense store, which they called the "People's Palace," and stocked it with new and desirable goods. The experiment was a bold one, but it has been eminently successful. Their spacious store has been thronged with customers, and their sales have increased four-fold, which is no less due to the conviction of their customers that they always obtain of that firm a full equivalent for their money, than to the admirably arranged store, and far-seeing business qualifications of its proprietors, whose ambition it is not to get rich in a hurry, but to undersell all competitors. They have just commenced their winter clearing out sale, prior to taking account of stock with the determination of turning every article they can into cash, if reduction in prices will do it, and are doing a rushing business. If ladies hear complaints of hard times let them visit the "People's Palace" and see what is going on there. We believe with the Prophet Peters, that money invested in business improvements in San Francisco, is the best investment in the world.

"Time is Money."

No one appreciates the truth of the above saying better than the merchant. Punctuality in keeping an appointment, is with him the chief of virtues. How appropriate it is, therefore, that the Merchant's Exchange of San Francisco should be surmounted by a clock. It is a pleasing sight to see the weather beaten old sea captain glance at that clock to ascertain whether his chronometer is right. It was particularly pleasing to do this yesterday morning, at twenty-five minutes to 10 A. M. and observe the look of astonishment and disgust which overspread that weather beaten old sea captain's face, when he saw five minutes to 10 denoted as the true time on that clock-face. However, that clock is seldom more than an hour too slow, and it keeps good enough time for San Francisco. People don't care so much about time here as in other parts of the world. They pretend they do; they potter about and think they are doing a great deal, when in reality they are accomplishing nothing. The Merchant's Exchange clock is typical of the San Francisco merchant—often a little too slow, sometimes absurdly fast.

"By George" is considered to be an oath in Canada, and he who uses it may be fined $10

Female post-office clerks are being largely employed at the South.

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 778 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-r

Freedom of Speech.

The Grass Valley Union says:

In Placer county they are troubling themselves about grammar; about English grammar. They do not seem to know that there is no English grammar. There is a sort of conventional way of arranging words in a sentence, which is called grammar, but it is not a clean cut article of grammar like the Greeks had, in the days gone by. A "man from out West," who had once taught school remarked in our hearing, the other day, that "there aren't no English grammar," and his remark was an illustrated fact. And so in Placer county, a writer for the educational column of a newspaper there, gives an essay on grammar in the course of which he plays havoc, more than once, with some of the small rules which are supposed to make up English grammar. We asseverate, again, that there is no English grammar.

The fool hath said in his heart there is no grammar! Well, so be it. This is a free country, and we suppose freedom of speech, unrestrained by any arbitrary rules, is one of the rights secured by the Constitution. The English language is degenerating into a jargon. It is made up of grunts, and klucks, and animal sounds. The purity of speech is lost. Editors write "he done it," "he's seen it," "he had came," "the toast was drank," without knowing they are incorrect. A girl is asked by her lover "Oh Angelina, do you love me?" and instead of murmuring yes, she grunts "um um." The idea of the present day, is not to educate the people up to a higher standard, but to write down to their comprehension. Writers for the press must not be too well educated, or they will not suit either the newspaper proprietors, or the public. "There aint no grammar." Perhaps the editor of the Grass Valley Union is right.

Rather Careless.

About two weeks ago thirteen bodies were stolen from the pauper burial-ground in Chicago. In accordance with the Christian manner of burying the poor in that city, the boxes containing the bodies were piled up in the cemetery one evening, and it was the intention of the sexton, probably, if he didn't have too much else to do, to bury them the next day. In the meantime, however, the boxes were opened and the bodies stolen. Whether they were taken for the benefit of medical students or the soap-fat men is not known, and probably doesn't make a great deal of difference, in Chicago.

A Lively Correspondent.

The San Jose Mercury very justly remarks:

We admire the expansive facial development of the Call's San Jose correspondent, who habitually and continually steals the Mercury's local items, without even troubling himself to change the phraseology, and, never by accident giving credit. We have never yet discovered an item in said news that had not been published from one to two days before in the San Jose papers. This is enterprise with a vengeance.

A Sunday School Lesson.

Not long since, at Sunday School, the teacher, after trying hard to impress on the minds of a class of small boys the sin of Sabbath-breaking, asked: "Is Sunday better than any other day?" when the smallest boy in the class answered: "You bet your boots it is?"

A Perfect Woman.

A woman of cultured intellect is one of the main supports, if not one of the main elements, of civilized society, but the woman whose head and hands are alike educated is to be honored of both gods and men.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But now here could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast.
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Gilded Age.

The Arcadian criticises "The Gilded Age" written by Mark Twain and Charles Dudley Warner. It owns that it is a clever satire on "whatever is ridiculous, venal or wicked, in what are known as "American institutions," and says:

We cannot honestly say that the satire is too harsh. Our country has been so full of frauds and abominations of various kinds, that it seems almost unjust to apply the term satire to the literal exactness with which events in real life are lifted into the pages of "The Gilded Age." Still such a book will be regarded as a jest. It is made to sell and will sell. Its wit and humor are unachieved by touches of the ideal, by a humane and lofty spirit, to accomplish any appreciable good.

Probably Mark would say in response to this criticism, that the book was written for the express purpose of doing good—doing good to Mark Twain. It will probably accomplish that great and noble end, and serve to make Mark's old age gilded.

A Suicide Prevented.

A married man in Ottumwa, Iowa, feeling unhappy, hung himself. His wife and sister cut him down. He then tried to butt in his skull, but they held him until the City Marshal arrived. That official cleared out the women, and then told the man to go ahead with the suicide business, as he wouldn't interfere. He thought he'd defer the job till there was more opposition. There isn't any pleasure in killing oneself when people want you to die, you know.

Using Her for a Warning.

We admire philosophers—men who at all times deduce valuable lessons from circumstances even the most apparently devoid of instruction. They have a philosopher of this sort in Terre Haute, Ind. Recently, an old lady attempted to get off the cars when in motion. A gentleman near the door prevented her. "Let her go," said the philosopher, with a genial smile irradiating his intellectual face. "If she gets killed, it'll be a warning to somebody else."

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

The Oriental Wine House.

Alhambra Theatre.

Welch and Rice in grotesque songs and dances Ella Wesner in her songs, including the ever-popular "Nicodemus," Sweatnam and Manning as "The Giraffe Brothers," George S. Knight in his Dutch songs and funny stories, the wonderful Siegriest troupe and the screaming extravaganza of "The Rivals," will crowd this theatre to-night. To-morrow night, when the enterprising Manager, Thomas Maguire, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit, in addition to the regular entertainment Miss Jennie Lee, Mrs. Julia Melville, J. P. Burnett, John Howson and Harry Thompson will appear in the capital farce of "Dabster Done." There will be such a house on this occasion as is not seen every night in the year.

California Theatre.

"The Naiad Queen" will be played to-night, and in addition to all its attractions of scenery, music, ballet, Gizards, Professor O'Reardon, Harry Clark and Mlle Laura, the great mystery of the nineteenth century will be presented. This is the incomprehensible box feat, which has been puzzling London for a year past, and has lately been introduced in New York by Professor Hartz. Mr. Du Mar is the possessor of the secret, and will introduce the illusion in California. We defer a description of it until it has been performed before the public of California.

Opera House.

The very clever dramatization of Dicken's novel of David Copperfield, entitled "Micawber vs Heep," takes well at this house, and the lively farce of "Beautiful Forever," in which Miss Jennie Lee and John Howson appear, winds up the evening's entertainment very pleasantly. The performance for to-morrow night will be for the benefit of Thomas Maguire, and, appropriately enough, will consist of Italian opera. Mr. Maguire has spent more money in introducing opera in San Francisco than many a German Duke, and deserves well of the community for cultivating its musical taste at his own expense. The opera of "Il Trovatore" will be given, with Madame Agatha States, Signor Pietro Baccei, Signora Bianchi, Mrs George T. Evans, Signor Orlandini, Signor Fulvio Rigo and Mons. Charles in the cast. We can promise the public a perfectly performed opera on this occasion, and consequently a rich musical treat.

Bella Union.

"The Fays," with Miss Jennie Johnson as Gayland Graceful, John Woodward as John Hornswoggle, Matt Kelly as King Brilliant, Miss Fanny Garretson as Gossamer, and others, whose names appear on our first page, in the cast, will be presented to-night in connection with a great variety bill, in which Cassim and Fritz, Moore and Bray and others will take part.

Buckley's Varieties.

First part, amusing olio of acts, songs dances and gymnastic feats, and afterpiece of "Ten Nights in a Barroom," make up a very attractive bill at this house.

Woodward's Gardens.

The gardens are now in the finest condition. Skating and the Trained Animals every day. A grand performance and the pantomime of 'Les Brigands" and the grand set "Groupe Chinois" Saturday and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door to Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

SUTTER'S FORT.

I stood by the old fort's crumbling wall,
On the eastern verge of the town;
The sun, through cleft in the ruined hall,
Flecked with its light the rafters brown,

And sifting with gold the oaken floor,
Seemed to burnish the place anew;
While out and in through the half-closed door,
Building their nests, the swallows flew.

Charmed by the magic spell of the place,
The present vanished, the past returned;
While rampart and fortress filled the space,
And yonder the Indian camp-fires burned.

I heard the sentinel's measured tread,
The challenge prompt, the quick reply;
I saw on the tower above my head
The Mexican banner flaunt the sky,

Around me were waifs from every clime—
Blown by the fickle winds of chance;
Knights-errant ready at any time,
For any cause, to couch a lance.

The stanch old captain, with courtly grace,
Owner of countless leagues of land,
Benignly govern'd the motley race,
Dispensing favors with open hand.

On miles of meadow his cattle feed,
While brown vaqueros, with careless rein,
Swinging riatas, on restless steed,
Are dashing madly over the plain.

Presto change—the patriarch no more
Shall rule as in the days of old;
Some alchemist versed in hidden lore,
Transmutes the shining sands to gold.

In noonday splendor the morning pales;
A yellow stain is on the streams;
And amid Arcadia's hills and vales,
A golden glamour fiercely gleams.

With magic skill, the subtle brain
Arrays the annals of the years;
I see the shuttled world again
Convulsed by altern hopes and fears.

Bold hands are framing, with eager zest,
An epic grand, with marshaled tropes;
A nation, climbing the mountain's crest,
Comes sweeping down the western slopes.

And far out upon the restless seas,
Baffled, and tossed by adverse fate,
The keen eyes of Mammon's devotees
Are watching for the Golden Gate.

Sweep on O storms, by sea and land;
Surge on, O tides insatiate;
Fruition's hour is near at hand;
Rest comes to those who watch and wait.

Thus vaguely to me, as in a dream,
Obscure events throng thick and fast;
And the gray walls of the old fort seem,
Prescoed with pictures of the past.

—L. H. Foote in Sacramento Union.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'n
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Beecher on Stomachs.

In one of Beecher's Friday evening class meetings lately a bald-headed stranger, who had a very peculiar voice, which made everybody smile, told how his mother taught him to be good and to do good every day, and how he had been doing so ever since.

Mr. Beecher, smiling, and amid the uproarious mirth of the audience, said that the brother had a pretty head, round, and full, and so on; that probably he had a good chest underneath it, and a good stomach underneath that. That made all the difference in the world. It was not much credit to a man with a good physique and a splendid digestion to be good and to do good every day. But suppose a man has been created with a dyspeptic stomach. He would always be moaning that there was nothing to live for, and nothing to live by to get that. He went groaning and moping along, thankful to God that every man did not kick him. Tell that man to be happy and cheerful and do good always? Why, it would be worse than mockery to him. "The church," said Mr. Beecher, "has got to carry men with all sorts of heads and stomachs. You can't turn out men as you turn out candles—all fashioned in one mould."

A Sad State of Morals.

It is an admitted fact that in a considerable portion of cases if the conductor neglect to ask for the fare, the passenger fails to remind him. There are few of us who have not seen man whose appearance would pre-suppose a well-lined pocket-book and a balance in bank, sitting for a while with a five cent piece between his thumb and finger, after the conductor had passed by, quietly slipping the coin back into his vest pocket.

Venting His Feelings.

A pugilistic Irishman in England, being bound over to keep the peace on all British subjects, remarked: "The Lord help the first foreigner I meet."

Lipman's Great Discovery.

Tweed's Position.

Tweed has been appointed Assistant Orderly in the penitentiary hospital. The New York Sun says: Tweed cheerfully accepted the position, and received his instructions meekly. The hospital is on the fourth floor and runs the full length of one of the large wings. Two rows of cots extend through the room, and in the center is a great stove. There are two desks, several cases of medicines, and large quantities of bandages and lint. Seventeen patients occupy cots, and to them Tweed is to minister. The chief orderly is a well educated young man, of good family. He was sent to the penitentiary for stealing and selling a railroad ticket belonging to a Pennsylvania company, entitling the holder to passage from Philadelphia to San Francisco. He has four months yet to serve. The physician gives instructions to this orderly, who tells Tweed what to do. Tweed, it is said, has already taken a liking to the young man, and they are thought to be very agreeable companions. Although Tweed is not so active as a younger or thinner man might be, yet he shows a disposition to do well what is required of him, and handles the patients with care, removing old bandages and putting on new ones, and administering medicines as though used to the work all his life. He has a desk where he occasionally writes. The orderly yesterday said he was much pleased with his assistant. He and Tweed find opportunity frequently to sit by the stove, toast their toes, and discuss the topics of the day. They are not deprived of reading matter and can keep themselves well informed. It will be necessary for Tweed to arise at half-past 6 in the morning, and there may be occasions, the Warden says, when he will have to stay up all night attending those under his care. Common prison fare, unless the physician prescribes something better, will be provided for him.

Taking Up a Collection.

The Boston Courier says: At one of our public halls last week, a man stood at the door saying, "Umbrellas, please." To each one who gave him an umbrella he passed a numbered ticket. When last seen this individual was disappearing around a corner with some twenty umbrelas of all sizes and conditions over his left shoulder.

An Ear for Music.

Mistress (finding the housemaid for the third time hanging about the drawing room door)—"Mary, what are you here listening at the door for? Haven't you any work?" Mary—"Oh, if you plase'm, I don't mean no 'arm—It's that 'evingly music!" [N. B. —The man was tuning the piano.]

A Sociable Man.

One of the charges for which an artillery officer was recently cashiered, specified that on a certain occasion he entered a store in Sitka, Alaska, and seating himself on the floor beside an Indian squaw, took her pipe and smoked it. Such conduct was considered unbecoming an officer and gentleman.

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Haas are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 778 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-T

Do Your Best.

Henry Ward Beecher preaches the very best kind of morality, and it is for this reason, that extracts from his sermons are often transferred to the columns of FIGARO. Here is one of his recent utterances which should be read and considered by every one:

"Many a man who is fighting against his temperament now, when the all-revealing light of resurrection comes, will thank God for the struggle. You are worse than you think—and better. In the household do not be discouraged, though I know that every family has its skeleton closets—its wounds that do not bleed, but ache. Don't hurry God. It is sometimes a long way that He travels when He comes with His best gifts. Oh, sorrowing father! Oh, heart-broken mother! Your child is a wreck; but when, in the other life, God lays her in your arms, and says, 'Your work saved her!' you will have your reward. The work that Christians do in society is so far above human comprehension that nobody should be impatient. Don't give up. I think the most affecting story I ever heard, is that of the man who went to preach to the slaves in the West Indies and found them to be beasts. He could get no access to their heads or hearts. So he sold himself to their master, was driven to the fields with them, worked with them, was lashed as they were lashed, and all for opportunity to preach to them. When he died his work seemed so small—so small; yet so long as the world lasts there will be men to tell of him. Do not grow weary. Die by your flag, but never surrender. Stand—wait. Your work seems poor to you, but rich to the Master. Enlarge your horizon, and remember that over all, and in all, God is working too. In tears, in sorrow, in degradation, in death the children of God may find the premonitions of victory. Hold on—hold fast! And when he comes, we may become something like unto Him."

A Smart Dodge.

Waggles had a pretty bad horse, and he wanted to sell him and sell the buyer. This was his plan: He fed the horse "high" for a fortnight and gave the beast no exercise, and then having stopped a policeman near a convenient corner, he put the horse into a perfect frenzy of excitement and managed to pass the policeman twice at a rushing rate. True, the horse nearly died from over-exertion, but Waggles gained his object, was arrested for fast driving, and having paid his fine sold his horse on the notoriety of his arrest for ten times that animal's value. The policeman expects a silver mounted revolver.

Had Him There.

"Be careful how you drink, or you'll wash the color from your cheeks!" said a gentleman, at a fashionable party, as he handed a glass of water to a lady. "There is no danger of your ever taking water enough to remove the color from your face!" was the good-natured retort. She rather had him though.

Certainly Not.

A "reader" in New Britain very truthfully and indignantly asserts that no woman, however nervous she may be, has a right to wake her husband from a sound sleep to tell him on his inquiring what is the matter, "Nothing, only I wanted to know if you were awake."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind"

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Orville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
Th re you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Peoria Sausages.

An elderly lady recently visited the stall of the most jovial butcher in Central Market, and poking her fingers suspiciously into fresh, clean sausage meat, said she would like some sausage if she could be sure there were no dogs ground up in it. The fleshy assured her that there was not a particle of dog in his sausage meat. It was made, he declared, under his own supervision, from meat he killed and dressed with his own hands, and not an ounce of dog meat adulterated it. He was so honest and firm in his declaration that the woman believed him, and ordered three pounds of the meat. As the butcher was weighing it she asked what did he make his sausage meat of? "Cats, ma'am," he answered cheerfully, "nice young cats. Not an old, tough cat among them. I raise my own cats and kill them while they're young and tender. You may depend on this sausage being the pure cat." Up to date, from the best evidence we have been able to obtain, the old lady hasn't had a sausage this year.

A Reflection on McShane.

The editor of the Courier-Journal has his own ideas as to what a thing is worth. He says: "A man shot a woman in Washington City the other day, for a claim of twenty cents. We hate to deal harshly with an erring fellow-being, but we can't help saying that the man who would shoot a woman for less than $1.50 is probably not the Christian gentleman he ought to be." We don't think a man ought to shoot a man or a woman for less than $20. Three dollars is the debt which makes an attempt at homicide justifiable in San Francisco.

Fighting Their Way.

Lizzie and Lydia Taylor, five years ago, entered the office of the Charlotte, Mich., Republican as compositors. They afterwards went into the Battle Creek Journal office, and since that time they have earned from eight dollars to twenty dollars per week. From their earnings they have supported their mother, as housekeepers, have lived well, bought a piano, taken music lessons, given one hundred dollars toward the building of the Baptist church at Battle Creek, and have saved twelve hundred dollars. They are unmarried.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

In addition to the numerous attractions of "The Naiad Queen" Mr. Du Mar's version of the box and bag feat, was presented last night. The trick is a wonderful one. A lady is put in a bag which is tied and sealed; by the side of the sofa on which she lies is placed a box which is secured with two padlocks, and securely corded. She is then hidden from view by curtains and in 5 minutes is out of the bag, and in the box The bag is found with its fastenings undisturbed, and the box locked and corded as before. This trick was faithfully performed last night, but was not presented with the artistic finish bestowed on it by practised showmen. It will doubtless be worked much better to-night, and the time occupied will be three minutes instead of five. "The Naiad Queen" will be performed at the matinee to-morrow.

Opera House.

To-night, when Thomas Maguire, the pioneer Manager, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit, Verdi's grand opera of "Il Trovatore" will be presented at the Opera House with Madame Agatha States as Leonora, Signor Pietro Bacci as Manrico, Signora Bianchi in her great character of Azucena, Mrs. George T. Evans as Inez, Signor Orlandini as Conte di Luna, Signor Fulvio Rigo as Ferrando and Mons. Charles as Ruiz. 'Il Trovatore" is a favorite opera, and one which is always well played when produced in this city. Those who join in this well-deserved testimonial to one who has done so much towards providing the public of San Francisco with operatic entertainments, may therefore be sure of enjoying a rich musical treat.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night will be a gala night at this theatre. Thomas Maguire will take his benefit, and there will be, of course, an immense house. Welch and Rice, Manning and Sweatnam, George S. Knight, Ella Wenner, the wonderful Siegrists and others will appear in the specialties set forth on our first page, and in addition to this Miss Jennie Lee, Mrs. Julia Melville, J. P. Burnett, John Howson, and H. D. Thompson will appear in the capital farce of "Dabster Done." Such a combination of artistes is seldom seen at any theatre, and the entertainment to be given by them will certainly be worth far more than the price of a ticket.

Opera Night—California Theatre.

On Sunday evening the charming opera of "La Favorita" will be presented, with Madame Inez Fabbri as Leonora, Signor Baccei as Ferdinand, Signor Orlandini as Alfonso XI., Miss Anna Elzar as Inez, F. Rigo as Balthazar, and Mons. Charles as Don Gaspar By permission of Barton Hill the Rommelsburg Sisters and full corps de ballet of the California Theatre will appear in the first and second acts.

Bella Union.

A new bill will be performed at this favorite theatre to-night. After a capital first part and an olio comprising the famous act of "Spider and Fool," by Carwin and Fritz, the amusing local trifle entitled "Sally Ann" will be played by Miss Jennie Johnson, Fred Ritchie, John Woodard, Miss Nellie Howard and others. The sketch of the "Live Indian" is also comprised in the evening's entertainment, the full programme of which is published on our first page. Miss Alice Ross, specialty artist and serio-comic vocalist, and Ed Murray, eccentric comedian, will shortly appear.

Buckley's Varieties.

Fun is the order of the evening at this popular place of amusement A great bill will be presented to-night, and Mortimore, Leon Samwells, Miss Lizzie Harmon, George Foster, Harry Devoy and a host of others will appear.

Woodward's Gardens.

The gardens are now in the finest condition. Skating and the Trained Animals every day. A grand performance and the pantomime of 'Les Brigands" and the grand act "Groupe Chinois" Saturday and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cook-d in every style,
A private door to Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

Hard Times in Boston.

A reporter of the Boston Courier has been interviewing the pawnbrokers and second-hand furniture dealers, as to the signs of the times evinced by their business. One dealer said: "Yes, sir, there's poverty, else my store wouldn't be so full. I know people who have sold their bedsteads and made up their beds on the floor. A woman came in here the other day with a statue and asked me what I'd give her for it. I told her I didn't want it at all. "Why," says she, "it's a Clytie." "Well ma'am, if it is," says I, "I don't want it." "It's my opinion," says she, walking out, "that you don't know what a Clytie is, or you would be glad to buy it, being as it was marble." "But what am I to do with Clyties? My trade's in furniture. But that wouldn't make no difference, for I couldn't take another stick if I got it for nothing."

A pawnbroker said: "Vell vat I gives now is for charity. I hates to send the poor peoples away. They wants monish and I gives 'em a leedle."

At this moment a little boy entered with a small paper parcel under his arm.

"Ah!" said the pawnbroker, glancing at the little fellow, "ish dat you again, my leedle boy. Now vat has you dis time. I hope you don't stole none of dese garments; leedle boys musta't stole noding."

"No sir," said the little fellow, "I never stole anything in my life, My mother sent me with this;" and the boy, opening the parcel, displayed an elegant silk sacque, which had evidently been little worn; "and she wants you to give all you can for it. She will be able to redeem it soon."

"Vat is dis! Ah, nobody vants someding like dis in vinter; dis is for summer. I can't give moosh on dis, my leedle boy. I gives you seventy-five cents."

"Mother said I might get two dollars for it."

"Seventy-five cen's," said the pawnbroker. "I'll take it sir," said the boy sadly.

The transaction was entered in the pawnbroker's book, the boy received the money, the sacque was folded up, ticketed and placed on the shelf, and smilingly the Jew resumed the conversation.

"Now dere's dat leedle boy like all of 'em; he's been here so many times I can't tell. They always vant shoost dwice as moosh vat de article is vorth. It vash too bad!"

Particular Man.

Lady (to James, who has brought up a note): "Did you ask the young person to take a seat?"

James: "Beg pard'n, m'lady, she'd hevidently been eatin' o' onions; so I as'd her to be a'good as to wait outside."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer,"
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Sleep as a Medicine.

The cry for rest has always been louder than the cry for food. Not that it is more important, but it is often harder to obtain. The best rest comes from sound sleep. Of two men or two women, otherwise equal, the one who sleeps the best will be the most moral, healthly and efficient. Sleep will restore to vigor an over-worked brain. It will build up and make strong a weary body. It will cure headache. It will cure heartache. It will cure a broken spirit. It will cure a sorrow. Indeed, we might make a a long list of nervous and other maladies that sleep will cure. The cure of sleeplessness requires a clean, good bed, sufficient exercise to produce weariness, pleasant occupation, good air, and not too warm a room, a clear stomach, a clear conscience, and avoiding of stimulants and narcotics. For those who are overworked, haggard, nervous, who pass sleepless nights, we commend the adoption of such habits as shall secure sleep; otherwise life will be short, and what there is of it sadly imperfect.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—Miss May Howard took a benefit at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday last. Miss Kate Denin made her first appearance on this occasion; "Solid Silver" was performed. On Wednesday, the entertainment consisted of "Lady Audley's Secret," on Thursday, Miss Howard, appeared in her own play of "Good as Gold," and on Friday, "The Wandering Heir" was presented for the last time. At the matinee to-day "Solid silver." will be played, and Professor Faber's Talking Machine will be exhibited. On Monday, Miss Howard will take her farewell benefit, and make her last appearance, playing in a dramatization from the French of Dumas, entitled "La Princess George." On Monday, the famous tragic actress, Miss Kate Rogers, will make her first appearance in California.

VALLEJO.—"The Lancashire Lass" will be performed to-night by a company from the California Theatre.

SAN JOSE.—Manager DeLacy doesn't like to invest too heavily in providing the people of San Jose with dramatic entertainments at the Opera House, and professionals from San Francisco don't care about sharing "profits," so at present the Opera House is closed. However, San Jose has some amusement. Prof. Carr lectured last night on "Horticulture and its Relation to Civilization." A lecture on cabbage growing would have suited the San Joseans still better as being "more practical."

PORTLAND, O.—The congregation of Trinity Parish were to give an entertainment at Oro Fino Theatre last Wednesday, for the purpose of raising funds to build a hospital. This does the theatre and the church in good work.

SALT LAKE CITY.—Last Monday J. A. Herne commenced an engagement at the theatre in "Rip Van Winkle."

VIRGINIA CITY.—On Saturday night little Fay Templeton took her farewell benefit at Piper's Opera House. The comedy of "Still Waters Run Deep," and the extravaganza of "Parepa Rosa" were presented.

CARSON CITY.—Fay Templeton, Miss Alice Vane, and Jona Templeton opened at the Theatre on the 5th to a good house.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While lounged in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair to
Well-the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat,
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

The new comedy, "Charity," by W. S. Gilbert, was produced at the Haymarket, London, January 3d.

Charles Dickens's Christmas story, "The Battle of Life," is in preparation for the stage by a son of the great novelist.

A burlesque by Byron, of which Guy Fawkes is the hero will soon be brought out in London, with Toole in the leading part.

A melodrama, with the sensational title of "Raymond and Agnes; or, The Bleeding Nun of Lindenberg," is among the promised London novelties.

Mr. Albery has produced another play, "Married," which, according to London advices, is a failure. It was at first announced as being the joint production of the late Mr. Robertson and Mr. Albery, but Mr. Robertson's name was withdrawn at the imperative request of his widow, who denies his having had any hand in its construction.

Mr. Wieniawski has accepted the position at the Brussels Conservatory, rendered vacant by the illness and resignation of Mr. Vieuxtemps. The appointment is one that does honor to the director, Mr. Gevaert, and will receive the cordial endorsement of all the violin pupils of the conservatory.

The non-production, last season at Drury Lane, of Her Majesty's Opera, by Mr. Mapleson, of Balfe's posthumous opera, "Ill Talismano" (Sir Walter Scott's tale), was ascribed to the prima donna Madame Christine Nilsson, but the lady has formally denied this, and has made a formal stipulation in her new contract with the director that the work shall be produced for her first appearance, next May, in order that she may fulfil her promise to the late composer, to undertake the part of the heroine.

Mdme. Arabella Goddard arrived at Colombo from Australia on the 10th of November. She was to proceed in a fortnight to Madras, and thence to Calcutta and Bombay.

The London Era prophesied great things concerning Mr Blanchard's pantomime, 'Puss in Boots," which was to be produced at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, for Christmas. The scenery was entrusted to Mr. F. Fenton and the Brothers Brew. The first named promised a picture representing the opening of a valentine, and the second "A good boy's dream."

Herman, the Fatalist, the scene of which is laid in Rome, and "Buckingham," the plot of which is based on the English civil wars, are the titles of two new dramas from the pen of W. G. Wills, the author of "Charles the First" and "Eugene Aram."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Orrville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Ladies in the above handsome carriages may be seen any time during the day in front of 315 Kearny street, near Bush street, waiting (for a few moments) for a dozen or two of those celebrated Written Visiting Cards, so elegantly executed by John P. Dwyer card writer for the Grand Hotel. N. B.—Cards written, engraved or printed in the latest and most fashionable style, handkerchiefs marked, stencil plates neatly cut, and monograms engraved and printed, 11-r

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—An immense audience, comprising the best people of San Francisco, assembled at this house last night, and heartily enjoyed the rendition of "Il Trovatore," by Madame Agatha Stater, Mrs. Geo T. Evans, Signor Pietro Bacosi, Signora Bianchi, Signor Orlandini, Signor Fulvio Rigo and Mons. Charles, for the benefit of Manager Maguire. From beginning to end the performance was a success, and all regretted that it would not be repeated with the same cast at some early date. To-night, the comedy of "Micawber vs. Heep," in which J. P. Burnett has made such a hit as Uriah Heep, and the farce of "Beautiful Forever" will be played. The same bill will constitute the entertainment at the matinee to-day.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—The immense concourse of people assembled in this theatre last night was a worthy tribute to a manager who has spared neither labor nor money to provide amusement for the public. Manager Maguire has seldom taken a benefit, but when he has it is but due to the public to say that it liberally responded. The performance was an excellent one and gave general satisfaction. At the matinee to-day and again this evening the capital bill which has drawn such crowded houses during the week will be presented. It appears in full on our first page.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—At the matinee today and again this evening the highly successful spectacular play of "The Naiad Queen" will be presented with all its rich attractions. The ballet is extremely fine, Mlles Sophia and Betty Rembelsburg, and the charming Mlle Marie Gaugain can scarcely be surpassed in any theatre in the United States in the parade cloches. The Girards, Professor O'Reardon, Harry Clark and Mlle Laura and the grand march of the Amazons are as popular features as ever, and the wonderful mystery of the box and bag is now brought to such perfection as to be as pleasing as it is bewildering.

OPERA NIGHT—CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—On Sunday evening the charming opera of "La Favorita" will be presented, with Madame Inez Fabbri as Leonora, Signor Bacosi as Ferdinand, Signor Orlandini as Alfonso XI., Miss Anna Eliz r as Inez, F. Rigo as Balthazir, and Mons. Charles as Don Gaspar. By permission of Barton Hill the Rommelsburg Sisters and full corps de ballet of the California Theatre will appear in the first and second acts.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The laughable local sketch of "Sally Ann," the acts entitled "Help," "The Siamese Twins," and "Japanese Tommy," and the screaming farce of "The Live Indian," are among the features of the rich entertainment advertised to be given at this house to-night.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETIES.—Leon Samwell in acrobatic feats, Miss Fanny Webster in comic songs, Miss Lizzie Harmon in ballads, and the whole company in the pleasing drama of "Ten Nights in a Barroom," will form part of the bill to-night.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. Ha hour may be profitably spent here.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms Guido Mangenberg & Co the proprietors get up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—The gardens are now in the finest condition. Skating and the Trained Animals every day. A grand performance and the pantomime of 'Les Brigands" and the grand act "Groupe Chinois" Saturday and Sunday.

NOTES.—J. A. Arnold and Blanche Ellerman left for the East this morning. Mr. Arnold goes for the purpose of forming and bringing to San Francisco an English opera and burlesque troupe. He expects to be absent about eight weeks.

On Friday next that most vivacious of actresses and general favorite, Miss Jennie Lee, will take her benefit at the Opera House. Barton Hill, Miss Annie Graham, Henry Edwards, T. J. Buckley and others of the California Theatre have volunteered, and will appear in the third act of "Lorden Assurance," Welch and Rice will appear in song and dance, Signor Pietro Bacosi will sing and altogether a great bill will be presented. The full programme will appear shortly in FIGARO.

Frank Gilder, the pianist, is to have a benefit at Pacific Hall on Friday next, prior to leaving for the East.

John Wilson, the indefatigable manager, is constructing a gorgeous horse-opera house at the corner of Mission and New Montgomery streets. It is no temporary structure, but a stable building (as indeed it should be for horse opera). It is being pushed forward with much energy, and is expected to be ready for opening on the 26th. It will be a very handsome and commodious structure, with substantial shingled roof, and will accommodate a very large number of people. A great company of the best equestrian talent in the East has been engaged, and left New York for this city this morning. Among its members are: Woodie Cook, the famous somersault and bareback performer; Ted O'Brien, the champion leaper of the world; Miss Cooke, equestrienne; and three lady gymnasts.

On Thursday next, Miss Ina D. Coolbrith, one of California's sweetest poets, will be the recipient of a benefit at Platt's Hall, tendered her by the many who have admired her charming verses. Henry Edwards is engineering this affair, and if Platt's Hall be not crammed full we shall have a poor opinion of the public of San Francisco ever more. A very attractive entertainment will be given. It will comprise the comedietta of 'Delicate Ground," by Miss Fanny Cathcart, Henry Edwards, and W. A. Mestayer; "Home, Sweet Home," by Madame Anna Bishop; a cavatina by Miss Anna Elzer; a ballad by Alfred Wilkie, the English tenor; George Darrell in his famous character sketches, and the farce of "Naval Engagement," by Barton Hill, W. Barry, Mrs. Sophie Edwin and Miss Fanny Cathcart. Such a bill should, setting aside the merits of the beneficiary, draw a splendid house.

The Alhambra is shortly to be reconstructed and greatly improved. A new foundation is being built, and the auditorium and stage will be lowered eleven feet. The plan of the former will be the same as in the Opera House, the dress circle and orchestra, being on one floor. The stairways leading to the present dress circle, will be done away with, giving an additional space of ten feet to the body of the house. There will be a separate entrance to the gallery. With these additions to the house it will, when crowded, hold $1500 at the present rates of admission. The brick work will be completed by Stratton Brothers and J. Harris, who have the contract, by next Thursday. In order to complete the alterations the Alhambra will remain closed for a period of four weeks. Due notice will be given of the same.

The bill for next week at the Opera House, will consist of the farce of "B. B." in which J. P. Burnett will appear, and the capital burlesque entitled "Miss Eily O'Connor," an amusing distortion of Boucicault's "Colleen Bawn." Miss Jennie Lee will appear in the role of the ill-used Colleen.

John McCullough is expected to arrive here from New York, on Wednesday next. At least, there ought to be a general turnout of the musician to meet him. Appropriate music, "And we'll all feel gay when Johnnie Comes Marching Home," Mr. McCullough has done honor to California, and the East has endorsed the verdict of the West, in pronouncing him one of the first actors of the day.

Dion Boucicault will commence his engagement at the California Theatre on Monday, the 19th. "Led Astray" will probably be the first piece in which he will appear. "The Colleen Bawn" will be the second and after "Daddy O'Dowd" will be produced. Mr. Boucicault engagement is for two weeks only.

Miss Alice Vane, Fay Templeton and John Templeton will return to San Francisco next week.

Madame Anna Bishop will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at Platt's Hall on the 22d, when the opera of "Norma" will be presented with the beneficiary as the Druid Priestess.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, the managers of the various places of amusement did not reap a rich harvest during the holidays. The Clipper says: A perceptible falling off in the attendance from that of previous years at our places of public amusement was noticeable, both at the matinee and evening performances, on Christmas. Some few places were crowded at night, but the blank look of disappointment was noticeable on the faces of several managers.....At the Grand Opera House, "Humpty Dumpty Abroad," was drawing pretty well.....At Booth's, Chanfrau plays "Kit" for the last time to-night. The stock company have agreed to accept two-thirds salaries.....At Wood's Museum, E. L. Davenport and Mrs. Davenport continued the attractions.....At the Bowery Theatre, the Hernandez Foster Pantomime Troupe, were playing "Mother Goose," and the box and bag trick was an attraction. In addition to the box being corded, a canvas cover was placed over it, and that also was corded to the box, the knots being seal d. The trick was well performed, and created a great sensation.....At the Fifth Avenue Theatre, "Parricide" was played for the last time at the matinee on the 3d, and in the evening Miss Ada Dyas made her first appearance in America, as Anne Sylvester in "Man and Wife".....At Niblo's, "The Children in the Wood" failed to draw, and was to be taken off after the 3d.....The Broadway Theatre closed for the season with the performance of Saturday evening, Dec. 27.....At Wallack's, Boucicault's comedy entitled "A Man of Honor" held the boards.....At the Union Square Theatre, "Led Astray" was drawing good houses in spite of dull times.....At Bryant's Opera House, "Cinderella" with Unsworth, Dan Bryant and Bob Hart in the cast was quite a success.....At the Olympic, "Gabriel Grub" was still playing to good business.....At the Theatre Comique, Harrigan and Hart in a new sketch entitled "The Dutch Hussars, Jennie Worrell and Little Jennie Yeamans, were the new attractions. The box feat was also being performed there.....At the Metropolitan, Charley Howard, the best of all old nigs, was to commence an engagement shortly, and Master Barney and Sam Rickey appeared in 'The Happy Irish Couple."

Messrs. Owen Marlowe, Moses W. Fiske, and W. N. Griffiths were to open Hooley's Brooklyn Opera House on January 5th with dramatic entertainments of a light order.

Salvini took Boston by storm. He played there one week, giving five performances, and the receipts were $15,000. Not that Boston loves Salvini more, but New York less.

The New York Spirit of the Times says: George S. Knight the best Dutch dialect comedian on the variety stage, is at the Alhambra, San Francisco.

Clara Morris had ten people in the parquette one night during her Philadelphia engagement playing the "Geneva Cross." She explained it to a local critic by saying the piece had no force in it and she couldn't do anything with it. If Rowe hears that there will be an interchange of cards. Her benefit, however, when was produced "Article 47," was a crowded triumph.

Matilda Heron being asked if she had known Dion Boucicault for many years, replied: "Yes, I first met him in New Orleans, as the manager of the Varieties Theatre there, many years ago, and I know his history as well as I do my own. As a husband and father he is a noble man; a good noble, domestic man; he is good to his mother—a noble, honorable son, and a loving and affectionate father."

Miss Carlotta LeClerq appeared at the Academy of Music, Indianapolis on the 29th ult. in the "New Magdalen." The Journal says of her: Miss LeClercq's reputation was secured during the time that she was supporting Fechter, and now there is scarcely a lady on the stage who is such an universal favorite. She never fails to please. There is something in the grace and dignity of her presence that touches a sympathetic chord upon her very first appearance; and when the interest in the play is awakened as the dialogue progresses, one becomes bound to her in spirit so closely that every little detail—every item of dress—every gesture and every glance is eagerly and intensely observed. It is doubtful if there be one other woman who can, upon the dramatic stage in America, wield such potent, magical influence over an audience.

The N. Y. Spirit of the Times has, among many others, the following two paragraphs about Dion Boucicault: All the native playwrights who have been trying to get bad pieces produced on the ground that they are native productions, call Boucicault a "D—d Hessian."

Why does Boucicault resemble Shakespeare? Because Shakespeare, if he were alive now, would be as Boucicault is—A Constant Reader of the Spirit.

Tony Pastor, who put upon the road during the past Summer the best variety show that ever traveled in this country, is now busy organizing a company, which he intends shall be equally strong, and which will start on a tour on April 6. Among those already secured are E. D. Davies, ventriloquist, the Garnella Children, acrobats and gymnasts; William Ashcroft, character vocalist; Walters and Morton, song and dance; the Fieldings—John and Maggie—character duettists; Billy Barry, Ethiopian comedian; Ella Wesner, character vocalist; Kitty Brooke, serio-comic, and Larry Tooley, Dutch comique and dancer. Tony Pastor will accompany the troupe and sing at every entertainment.

"The Naiad Queen" has drawn good, but not crowded houses, at the Boston Theatre, Boston, Mass.

The New York Despatch says: Dion Boucicault was among the first stars engaged to appear at the Grand Opera House, now in course of erection in San Francisco. As the theatre will not be completed as soon as he expected, the management has cancelled the engagement with Mr. B.'s consent. Mr. F. W. Bert's contract with Mr. Boucicault for the production of all the latter's plays remains unaffected.

Fechter will remain at the Academy of Music, Chicago, until Jan. 17th. He will appear at Ford's Theatre, Washington, from Jan. 20th to Jan. 31st; Walnut street Theatre, Philadelphia, from Feb. 2d to 14th; Boston Theatre, Feb. 16th to March 17th.

"Led Astray" was the attraction at the National Theatre, Washington.

Miss Jane Coombs commenced an engagement at the Olympic Theatre, St. Louis, on January 5th.

Baby Benson presented Master Tommy Fish, the infant cornetist, with a gold watch and chain as a Christmas present.

The Clipper says:

Chas. Vincent, comedian and character actor, and Amelia Dean, character dancer and comedienne, can be addressed care of this office managers desiring to engage them. Charles ought to come back to San Francisco, open a variety theatre and engage himself. He must bring some money with him, however. People want some.

The New York Clipper has an obituary notice of Elise Holt, which will be read with interest by many who admired the sprightly little actress, and regret her early death. We extract from it: Elise Holt, who is known in private life as Mrs. Horace Wall, died of typhoid pneumonia, at Pittsburg, Pa., at nine o'clock Sunday evening, Dec. 28. She was born in London, Eng., July 11, 1847, and was in the twenty-seventh year of her age. She made her first appearance in public in 1863, singing a comic song at the Surrey Gardens, in her native city under the direction of Mlle. Louise, a dancer, whose pupil Miss Holt afterwards became. Later she appeared as the principal dancer at the Victoria. Subsequently she married Mr. Palmer. On Dec. 7, 1868, she came to America as the chief feature of a burlesque company, which had been engaged in England by Mr. Horace Wall. She made her American debut at the Olympic Theatre, Boston, Mass., Dec. 21, 1868, in the burlesque of "Lucretia Borgia, M. D.," and became a great favorite with the public there. The troupe subsequently came to New York, and afterwards Kelly & Leon's Minstrel Hall. They then performed in Philadelphia, and then went to California, where Miss Holt procured a divorce from Mr. Palmer, and sometime thereafter was married to Mr. Horace Wall. They went to England, whence Mr. Wall returned in 1872 as business manager of Dion Boucicault. In 1873 Miss Holt returned, and played a starring engagement which ended so sadly in Pittsburg. Miss Holt was of an amiable disposition, vivacious and speedily made friends of those with whom she came in contact. She left a little daughter and some relatives residing in England.

Mr. Lawrence Barrett, Charleston, Jan. 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th; Savannah, 9th and 10th.

The Spirit of the Times says of Fechter: Fat, fair, flaxen-haired Fechter will probably die as he has lived—a gay, gallant, daring Lothario. Age cannot wither or custom stale his infinite vanity. His last escapade is just now town talk, and his hasty, not to say precipitate flight is strong presumptive evidence against him. His hurried departure was caused by the presence of an official having a warrant for his arrest, procured upon the affidavit of the husband of an actress well-known to theatre-goers. She had been playing with Mr. Fechter for nearly two years in the leading parts, while her husband was acting as his agent in Europe. Meantime Mr. Fechter took up his abode in Bravoort place with the mother-in-law of the actress. The husband returned, and the close attentions paid his wife by Fechter soon created a suspicion. About two weeks ago he procured a warrant, but Fechter was made aware of the fact, and a sharp lookout kept for the officer, and when the latter made his appearance at the theatre on that night the rotor hurriedly passed out at the private entrance in Fifteenth street, and has not since been seen. The wife has also fled. We regret this unhappy occurrence the more, as we meant to have interviewed him next week.

In Philadelphia, holiday bills are announced at the various theatre. "Lady Godiva," with Miss Wionette Montague in the title role, and Miss Edith Challis as St. George, with a stud of horses from Forepaugh's circus, is at the Chestnut street. "The Three Dwarfs," with Robert Butler as clown, in the Christmas pantomime at Fox's. J. K. Emmet appears in a new custom-made play, "Max, the Merry Swiss Boy," at the Walnut-street. Augustin Daly's "Flash of Lightning" is the sensation at the Arch street. Miss Charlotte Cushman read from "Much Ado About Nothing," at the Academy of Music, on the 27th ult. Edwin Booth began an engagement, on the 27th ult., at the Walnut, as Shylock, in the "Merchant of Venice."

Miss Clara Louise Kellogg and her opera company will be in Baltimore during the week commencing Jan. 12.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

This house is crowded every night, as indeed it should be, considering the great combination of artistes engaged there. To-night Con. T. Murphy, Billy Manning, Billy Sweatnam, W. F. Baker and J. G. Russell will appear in the first part. After this, the Siegrist Children, Louie and Thomas, aged respectively 7 and 5½ years, will perform on the double trapeze. Welch and Rice in song and dance, Ella Wesner in her charges, Geo. S Knight in his Dutch specialities, and the Siegrists and their dogs will make up an excellent entertainment.

California Theatre.

The beautiful spectacle of "The Naiad Queen" enters upon its last week to-night with as good a prospect of crowded houses as on the night of its production. Soon the charming Lurline and handsome Rupert must disappear from public gaze, the ballet will be a thing of the past, the Girards will give their last kicks on the stage of the California Theatre, and Prof. O'Reardon's Tumbleronicon will be heard no more. The public must enjoy this splendid entertainment while it lasts. Those who have been once to see it will go again. The box and bag mystery now works smoothly and astonishes all who see it.

Opera House.

A very bright and sparkling entertainment will be given at this house to-night. It will commence with the lively farce of "B. B." with J. P. Burnett as Bob Battles. After this "Miss Eily O'Connor" a capital burlesque of Dion Boucicault's play entitled "The Colleen Bawn" with John Howson as the ill treated heroine, the dashing little Jennie Lee as Miles na Coppaleen, Miss Fanny Young as Hardress Oregan, W. Simms as Danny Mann, Miss Fanny Gibson as Miss Ann Chute, Harry Thompson as Mr. Corrigan, Mrs. Julia Melville as Mrs. Oregan, Miss L. Vavsour as Kyrle Daley and J. Robinson as Sergeant O'Tooraloolal. "Miss Eily O'Connor" abounds in fun and good music and the public being familiar with the play on which it is founded it is sure to be popular.

Bella Union.

Moore and Bray in song and dance, Miss Susie Robieson in comic songs, Kelly, Nickerson and Ritchie in "Help," Miss Jennie Johnson, Tommy Bree, John Woodard and others in "Sally Ann," Cassim and Fritz in gymnastics, Miss Laura Berron in ballads, Matt Kelly, Tommy Barton Miss Nellie Howard and others in "The Live Indian," and a great variety of other performances will be given to-night.

Buckley's Varieties.

Leon Samwells in acrobatic feats, Miss Lizzie Harmon in ballads, Parks, Dixion, Foster and Devoy in acts, Mortimore in sketches, and a great number of others in brilliant specialties will amuse those who visit this house to-night.

Woodward's Gardens.

UBI PRUDENTIA.

"Nay, nay, dearest Alfred," said Clara, so sweet,
"I cannot adopt your suggestion,
'Tis charming to see such a duck at one's feet,
But marriage is out of the question.

"I've promised Sir Peter, he's three times my age,
Rather grumpy and awfully yellow,
But his book at his banker's—he showed me a page—
Were it yours, you dear pauniless fellow!

"Now please do not scowl, but behave as you should.
The chances of life are all reckoned;
When anything happens to him, if you're good,
Come and ask me to make you my second."

Unnumbered Kisses.

The Sacramento Bee publishes the following:—

Old time Sacramentans will remember Samuel Colville and his charming wife, Miss Mary Prevost. Their daughter, Miss Violetta Colville, is spoken of by the Eastern papers as displaying a wonderful musical ability (she being at the present time at school in Milan), and whose voice and style are said to be captivating. Once upon a time, long years ago, Julia Dean Hayne played an engagement at the Forrest Theatre, and Mary Prevost ran an opposition at the Metropolitan. Both places were crowded nightly, but Mary's song of "Unnumbered Kisses" captivated all Sacramento, and if her daughter can sing it half as well as her mother, she will be a trump card, sure enough. We give it below, as it has not been in print for years. We copy from an old newspaper the following:

"AN EXCELLENT SONG.—Unnumbered thanks to Miss Mary Prevost for her 'Unnumbered Kisses.' Three more exquisitely beautiful verses than those which compose her song were never penned. It is now printed with the accompanying music, and a good likeness of the fair authoress for the frontispiece."

Come, birdie, and give me a kiss, love,
For sweeter, sure girl never gave;
But why, in the midst of my bliss, love,
Would you ask me how many I'd have?
I'm not to be stinted in kisses,
So, prithee, dear birdie, be kind,
For while I love thee without measure,
To numbers I'll ne'er be confined.

Count the bees that on Hybla are flying;
Count the flowers that enamel the fields;
Count the flocks that on Tempe are straying
Or the grain that rich Sicily yields;
Count how many stars are in heaven;
Go number the sands on the shore,
And when so many you've given,
I still shall be asking for more.

To a heart full of love let me hold thee—
To a heart which, dear birdie, is thine—
In my arms let me ever enfold thee,
And encircle thee round like a vine.
What joy can be greater than this is?
My life on thy lips shall be spent—
For the wretch who can number his kisses,
Will always with few be content.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Misunderstanding.

A cross-eyed man cast a gloom over a street car last Wednesday, by addressing one of seven men, and strangers, on the opposite seat, asking him if he had any chewing tobacco handy. First, the seven strangers looked at each other. Then seven hands went pocketward, and, upon observing this motion, each one of the seven supposed his neighbor the one spoken, and the seven hands returned empty. The cross-eyed man cast a richochet glance of indignation along the line, and, with the remark, "A sweet-scented lot of generous roosters," took a chew of his own tobacco.

The Car Conductor.

Mr. Cowdery of the Assembly, thinks that the hours which car conductors, and drivers have to work, are too long. Some people insist that eight hours a day should be the rule. These when they learn that the class for whom Mr. Cowdery pleads work sixteen, will, we imagine, think it is time that something was done for them. One line of cars now exacts nineteen hour's work from its employees! The companies say "if our men dont want to work such long hours they need not; they can quit, and we can immediately fill their places." This is true. There are hundreds of men waiting for vacancies on the cars. They do not intend to remain car conductors all their lives, but they wish to get these positions, and keep them until something better turns up. If the companies would make the position of a car conductor more remunerative, and less irksome, they would be better served. As it is, they hire one man to act as conductor, and another to watch him to see that he does not steal. This is poor economy. We hope Mr. Cowdery will succeed in bringing the street railroad companies to a sense of what is right

A Job for Cowdery.

Cowdery of San Francisco is working hard in the Assembly. When he has introduced all the bills he has at present on hand, we have another for him. It is a disgrace to the State of California, that adulteration of food, is carried to the extent it is, and the law affords no protection to purchasers. An act to prevent adulterations, and imitations of food is a necessity. There is actually in this city a company engaged in making a greasy substance from the fat of animals, which it sells as "California butter." This would be allowed in no other part of the world. Chiccory, should not be allowed to be sold for coffee, acetic acid for wine vinegar, salt for saleratus, or dog and cat fat for butter. As Mr. Pickering would say: "Will Mr. Cowdery introduce a bill to prevent adulteration?

War Declared.

And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men perfer to go
And get an oyster stew

So elegant and new.
Here man can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and diff'rent kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Adm ts the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.

It never can be beat.

Willkie Collins Interviewed.

A reporter of the New York Spirit of the Times tells how he interviewed Wilkie Collins. He says:

Accompanied by Manager John McCullough, who enjoys the personal acquaintance of the distinguished novelist, we drove to Westminister Hotel, where Mr. Collins resides when in the city, probably because Dickens stopped there. Hotel clerks, as a rule, are a haughty, reserved, self-absorbed caste; but there was a remoteness, a bevery—careful—how—you—address—me sort of manner, a "far-away Moses," look about the Westminister Brahmin, whom we found at his post, extremely suggestive of that early Spanish King who scorched himself to death sooner than the ring with his own regal hand for a fire-screen.

After a graphic account of the terrors of this being the reporter continues:

Mr. McCullough commenced to sing 'Wearing of the Green" in his gladiator voice, while we beat a cheering and stirring accompaniment on an adjacent cluster of steam pipes, with a blackthorn Barney Williams gave us, the two of us making a duet of racket which would have driven Bob Sawyer and Mr. Ben Allen wild with envy. This fetched him. The Iceberg broke from its mooring and floated grandly, coldly resistlessly towards us. As McCullough said afterward, "He didn't walk, he glode." When he reached the counter, against which he brought up as an iceberg might when it collides with a continent, he looked upon us with the fixed, far-seeing, passionless gaze of the sphinx, and said never a word. Mr. McCullough meekly inquired if Mr. Wilkie Collins was "at home." The Brahmin relaxed enough to say that he believed there was such a man in the house. One of Barney Williams' countrymen, who has just come over to learn the trade of an alderman, speedily returned with an invitation from Mr. Collins to "come up;" and harrowing the Brahmin's feelings by remarking in a stage aside that the house smelt of fish-balls, we went up.

Having reached the room the following occured:

W. C.—You see I know you; but I never was 'interviewed.' I don't know how to go about it."

CRITIC.—You are not being 'interviewed,' Mr. Collins, in the usual acceptation of the term as established by the 'Paul Pry' system of the dailies. The Spirit cares only to know your views on literature, art and stage questions of which you are so distinguished an exponent. If you had committed a murder or eloped with another man's wife, we certainly would not "interview" you. But you have written a book and a play, and those are cases in which, in our judgement, the "interview" system becomes a pleasant and instructive mode of public teaching.

W. C.—"Pistol thou reasonest well." What would you have me do?

CRITIC.—Tell me about the "New Magdalan."

W. C.—Mr. McCullough there knows as much about the hardships of that case as I do. I wrote the play for Miss Leclerq. She paid me for it. Before it could be even produced a swarm of "imitations," or "adaptations," as they call them, sprang up all over the country. The value of the original play was gone. Miss LeClercq was engaged to play among other engagements with Mr. McCullough, and the engagement had to be broken at a great loss. I gave back Miss LeClercq the money she had paid me, as a matter of common honesty. I had no redress. The book was written in England, and had not even as much protection here as is given to game birds and wild animals. Now, if I want to write a play for this country it must either be original in story as well as stage treatment, or I must write a book story in this country.

CRITIC.—Does not the same state of things exist between England and France?

W. C.—Not the same state of things; no! There is no international copyright law, but if a publisher there takes my books he pays me for them. A publisher in Philadelphia has the hardihood to now announce a complete and cheap edition of my works, when he knows that I am personally supervising an edition on my own behalf for my authorized publishers. It is a hard case, and not at all a reputable one. You cannot expect to have a good school of purely American author so long as your publishers can select from the literature of the world without price.

CRITIC.—You are announced to read in New England by the Authors' Bureau.

W. C.—I am to read in Boston and other cities, but not under the management of that association. Their method of conducting business did not suit me, and I annulled the connection I had with them.

CRITIC.—And New York theatres; do you like them?

W. C.—Of course; they are modern structures, built without regard to cost. Why should they not be well adapted to the purpose for which they were intended? English theatres are not nearly so comfortable or safe, although, as a rule, they have more stage room.

CRITIC.—Mr. Collins, do you think Mr. Boucicault resembles Shakespeare?

W. C.—In many respects. Both are English. Both wrote plays. Both played in their own pieces. Both were accused of appropriating from foreign sources—Shakespeare from Italian stories, Boucicault from the French. There are many points of resemblance. By the by, there is a deal of cant about "originality." What is originality? (We instantly give it up, not being there to furnish Mr. Collins information.) Originality, serenely continued the novelist, originality in a play-writer is the quality of presenting new ideas—of weaving a plot with which one is familiar, at least so far as the play-writer knows. That, though, is one unfortunate reason why the fabric of so many plays is so flimsy, while the dialogue and situations are often good. The rude miner may dig from the earth the gold, but it needs be trained and skillful artisan to fashion it into artistic shape and form. Some "original" critics have recently much bepraised the late T. W. Robertson for originality, mentioning "School." not knowing that it is from the German, as much as "The Woman in White," is from my book.

CRITIC.—Now, Mr. Collins, please look over this MSS, and if you find a word there you haven't said or would not wish said, scratch it.

W. C. (after attentive and seemingly pleased perusal).—There is nothing to correct. Where you have changed a word it has been for the better.

We bade Mr. Collins adieu, apologizing for our lengthy visit, and awakening Manager McCullough politely writ drew.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The last nights of "The Maid Queen," the last nights of the box and big feat, the last nights of the ballet, last nights of the Girards, last nights of the Tumblerontoon. These last nights will be enjoyed by large audiences. It must be at least a year before such a rich and varied entertainment is presented at this house again.

Opera House.

One of the most enjoyable performances presented at this house in some time, was given last night. It commenced with the very amusing farce of "B. B.," in which J. P. Burnett as Bob Battles, a retired prize-fighter, did some capital acting, and was ably supported by H. D. Thompson, J. Robinson, W. Simms and others. After this, H. J. Byron's very amusing musical extravaganza founded on "the Colleen Bawn," and entitled "Miss Eily O'Connor" was performed. John Howson who has no equal on the stage, in extravagant, burlesque female characters made the audience fairly scream with laughter, at his impersonation of the wronged Miss Eily O'Connor, Miss Jennie Lee as Miles na Coppaleen, was a broth of a boy, and played the part in a manner with which the author of the original character could not possibly find fault. She sang "Wearing of the Green" with effect and "What will do Love?" with much sweetness. W. Simms was very amusing as Danny Mann. Harry Thompson, always good in strong burlesque parts was excellent. Mr. Corrigan, Miss Fanny Young gave a capable impersonation of the heartless Hardress Oregan. Miss L. Vavasour as the soft Kyrle Daly realized the character. J. Robinson was very amusing as Sergeant O'Toorallodal. Mrs. Julia Melville was very effective as Mrs. Oregan for which parts she made up admirably, and Miss Fanny Gibson as the dashing Ann Chute was very good. The same bill will be performed to-night, and should draw a crowded house. On Friday that charming comedian Miss Jennie Lee will take her benefit. See programme of attractions on first page.

Alhambra Theatre.

Such a performance as is given at this house is witnessed at few variety theatres in the United States. Billy Sweatnam, Billy Manning, Ella Wesner, Con. T. Murphy, Welsh and Rice, the Siegrists and George S. Knight are all stars of the first magnitude. The performance given last night drew shoots of applause and laughter. same excellent bill will be performed to-night.

Platt's Hall.

On Thursday evening, a benefit to Miss Ina D. Coolbrith will be given at this hall. The programme, which appears in another column, will comprise the comedietta of "Delicate Ground," by Henry Edwards, W. A. Mestayer and Miss Fanny Cathcart; an original poem by J. F. Bowman, recited by Henry Edwards; "Home, Sweet Home," sung by Madame Anna Bishop, George Darrell in his very popular character sketches; "La Generentola" by Miss Anna Elzer; a humorous recitation by Barton Hill; a song by Alfred Wilkie; recitation of "Annie and Willie's Prayer," by Miss Sophie Edwin, and the comedy of "The Mexican Tigress" by Miss Fanny Cathcart, George Darrell and W. Barry. If the public come forward as liberally as the dramatic and musical talents have, the gifted poetess will be the recipient of an ovation which will do honor to San Francisco. Bummer W. Bugbee who is manager will see that the fashionable world is well represented.

Bella Union.

Cassim and Fritz in "Spider and Fool," Kelly, Nickerson and Ritchie in "Help," Miss Jennie Johnson and others in "Sally Ann," Miss Nellie Howard, Matt Kelly, Fred Ritchie, Tommy Bree and others in "The Live Indian," and a great variety of performances will be given at this house to-night. Johnny Thers will re-appear on the stage of this theatre on Friday evening, January 16th.

Notes.

The operatic performance at the California Theatre on Sunday night, was an immense success. The opera of "La Favorita" was capitally by Madame Inez Fabbri, Signor Pietro Bacci, Signor Orlandini, Miss Anna Elzer and others, and the ballet by the Rommelsburg Sisters and corps de ballet of the house, added much to the attraction. The theatre was crowded to overflowing. Another performance will be given next Sunday, when a favorite opera will be presented.

The bal masque of the Oriental Club, which is to take place at the California Theatre, on Thursday evening, January 29th, will be a grand affair. Applications for tickets will be received by members of the committee, or by M. Brandt, corner of Washington and Montgomery streets.

During the engagement of Dion Boucicault at the California Theatre, which will commence on Monday next, he will appear in "Daddy O'Dowd," "The Colleen Bawn," "Kerry," and "Arrah na Pogue." The engagement is necessarily limited to twelve nights.

Alfred Wilkie, the tenor of the late Anna Bishop Concert Troupe, has been engaged to sing in the choir of the Howard-Street Presbyterian Church.

Frank Gilder, the pianist, will give a piano forte recital at Pacific Hall, on Friday next, prior to leaving for the East. Mr. Gilder is a fine artist and the many who have been pleased with his performances will see that he has a good house.

The California Theatre Boat Club distinguished itself at Vallejo on Sunday in a lapstreak race of three miles with the Alerts of that city. The crew of each was as follows: California Theatre Boat Club pulled the lapstreak "May Howard"—Captain and bow-oar, P. M. Brown; midship, T. Andrews; second stroke, H. C. Mestayer; stroke, Thos. Gossman. Alert Boat Club, of Vallejo, pulled the lapstreak "Farragut." Their crew consisted of G. Gorham, Captain and bow-oar; T. Bromley, midship; J. McKnight, second stroke; Harry Brown, stroke. The Californians pulled the three miles in twenty-one minutes and twenty seconds.

The telegraph brings tidings of the death of the Child American, the infant violinist, who performed here about a year ago. It took place on Saturday, in Boston, where he was playing in the "Naiad Queen." He woke suddenly in the night, uttered an exclamation and died. He was a bright and remarkable child, and his early death is a loss to the profession.

Woodward's Gardens.

A large number of beautiful birds have been added among them a sacred pigeon from the Solomon Island, also Vampire, and a St. Benard dog from the Hospice of St. Bernard in the Alps. On Saturday and Sunday the Box and Bag Mystery, the pantomime "Les Modestes and "Groupe Obligo."

Backley's Varieties.

Miss Lizzie Harmon, George H. Foster, Frank Mortimore, Leon Samwelle, Miss Maggie St. Clair, and a host of others will appear to-night in a great bill, which is published on our first page.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An error may be practicable, even here.

LITTLE GIRL.

BY AUGUSTA CHAMBERS.

Who is it, when the night-fall gray
Leans loving, dusky cheek to day,
With slippered feet, through garden aisle,
Steals down to watch the gate awhile?
Little girl.

Who when the stars have, one by one,
Completely trimmed night's robe of dun,
Grown tip-toe with impatience stands,
Rose-garnered and clasping hands,
Little girl.

Who, when a step at last is heard,
With heart afluttor like a bird,
Yet feigning just a tiny pout,
Prepares to look a bit "put out,"
Little girl.

Who is it, with unpleased surprise,
On glancing up, poor Jones descries,
And then, with look, become irate,
Frowns down prospective tete-a-tete?
Little girl.

Who, after Jones exhausts "the moon,"
And thinks we'll have a "Norther soon,"
Benumbs him with a chill "good night,"
And puts poor Jones to instant flight?
Little girl?

Who, after he pursues his way—
Without another word to say—
Coquets, when some one o'er the gate
Just whispers, "dearest, am I late?"
Little girl.

"You are a trifle late, 'tis true,
But then to give to Jones his due—
So well he entertained me, dear—
I hardly knew that you were here."
O, Little girl!

A book of Euclid at the best,
O! one with understanding blest
You'd puzzle, let alone a man
Who only loves you all he can,
Little girl.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men perfer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low

The Old Kentucky Home.

The old Kentucky home is a very fine thing to read of in song but when that home is liable to be visited at any time by a party of gentlemen who call themselves Vigilants, and who carry off all your stray property, and fill you full of shot and bowie-knife points, and end by setting fire to the house, the Kentucky home begin to look a little dreary; and if you happened to be in some other place you wouldn't think yourselves harshly treated.

TUESDAY .....JANUARY 13, 1874

So Nice.

When we want to find a really "nice word something out of the common, we don't look in the dictionary for it, we simple refer to the Call's dramatic column on Monday. Yesterday we found:

Professor O'Reardon continues to elicit loud applause by the really beautiful music he deduces from the tumblers.

Last night we thought we'd try the effect of this on a young lady. We said "Miss Julia will you be seated at the piano, and deduce from it the delicious music which you are so capable of eliciting." She stared at us wildly, and then went and spoke to her father who is one of the deacons of St. Judas' Church, on Fifty-second street. He shook his head gravely, and then putting on his vestry air approached me, and said, "Hope what my daughter tells me is not true, hope there is some mistake, and that she misunderstood your language. Setting aside the fact that such language is not Christian, it is ungentlemanly, and I should suppose you capable of understanding that." "What did I say?" I asked. "Julia informs me," said the old gentleman that you said something to her about the "deuce" which is merely another name for the author of all evil." I hastened to explain that I had not used the objectionable expression, but had asked Miss Julia to "deduce music from the piano." The old gentleman looked at me sadly, but forgivingly and left me. He rejoined his daughter, and I saw him tapping his forehead significently, and drew from that gesture the conclusion that he was informing Julia that I was not wicked, only weak headed. I "deduced" this, and it was not long before I elicted myself from the house. Those words look pretty well in print, but they are not suitable for conversation at an evening party made up of ordinary people.

A Relentless Woman.

Some one, an abandoned wife of course, writes as follows to the New York Dispatch:

"Can a woman who has had her husband arrested and committed to the Island for one year for abandonment, have him re-arrested at the expiration of that term if he continues to stay away from, and fail to support her, or can a man be punished twice for the same offence?"

That relentless woman is waiting until the poor husband comes off the Island to go for him and send him back again. She thinks that he ought to return to her full of love and devotion, and if he does not do so she will compel him by law. The Dispatch strengthens her in her determination by saying:

"The husband certainly can be again arrested and punished, in which case it would not be double punishment for one offence, but punishment for a continuation of the same offence."

"Those whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder." That poor wretch of a husband will go back to the Island, sure.

Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. S. H. Lowell's Institute, 316 Kearny street, from 9 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. Reference never required. s

Nutmegs.

[From the Danbury News, Jan. 3d.]

The coming tailor will incorporate a square of sand paper in smoker's pants.

A conspicuous object in a neighborhood is a peacock whose voice is changing.

The mother-in-law we hear so much of appears to be the husband's. Isn't there an occasional wife who has a mother-in-law?

A smart Danbury woman does the work for a family of nine, milks two cows, and keeps track of thirteen continued stories.

Dion Bouicault puts himself in direct opposition to any attempt on the part of the American people to make his birthday a legal holiday.

The impulsive clerk who accidentally deposits a shovel of snow down the back of the rural pedestrain, was in the drug store, Saturday evening, negotiating for a bottle of liniment.

A Danbury man, having given up all hopes of a war with Spain, has consented to accept a position on a Mawson meat-cart. Some people naturally incline to gore.

"The days are growing longer," observed Mr. Spriggs to his family, Friday morning. "Yes, I have noticed it," interrupted the aunt. "They are a half a minute longer," added Mr. Spriggs, in the same tone of voice. As no reply was needed to this, the aunt made none.

An Essex street lady, sitting in her parlor, and engaged in dreamy contemplation of the moustache of the young gentleman who was to escort her and her sister to the festival, was suddenly awakened by the ominous whisper, in a juvenile voice, at the door: "You've got Ann's teeth, an' she wants 'em."

One of our young legal gentleman substituted a cuspidor for the old-fashioned receptacle. Within an hour after the purchase, two freshly-lighted twenty-cent cigars rolled of the desk, and disappeared in its yawning mouth. Shortly after, a letter from his affianced, enclosing a photograph, got jogged off, and shot into the same chasm. Then he took the cuspid r into the yard, and attacked it with an axe.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that wineow seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

The screaming farce of "B. B." in which J. P. Burnett gives such an admirable representation of a retired prize-fighter, and the very clever burlesque entitled "Miss Eily O'Connor," with John Howson as the heroine, and Miss Jennie Lee as Miles Na Coppaleen, will be given to-night.

Alhambra Theatre.

Sweatnam and Manning, Con. T. Murphy, Ella Wesner, George S. K ght, and the wonderful Siegrist Family will all appear to-night in a great bill.

California Theatre.

Only a few nights more will "The Naiad Queen," with its many attractions, delight the public. It will be performed to-night. The last matinee will be given on Saturday.

Benefit of Miss Jennie Lee.

The charming comedienne of the Opera House will take a benefit on Friday night. The programme, which appears on our first page, is a very attractive one, and should draw an immense house

Dion Boucicault.

This al ro is a playwright and clever actor, who will, on Monday evening next, appear before the public of San Francisco, is at present engaged in writing a local sketch, in which to introduce himself, will make his first appearance in propria personæ, as Dion Boucicault the playwright. This is an excellent idea, and will take well with the public. In the sketch, Mr. Boucicault and Barton Hill will be discovered on the stage, the former will be interviewed respecting his impressions of San Francisco, affording an opportunity for the local illusions in which the public so much delight. Barton Hill's troubles as a Manager will be illustrated by the entrance of a young lady who is desirous of making her debut on the California stage, and who is considered—by her friends—the best Lady Gay Spanker living. This will afford Mr. Boucicault an opportunity of telling how HE thinks Lady Gay Spanker should be played. The above will give an idea of the pleasant morceau which Mr. Boucicault is at present preparing for the people of San Francisco. He never fails to suit the public taste, and this idea is a positive inspiration.

Buckley's Varieties.

Bright first part, brilliant interlude and screaming afterpiece, make an evening spent at this house pass pleasantly. Miss Lizzie Harmon, Leon Sam-wells, Frank Mortimore and other favorites appear.

Bella Union.

"Sally Ann," "The Live Indian," "Help," "The Siamese Twins," and "Japanese Tommy," are a few of the attractions at this popular variety theatre, which is crowded nightly.

Platt's Hall.

On Thursday evening, a benefit to Miss Ina D. Coolbrith will be given at this hall. The programme, which appears in another column, will comprise the comedietta of "Delicate Ground," by Henry Edwards, W. A. Mestayer and Miss Fanny Cathcart; an original poem by J. F. Bowman, recited by Henry Edwards; "Home, Sweet Home," sung by Madame Anna Bishop, George Darrell in his very popular character sketches; "La Cenerentola" by Miss Anna Eiser; a humorous recitation by Barton Hill; a song by Alfred Wilkie; recitation of "Annie and Willie's Prayer," by Miss Sophie Edwin, and the comedy of "The Mexican Tigress" by Miss Fanny Cathcart, George Darrell and W. Barry. If the public come forward as liberally as the dramatic and musical professions have, the gifted poetess will be the recipient of an ovation which will do honor to San Francisco. Summer W. Bugbee who is manager will see that the fashionable world is well represented.

Woodward's Gardens.

A large number of beautiful birds have been added among them a sacred pigeon from the Solomon Island, also Vampire, and a St. Benard dog from the Hospice of St. Bernard in the Alps. On Saturday and Sunday the Box and Bag Mystery, the pantomime "Les Modestes and "Groupe Chinoise.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410. below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Might to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

How I Made $30.

HIDDEN GRIEF.

"Darling," he said, "I never meant
To hurt you;" and his eyes were wet.
"I would not hurt you for the world;
Am I to blame if I forget?"

"Forgive my selfish tears!" she cried,
"Forgive! I know that it was not
Because you meant to hurt me, sweet—
I knew it was that you forgot!"

Yet all the same there rankled deep
A thought which made her love recoil—
"He might have begged more tenderly,
And been more mindful of my toil."

Deaf and Dumb.

Jones went out to the Deaf and Dumb Asylum on Thursday, to inspect the institution. Upon entering, he encountered a man, evidently an inmate, and he at once endeavored to explain to the man, by making signs upon his fingers, that he wanted to look through the place. The man also made signs which Jones could not comprehend. Then Jones made other and more elaborate motions, which set the man at work with greater violence, and for the next half hour they stood in the hall, gesticulating and twisting their fingers, without either being able to comprehend what the other meant. Finally, Jones became angry, and, in an outburst of passion, exclaimed:

"Oh, get out, you idiot! I'm tired of bothering with you."

Thereupon the man said:

"That's just what I was going to say about you."

"Oh, you can speak, can you? Then why in thunder didn't you say so, and not keep me standing here motioning to you? I thought you were deaf and dumb."

"And I thought you were," said the man.

"I came here to inspect the asylum," said Jones, "and I took you for a patient."

"That's what I came here for, and I thought you were an attendant," said the man.

Here Jones and the man shook hands, and hunted up a genuine attendant, and went away happy. After this, Jones will always use his tongue first, no matter where he is.

A Moderate Demand.

"Mrs. Scott-Siddons was telegraphed to know her terms to play Miranda in the "Tempest" before the arrival of Miss Fiddes. Her reply was—"$1,000 a week, third of the house clear once a week, $1,000 to break an engagement in St. Louis, and railroad expenses for three people from New Orleans." The manager replied:

"Madame—Your terms are much to low. You shall have all that comes in the house Mr. Fisk will present you with the Opera House and 200 miles of the Erie railraway, besides what personal property he has accumulated in a life of toil and self-denial; also all that he may make for the next five years, which, if we may judge by the past, will be no inconsiderable amount. If these terms should not meet with your approbation it may be possible to make Gould give up what little he has, that the light of you refulgent genius may not be lost to the stage."

Still Worse.

Somebody said: "The worst use you can make of a man is to hang him." We don't think so. We know a man who is put at much worse use: He writes poetry, and plays the accordeon.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.

A High-Priced Woman.

Some people are not lacking in cheek. There is one of that sort in Indiana. A female one. She asks $100,000 for breach of promise. She thinks her society worth something in a State where marriages generally last about six months. She is probably a relative of the man to whom an acquaintance remarked: "I'd like to buy you at my valuation of you, and sell you at your own. I'd get rich mighty soon."

A Persistent Man.

The Indianapolis, Ind., News says, that a gentleman in Spencer county has married and buried three sisters, and is now skirmishing around to find another family to devastate.

Lyman's Great Discovery

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. L. Lyman's wonderful discovery stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Just So.

"Tom A. Hawk" in the Golden Era says:

Boucicault has arrived in town—Boucicault the great; the man who supplies the English and American stage with plays. Boucicault is a great man, and generally his plays stick; but in case anything should happen to fail him, Johns, of the FIGARO, will be ready with a play of his own. So the public need not fear disappointment. Johns can write a play at an hour's notice.

Yes, and if necessary, we shall do so. At present we have no ready-made goods of that description on hand—no misfits—so if Mr. Boucicault should really require a play he would have to step round to the FIGARO office and be measured for one. However, we don't think Mr. Boucicault will require our assistance. There is some difference between Dion Boucicault and Charles Gayler—about as much as there is between a nightingale and a mud hen.

The Giddy Waltz.

The Alta says:

The young California composer, James A. Kerr, has completed a beautiful new waltz, entitled "Father's at Sea," which is destined to be very popular.

"Father's Half Sea's Over" we could understand as a title for a waltz as that could be simply a euphemism for "The Old Man's Drunk Again." A waltz is an inebriated sort of dance. We cannot understand why a waltz should have such a title as "Father's at Sea" unless the explaination is the one we have given above.

He Did Not Linger.

"Linger not, darling," she said to him as he stood on the stoop pressing her hand before he bade her farewell for the evening. He did not linger. He saw the old man coming up the street at a rapid gait. He lingered only long enough to pull his hat down over his eyes, spit on his hands, and then jump to the sidewalk. The old man does wear such heavy boots.

The Secret of Sothern's Success.

The veteran actor C. W. Couldock tells the following story of the beginning of Sothern's successful career:

"In 1859, just after the terrible panic, I was playing in New York City with Laura Keene. Sothern was with us. One day Miss Keene handed me the new play, "The American Cousin." I was assigned the part of Abel Murcott. It was then a prominent part—had not been cut down to what it now is. I took the play and read it. I considered it a Yankee farce, and said I wouldn't play in it. Sothern came storming into my room and said he wouldn't play Dundreary. We declared we'd throw up our engagements. Then Miss Keene came about to pacify us, and begged us not to leave her. She said we could change the parts to suit ourselves. She would not hear of our throwing up engagements. The play was to run only a week, and she thought it would make a hit. Finally we yielded. Well, when Sothern came upon the stage as Dundreary for the first time, he happened to sneeze, and the audience laughed. So he introduced sneezing into his part. A night or two afterwards he happened to trip over a piece of carpeting as he was coming upon the stage, and the audience laughed. So he introduced the skip that causes so much merriment. Again he forgot his part one evening and stammered. The people roared with laughter. After that Dundreary was a stutterer. He stumbled into the very eccentricities that have made his fortune. I'm glad he's doing so well. You know it's a mark of genius to avail one's self of an opportunity when that opportunity presents itself. That's the secret of friend Sothern's success."

The World is Round.

The Marysville Appeal is responsible for the following:

On New Year's Eve a happy joke was perpetrated by some stranger who had been "taking too much of the critter," and who was with much effort barely enabled to keep his feet. The stranger approaching a well-known citizen, said: "See here, [hic] stranger. I'm satisfied [hic] of one scientific [hic] fact." "What discovery have you made?" inquired the citizen addressed. "Why look, look a-here, [hic] it is claimed [hic] this earth [hic] is round; and from the effort I find to walk upon it, I am fully convinced [hic] of the geolog-hic-al fact." And the fellow, as if conscious of discovering a fact only second to Newton's law of attraction, walked off like an acrobat in his first effort to balance himself on a wooden globe.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
He'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, he found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To 316 one hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Ladies in the above handsome carriages may be seen any time during the day in front of 315 Kearny street, near Bush street, waiting (for a few moments) for a dozen or two of those celebrated Written Visiting Cards, so elegantly executed by John P. Dwyer, card writer for the Grand Hotel. N. B.—Cards written, engraved or printed in the latest and most fashionable tyle, handkerchiefs marked, stencil plates neatly cut, and monograms engraved and printed. 11-T

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Haas are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-T

Holiday Hats.

Certainly a new hat is about as pleasant a holiday gift as can be imagined. There is an immense stock of Hats to select from at "The Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second hat store below Kearny). The newest styles a reasonable prices. 12-J

A Really Choice Cigar

No Escape for Jones.

We have no other authority for it than Jones himself, and therefore cannot vouch for its truthfulness. Jones told us that he was persecuted nearly to death, some time ago by a sewing machine agent, who wanted him to make a purchase. Unable at last to endure the persistence of the man, Jones says he bought a diving-bell and went out 400 miles from land and descended two miles into the ocean to spend a few days in peace. He had hardly touched the bottom when he saw a sewing-machine man coming down in the diver's armor, carrying with him a shuttle-feed and sixty strong testimonials to the merits of his button-hole attachment.

Jones informs us that he suddenly rose to the surface and prepared to sail home; but just as the ship's anchor was being hauled over the side, it fell and upset the cook's caboose, scattering the live coals in the powder magazine. This caused a terrible explosion, and Mr. Jones was blown four miles upward in the air. (This is Jones' statement, remember.) Just as he began to come down he met the sewing-machine solicitor coming up in a balloon with a bucketful of samples of the lock-stich, and a model of his patent hemmer. When Jones fell he was picked up and he sailed straight for home.

As the vessel drew near the dock, Jones perceiving the agent standing on the wharf waiting for him with a noiseless button-hole attachment. (We thought all button-holes necessarily noiseless; but Jones is responsible.) Thereupon Jones hid himself in the cabin, and instructed the captain to say to the agent that he, Jones, had died of yellow fever on the voyage.

When the sewing machine man heard this he seized a copy of a certificate from a clergyman's wife and then blew out his brains with a pistol, evidently determined to follow Jones in the next world and sell him a machine at all hazards. We give this for what it is worth. We only know that Jones was educated by his parents to believe that it was wicked to tell a lie.

Special to Ladies.

For dressmating in all its branches and the latest styles, call on Mrs. J. J. Walker, at 310 Post street. Terms reasonable. 3 0s

He Knows it All.

When you're in a theatre, it is the proper thing to inform the party in your company of the plot of the play, your opinion of the actors, and how you'd have written the drama if you had been the author, and would play each character, if you were the actors. This you must do in a voice to be heard by everybody in your neighborhood. By so doing, you show your superiority to the rest of the people in the theatre. If they feel like killing you, don't mind it. If they should make an attack on you, don't be afraid. The police will come to your assistance. If your companion is a lady, be sure and tell her one or two of your love intrigues. We know a bald-headed editor who does this. The men in the theatre always feel as though they would like to punch his head and knock his four eyes into six. But they are only envious of his superior attractiveness. He doesn't mind them, and he is happy, even though he does drive the half of the audience to wish there were no laws against deliberate murder.

Hurrying People.

The American Newspaper Reporter of Jan. 5th says:

The sooner you make your Christmas purchases the better. The crowd is growing bigger and bigger, and you will have to carry a wedge with you pretty soon.

We suppose people in New York are taking advantage of the panic, which has brought prices down, and are buying up presents for next Christmas.

Hard Work.

We met Charley Lushington yesterday afternoon. His face was flushed, his gait unsteady. We asked: "Charley, what is the matter with you?" Charley, steadying himself by a hitching post, said: "It all ri', ben investergashin this whishkey blizzard thatsh all."

Sara Coleridge.

From a work entitled "Memoir and Letters of Sara Coleridge," edited by her daughter, we make the following extract:

"Religious bigotry is a dull fire—hot enough to roast an ox, but with no lambent, luminous flame shooting up from it. The bigots of one school condemn and, what is far worse, mutilate Shakespeare, those of another would, if they could, extinguish Milton. Thus the twin tops of our Parnassus would be hidden in clouds forever, had these their way."

I made a great effort last night to take advantage of Mrs. W. B——'s offer of a seat in and her opera box or one last her, for myself Herbert. We heard Sontag, and for the first time I was thoroughly entranced by a woman's singing. There is a softness and tenderness in the very highest warble of this lady-like singer, a combination of delicacy and brilliancy, which distinguishes her singing from that of all other women whom I have ever heard.

I delight in a man's tenor and contralto voice, but the fine, powerful, high-toned singing of women in general give me little pleasure, wearies me in less than ten minutes. It wants body to my feelings; with a masculine background, I like it well. Catharine Hays, in "Lucia," moved me not in the least, and tired me very soon. Coletti, in the "Barber of Saville," the huge Lablache, the pretty-handsome Gardoni—all pleased me greatly. But oh! how comical it is to see those opera lovers without a particle of love, grief, or any other emotion in their faces, evidently full of their song, and not a bit of their middle-aged or unpretty sweetheart, feign to stab themselves in desperation, plump down most unelegantly, warble away to the last, and two minutes afterward pick themselves up, and appear before the curtain to bow, and receive the claps and compliments of the audience.

Philadelphia Whisky.

A man in Philadelphia has been preaching against intemperance. He calls on the Legislature to pass laws prohibiting any citizen of that State drinking any of the whisky sold there. There is no necessity for such law. No citizen of Pennsylvania ever drinks any of the whisky sold in that city. He knows the quality of the benzine dispensed. It's only ignorant strangers who ever invest in Philadelphia chained lightning. And they never try it a second time.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Tivoco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that.
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

The Actress and the Empress.

The great Italian actress, who had many proofs of kindness from the Emperor of the French and the Empress Eugenie, was desirous of visiting the tomb of Napoleon III. She wrote to Dr. Conneau, and on receiving an answer, at once performed the pilgrimage. Madame Ristori had not thought of intruding on the privacy of the Empress, but on the assurance of Dr. Conneau that her Majesty wished it, she availed herself of the courtesy. The Empress honored her with a long interview, in which she gave the greatest prominence to the manner in which she felt touched by the numerous marks of public respect paid in Italy to the memory of Napoleon III. The Empress, in referring to the purpose announced in Italy of erecting a monument at Milan to the memory of her deceased husband, especially dwelt on the hope that it might have a national, not a personal character—that it might, rather, record the general services rendered to Italy than the affectionate memories cherished by individual friends. Madame Ristori left Chiselhurst deeply touched by the bearing of the widowed Empress.

Cruel Fun.

They had a rare scene, which was not down on the bills, at a variety show in Troy a few evening's since. One of the actresses, while going through her part, was insulted by a loafer in the front seat, when she quietly stepped to the front of the stage and kicked out one of the young man's front teeth. The act was greeted with loud applause. She has only to do that every night to draw crowded houses.

Special to Ladies.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

A feature of the performance at this house is the great box and bag "mystery" which is performed by the world-renowned Giraffe Brothers (Sweetman and Manning), in a manner which perfectly delights the audience. These artistes seem to deceive the public, and so one can help admiring the open manner in which they rend the veil from the "mystery." Ella Wesner, George S. Knight, the Siegrist Family, Welch and Rice, and many others appear nightly.

California Theatre.

The season of spectacle at this house is rapidly drawing to a close, and soon "The Naiad Queen" will be a delight of the past. It will be performed to-night, to-morrow night, at the matinee on Saturday, and on Saturday night for the last time.

Opera House.

J. P. Burnett has made a great hit in the farce of "B. B", in which he presents an admirable impersonation of a retired member of the P. R. "Ely O'Connor," in which Miss Jennie Lee, John Howson, Miss Fanny Young, Willie Simms, Miss Fanny Gibson, Mrs. Julia Melville and others, whose names are given on our first page, appear, is full of fun and provokes much laughter. To-morrow night that general favorite, Miss Jennie Lee, will take her benefit.

Platt's Hall.

This evening, a benefit to Miss Ina D. Coolbrith will be given at this hall. The programme, which appears in another column, will comprise the comedietta of "Delicate Ground," by Henry Edwards, W. A. Mestayer and Miss Fanny Cathcart; an original poem by J. F. Bowman, recited by Henry Edwards; "Home, Sweet Home," sung by Madame Anna Bishop; George Darrell in his very popular character sketches; "La Generentola" by Miss Anna Bishop; a humorous recitation by Barton Hill; a song by Alfred Wilkie; recitation of "Annie and Willie's Prayer," by Miss Sophie Edwin, and the comedy of "The Mexican Tigress" by Miss Fanny Cathcart, George Darrell and W. Barry. If the public come forward as liberally as the dramatic and musical professions have, the gifted poetess will be the recipient of an ovation which will do honor to San Francisco. The box sheet shows an immense number of seats taken. Henry Edwards has sold over four hundred tickets, and Sumner Burbee has been equally active. The success of this well-merited testimonial is secured.

Benefit of Miss Jennie Lee.

The charming comedienne of the Opera House will take a benefit to-morrow night. The programme, which appears on our first page, is a very attractive one, and should draw an immense house. The box sheet gives promise of a large attendance, tickets are going off rapidly, and it is now certain that the Opera House will be so crowded that there will be standing room only after eight o'clock.

John McCullough.

Mr. McCullough will arrive by the overland train to-night. It is hardly necessary to add that his trip to the East has been a series of professional triumphs, and that thousands will welcome his return and rejoice at his good fortune.

For Los Angeles.

The Jake Wallace & Little Mac Combination" will leave to-morrow for Los Angeles, to open there on Monday evening. The troupe will consist of Little Mac, Jake and George Wallace, Miss Lou Irving, Miss Lillie, and others.

Prof. O'Reardon.

By referring to a card in another column it will be seen that this gentleman, who does not intend to return to the inclement East immediately, but will tarry with us awhile longer, proposes to give instruction to parties so that they may master the mysteries of the Tumbleronican music, and will furnish his pupils with a complete set of musical glasses, with directions how to tone them. We should not wonder if the Professor obtained large classes. The Tumbleronican discourses music sweet enough to become fashionable in private parlors.

Bella Union.

The Male and Female minstrels in a brilliant first part, Cassim and Fritz in their original act of "Spider and Fool," Miss Jennie Johnson and others in 'Sally Ann," and a great variety o' other performances will be given this evening. To-morrow night Johnny Tuers, whose troubles have not by any means checked his flow of spirits, will make his reappearance on the stage.

Buckley's Varieties.

Katie Zoe, Zadie Zelma, Mollie LaForrest, Hughes Morton, M'lle Blanche, Walter Parks and Maggie St. Clair will appear in a brilliant olio of songs and dances this evening, and others in acts, acrobatic feats and varied specialties.

Woodward's Gardens.

A large number of beautiful birds have been added among them a sacred pigeon from the Solomon Island, also Vampire, and a St. Benard dog from the Hospice of St. Bernard in the Alps. On Saturday and Sunday the Box and Bag Mystery, the pantomime "Les Modestes and "Groupe Chinoise."

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

REMOVAL.—Madame Clara Antonia, the Clairvoyant Physician and Independent Trance Medium, 20 Geary street, near Kearny. Consultations in English, French and German. 1o

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes every body stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low

ONE AND TWO.

BY WILL S. CARLETON.

If you to me be cold,
Or I be false to you,
The world will go on, I think,
Just as it used to do;
The clouds will flirt with the moon,
The sun will kiss the sea,
The wind to the trees will whisper,
And laugh at you and me;
But the sun will not shine so bright,
The clouds will not seem so white,
To one, as they will to two;
So I think you had better be kind,
And I had best be true,
And let the old love go on,
Just as it used to do.

If the whole of a page be read,
If a book be finished through,
Still the world may read on, I think,
Just as it used to do;
For other lovers will con
The pages that we have passed,
And the treacherous gold of the binding
Will glitter unto the last,
But life have a lonely look,
And one may not read the book—
It opens only to two;
So I think you had be to be kind,
And I had best be true,
And let the reading on,
Just as it used to do.

If we who have sailed together
Flit out of each other's view,
The world will sail on, I think,
Just as it used to do;
And we may reckon by stars
That flash from different skies,
And another of love's pirates
May capture my lost prize.
But ships long time together
Can better the tempest weather
Than any other two;
So I think you had better be kind,
And I had best be true,
That we together may sail,
Just as we used to do.

A Persistent Prodigal.

A young man in Indiana sued his father for loaned money, which the father claims was his own property. The father's counsel, in summing up the case of his client, remarked: "Twice has this prodigal returned to his father's house; twice has he been received with open arms; twice for him has the fatted calf been killed, and now he comes back and wants the old cow."

A good brother in a Baptist Church of Miami county, Indiana, while giving his experience, not long ago, said: "Brethern, I've been a tryin' this nigh onto forty years to serve the Lord and get rich both at onct, and I tell yer it's mighty hard sleddin'."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Keeping Her Strength Up

This extract is from a novel recently published in England, entitled "A Long Summer's Day": "And what regimen did he order for you?" asked Rosamond. "He told me to keep my strength up. I have rum and milk at eight, meat breakfast at half-past nine, soup at eleven, hot meat luncheon at one, with two glasses of port wine, tea and bread and butter at four, dinner and two more glasses of wine at half-past six, tea and cake at nine, and cod-liver oil in brandy at night. I cannot do more, can I?" "No, indeed," answered Rosamond, in a minor key. "And yet I do not get any stronger and my nights are worse and worse." She must have been fearfully sick.

Lipman's Great Discovery

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is also totally free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Church and Stage.

In Plymouth Church, Sunday morning, Mr. Beecher refused to give a notice in the following characteristic and Beecher-like manner. He said: "I am requested to give a notice which puts me in a little difficulty; I don't want to, and I do want to. The Amaranth Dramatic Association wish to give a benefit, in the Academy of Music, next Saturday evening. They wish to pay all the expenses themselves, and give all the receipts to the poor of Brooklyn. Now, I want the poor to have all the money they can get, I don't want to advertise a theatrical company, and therefore I shall not give the notice." [Great laughter.]

Jolly Old School Boys

The Pincastle (Va.,) Herald tells of a jolly crowd of babies that met in that region recently. Mr. Allen Ferguson, of Amsterdam, Va., who is seventy-one years of age, visited his mother in Appomattox County, who will be one hundred years old on the 6 h of Jan. next. The good old lady was delighted to see her boy, and to promote his pleasure determined to give him a party, which she did by inviting seven of Allen's school mates to dine. Of the eight schoolboys thus brought together Allen was the youngest, the other seven ranging in age from seventy-five to eighty-five years.

Trapped.

"How old are you?" asked a St. Louis justice of a bridal candidate. "Eighteen," replied the girl, who looked five years younger that. "In what year were you born?" continued the justice. The girl stammered, blushed, and guessed it was in 1859. The hard-hearted official thereupon refused to perform the ceremony, and she went out counting on her fingers how much eighteen from 1873 left, so as to be prepared for the next trial.

A Couple Who Agreed.

A beautiful instance of unanimity of spirit and perfect accord of views is seen in the case of a certain married couple in Maine. It was a cold morning, and he wasn't going to get up and build the fire. Her opinions and intentions coincided precisely, and for just thirty-nine hours there was nobody got up out of that bed. Then the wife, not wishing to appear obstinate, yielded, and they ate a large breakfast.

Peace of Mind.

"John Paul," C. H. Webb, the versatile correspondent of the Springfield Republican, says: "Amid all the safeguards of the domestic hearth, about which so much has been written, I know of none quite so sure as to marry an ugly woman. One can then bind his brow with the sweet garlands of peace securely and leave his wife behind him for two or three days with the serene confidence which a christian feels in four aces."

San Jose People at the "Naiad Queen."

You may observe, as the short-skirted coryphees skip on, wreathed all in smiles, how Elizabeth Ann becomes crimson, and even Josh himself reddens a little about the roots of his hair. Offended, you say? Not at all. They came there to have their preconceived ideas of decorum outraged a little, and the flushing, though involuntary, is none the less a part of the programme.

"I do declare," whispers Elizabeth Ann, after a little, "This is real awful. If I'd have known what it was I wouldn't a' come." "No more would I," responds Jane. Both of which are amiable fictions on the part of those concerned, as Josh had gone secretly and alone the week before (on which occasion he didn't flush a bit,) and Elizabeth Ann has had every detail in advance from her cousin Eliza Jane, whose beau—a city fellow—sends her tickets once a week.

The above is what the Boston Courier says about country people who visit the "Naiad Queen" at the Boston Theatre, but it is a perfect description of the manner in which the San Jose people who visit the California Theatre behave.

Tea and Prayers

Fashionable Christianity in London is growing to be amusing. People are now invited to prayer meetings precisely as invited to a social soiree or an evening party. The New castle Chronicle prints the following transcript of a card which it has received: "Mr. and Miss ——propose (D. V.) to hold a Bible reading on—— ——evening at 7½ o'clock, when the company of friends is requested. Subject, Rev. II. Reading from 7 1-2 to 9 1-2. Morning dress." A writer in the Broad Churchman states that he got a card of invitation, which, as far as the body of it was concerned, might have applied to a dance or card party, but in the corner where the characters "Tea and P." After awhile he discovered that the cabalistic sign stood for Tea and Prayers. He went, and when he found them handing Bibles round on a tray, he left disgusted.

A Grave Lesson.

We learn from an exchange that "a young man in Missouri while riding on horseback on Sunday with a gun in his hand accidentally shot himself in the lung." There is evidently a very important lesson conveyed by this catastrophe, a lesson which should be laid to heart by every one, and which we hope will be deeply impressed upon the minds of all who hear of the event. We admit at the outset that we do not know precisely what the lesson is. It may be a warning against carrying a gun when pistols and bow and arrows are so cheap; it may be a warning against riding on the back of a horse where there is plenty of room to sit on his head; or it may show the folly of a young man taking his lung along with him when he has a gun, or the danger of carrying his lung in the same hand with his gun. But no matter. It is there—the lesson is—and persons who don't want to be shot through the lung in Missouri on Sunday with a gun, will heed it.

The smallest women look hopefully toward Hymen.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

John Smith Creates a Sensation.

John Smith has been getting into trouble again; this time in Chicago. The Inter-Ocean of Dec. 19th, says: "During the performance at the Academy of Music, yesterday afternoon, while Miss Ada Beaumont was singing one of her charming baracolles, two individuals near the door became engaged in an angry altercation, which soon resulted in blows. Several persons in the parquet rose in their seats to discover the cause of the disturbance, and, their attention becoming more and more absorbed, several others also became interested in a like manner. It was not long before every person in the parquet was standing up, and, of course, those very near the stage became frightened at the excitement, not knowing the cause. The contagion spread to the galleries, which were packed, and, fearing the worst, a large number left their seats to go down the staircase. At this point, some individual, who should have been arrested, yelled "Fire!" That cry caused the greatest confusion; those occupying the galleries made a rush for the door, and those in the parquet seemed undecided whether to go or stay. Miss Beaumont's laugh—she had stopped her song—re-assured them, and, seeing her perfectly self-possessed, they gradually resumed their seats. The individual who originated the disturbance was arrested, and gave his name—John Smith. It required three officers and any number of "supes" to convey him to the Madison-street station, and while on the way there he was abused by the officers in a shameful manner."

The girl of this age is unfit to be wed who don't unders and how to make nice sweet bread. And a man is a dunce who a partner will take who don't understand cooking coffee and steak.

A bride of fifteen and a groom of seventeen managed to astonish a quartet of Michigan parents recently.

Ladies in the above handsome carriages may be seen any time during the day in front of 315 Kearny street, near Bush street, waiting (for a few moments) for a dozen or two of those celebrated Written Visiting Cards, so elegantly executed by John P. Dwyer, card writer for the Grand Hotel. N. B.—Cards written, engraved or printed in the latest and most fashionable style, handkerchiefs marked, steel plates neatly cut, and monograms engraved and printed. 11-r

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

To-night, at the matinee to-morrow, and to-morrow night, the public will have opportunity to witness the "Naiad Queen," with its gorgeous scenery, beautiful ballet, Wonderful Girards, and other attractions. After the last named day the stage will be cleared, the Lurlie Berg will rush out of sight, the nymphs will no more disport in coral caves, and the "Naiad Queen" will lay down the sceptre which she has wielded with such grace for many months.

Opera House.

An immense bill will be presented at this house to-night, when that very clever comedienne and sparkling burlesque actress, Miss Jennie Lee, will take her benefit. The performance will commence with the farce of "B. B." with J. P. Bennett in his admirable impersonation of Bob Battles; this will be followed by Welch and Rice in their inimitable song and dance of the "O'Shaughnessy Guards," after this the third act of "London Assurance" will be presented, with Miss Annie Graham, Barton Hill, Henry Edwards, Miss Carrie Wyatt, E. J. Buckley, and J. P. Burnett in the cast. Next Signor Pietro Baccei will appear in operatic selections, and the performance will conclude with that funniest of all burlesques "Kenilworth," with Miss Jennie Lee as "that noble lord the Earl of Leicester" and John Howson as Varney. Such a bill for the benefit of such a favorite should crowd the opera House to overflowing. The usual matinee performance will be given to-morrow.

Alhambra Theatre.

Rain or shine this favorite theatre is crowded, as indeed it should be, with such a Company engaged there and such a programme as is presented. After a first part in which Billy Sweatnam, Billy Manning, Gen T. Murphy and others appear, the Siegrist Children will perform on the trapeze, Welch and Rice will appear in "I Really Shall Expire," Ella Wesner in character songs, Sweatnam and Manning as the "Giraffe Brothers," introducing their original version of the "Bag and Box Mystery," and the Siegrists and their dogs in a laughable divertissement. This very attractive entertainment will be presented at the matinee to-morrow.

Opera Night—California Theatre.

On Sunday evening Gounod's opera of "Faust" will be presented, with Madame Inez Fabbri as Margarita, Signor Pietro Baccei as Faust, Signor Pelvio Rigo as Mephistopheles, Signor Carlo Orlandini as Valentine and Miss Anna Elzer as Siebel. By permission of Barton Hill the famous Girards will appear in the fair scene in the second act and will introduce their sensational, gymnastic folly entitled "Leg-Mania." The California Theatre will be crowded on this occasion as it was last Sunday.

Platt's Hall.

The benefit of Miss Ina D. Coolbrith, at this hall last night, was a success. The attendance was large, and many tickets were sold which were not presented at the door. A note was read, at the close of the entertainment, from the beneficiary, tendering her thanks to those kind friends who had made the affair a success.

Pacific Hall.

To-night the talented pianist, Frank Gilder, late of the Madame Anna Bishop Concert Troupe, will give a Concert at this Hall prior to taking his departure for the East. He will be assisted by eminent vocal talent, Mrs. Howell, Messrs. Mayer, Maguire, Tippetts, Stadfeldt and Camrubi and by Professor O'Reardon with his Tam-bleronican.

John McCullough.

Mr. McCullough arrived last night by the overland train, and was serenaded at the Occidental Hotel by the California Theatre Band, in connection with a number of volunteers from the orchestras of the Alhambra Theatre and Opera House.

Bella Union.

To-night the favorite Ethiopian comedian John Carr Teers, will resume his old position as end man at this house, and will also appear in the laughable sketch of "Red Hot" with Tommy Barton and Fred Ritchie, and in the burnt-cork farce of "Four Old Maids," with Matt Kelly, Charley Nickerson and Tommy Bree. The performance will conclude with the startling feats of "The Graceful Brothers" by Nickerson, Cassim and Ritchie.

Buckley's Varieties.

"The Mysterious Restaurant," "The Intelligence Office," Mortimore's sketches, Miss Lizzie Harmon's ballads, Leon Samwell's feats and the screaming farce of "The Other Fellow" are among the attractions at this house for to-night.

Woodward's Gardens.

A large number of beautiful birds have been added among them a sacred pigeon from the Solomon Island, also Vampire, and a St. Benard dog from the Hospice of St. Bernard in the Alps. On Saturday and Sunday the Box and Bag Mystery, the pantomime "Les Modestes and "Groupe Chinoise.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men perfer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes every body stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

"LOST!"

Dead ashes dropping from the fire,
And dead leaves dropping in the lane,
And in my heart the dead despair
For Summer days to shine again,
Since but or loss brings bitter pain!

The fire dies in the dismal grate;
The short day ends in longer night;
My heart aches with its leaden weight;
Long grief succeeds my short delight,
And her sweet face is cold and white!

The faded flowers are lying low;
The sweet flower of my life is shed;
Through days of weariness and woe
My heart will sorrow for the dead,
Refusing to be comforted!

Waltzing Was Her Passion.

The New York Dispatch is responsible for the following:

Mary Ann Boggs, a resident of Georgetown, is a young woman of strong impulses. She is very fond of dancing, and the round dances are her particular forte of pleasure. Indeed it is only when her waist is encircled by a coat-sleeve, or in very hot weather a shirt-sleeve, and her feet beating a devil's tattoo to the melodious friction of horse-hair and feline intestines that she is entirely happy. There is for her no greater heaven than to gaze into the blue deeps of her partner's eyes, and watch the love-light as it dances from feature to feature in the ever-changing dance. Imagine the grief, sorrow, gloom, despair, wretchedness, anguish, agony, torture, &c., of Mary Ann when her father opposed her dancing round dances, on the score of modesty. Instantly this "Mollie darling" was seized, surrounded, covered, imbued, permeated, &c., with emotional insanity. She grabbed her good old dad by his boots and dragged him down stairs feet foremost. Then she fixed up, went to a ball and danced eighteen round dances. The old man is now quiescent on a camphor and arnica diet. He did not make calls on New Year's day.

Business and Religion.

A newly converted farmer at a Methodist revival in Maine managed to tell the Lord of his recent experience and at the same time to throw in some valuable information respecting his live-stock. He prayed as follows: "O Lord! Thou knowest the light burst upon me, as upon Saul of Tarsus, all of a sudden, as I was going out to feed my pigs, (and by the way, I've got two beauties.)" He sold both beauties after meeting his pious brothers in righteousness.

The people of Montana called it "the natural park of the Yellowstone" until Congress had accepted it, and now they want $100,000 for "improvements."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Shopping in London.

Prentice Mulford says: "To let a woman out on Regent or Oxford street without a keeper, is for her to return in two hours without a shilling, and in another hour a van drives up to your lodgings laden with her purchases."

Lipman's Great Discovery

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—Miss Jennie Lee had, as she well deserved, a splendid house, on the occasion of her benefit last night. All the seats were taken before the performance commenced, and there was no standing room when the curtain rose. The performance was worthy of the occasion. The rattling farce of "B. B." was capitally performed, Welch and Rice gained great applause in the "O'Shaughnessy Guards," the third act of "London Assurance" was admirably well presented by Miss Annie Graham, Henry Edwards, Barton Hill, Miss Carrie Wyatt, E. J. Buckley, J. P. Burnett, R. G. Marsh and Jules Robinson. Signor P. Baccei was in excellent voice and sang splendidly, and the burlesque of "Kenilworth," one of the best ever written; was capitally played. Miss Jennie Lee looked particularly well as that prince of "Marbors," the Earl of Leicester, John Howson as the lean and hungry Varney was excellent, and convulsed the audience with his wonderful horsemanship, H. D. Thompson was a gorgeous Queen Elizabeth, and altogether the performance was a great success. This very amusing burlesque will be repeated this evening, preceded by the farce of "B. B." The usual matinee performance will be given.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—At the matinee today, this evening, and to-morrow evening, the bill which has delighted large audiences during the week will be repeated. After this, the Siegrist Children, Louie and Thomas, will give their thrilling performance on the trapeze. Next will come Welch and Rice in "I really Shall Expire;" Rita Wesner will produce her budget of songs; Sweetnam and Manning will appear as the "Giraffe Brothers;" George S. Knight in his specialties, and the entertainment will terminate with the performance of the Siegrists and their dogs.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The "Naiad Queen" will be performed at the matinee to-day as to-night for the last time. Judging from the attendance during this week it might profitably be retained on the stage many nights more, but the engagement of Mr. Boucicault precludes the possibility of this, and the regular patrons of the California Theatre will welcome a change of entertainment. Of course there will be a rush both at matinee and evening performance, and the season of spectacle will come to an end in a blaze of glory.

PACIFIC HALL.—Frank Gilder had a splendid audience at his Concert at this Hall last evening, and a splendid programme was well performed and gave general satisfaction. The singing of the Amphions was particularly good, and every one of Mr. Gilder's piano solos was encored.

OPERA NIGHT—CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—On Sunday evening Gounod's opera of "Faust" will be presented, with Madame Inez Fabbri as Margarita, Signor Pietro Baccei as Faust, Signor Fulvio Rigo as Mephistopheles, Signor Carlo Orlandini as Valentine and Miss Anna Elzer as Siebel. By permission of Barton Hill the famous Zeb and Will introduce their sensational, gymnastic folly entitled "Leg-Mania." The California Theatre will be crowded on this occasion as it was last Sunday.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETIES.—Miss Maggie Brewer in dances, Miss Lizzie Harmon in ballads, Lon Dixon in song and dance, Mortimore in sketches, Walter Parks in clog dance, Harry Devoy in Dutch sketches and a great variety of other performances, specified on our first page, will be given to-night and to-morrow night.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—Johnny Tuers received a hearty welcome back to the stage last night, and kept the audience in roars of laughter. He will appear again to-night on the end in the first part, and in amusing acts. The local sketch of "Sally Ann," with Miss Jennie Johnson as Lucy Manvers, is still retained on the bill. Miss Alice Rose, serio-comic vocalist, and Ed. Murray, eccentric comedian and comic singer, are underlined to appear shortly.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—At these garden a large number of beautiful birds have been added, among them a sacred pigeon from the Solomon Islands, also a Vampire and a St. Bernard dog from the Hospice of St. Bernard, in the Alps. On Saturday and Sunday the Box and Bag Mystery, the pantomime "Les Modestes" and "Groupe Chinoise."

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg & Co the proprietors get up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

NOTES.—John McCullough has returned to San Francisco wreathed with laurels. In Paris, Rome or Madrid, under similar circumstances the people would have turned out en masse to welcome the man who had won honor for his city in other climes. The horses would have been taken out of his carriage, and he would have been drawn to his hotel by the crowd anxious to do him honor. We laugh at this kind of demonstration here, yet who can say that these more enthusiastic people lower themselves in honoring art. Our demonstration took a milder form, but it was no less genuine. The Occidental Hotel was thronged by people anxious to grasp by the hand and congratulate the modest votary of dramatic art, whom all, both East and West, now look upon as in the foremost rank of the tragedians of the day. Run over the names of the tragedians still alive and see where John McCullough stands. Edwin Booth is as high as he will ever get, Fechter seems determined to go to the "demnition bow wows," Phelps, the English tragedian, is too old to act, Oreswick is certainly no better actor than John McCullough. Evidently our California manager is the coming tragedian. He will not stop, he is too true a devotee of Art to do that. He loves art for its own value, and this is the secret of his success. He has talent, is genuine, and works hard. All honor to John McCullough, who has earned all the laurels which have been bestowed on him.

The receipts at the Opera House last night, on the occasion of the benefit to Miss Jennie Lee, amounted to $880. Tickets sold and not presented will bring the amount up to $1,000. A well deserved tribute to a charming actress.

John Wilson's new hippodrome, on New Montgomery street, a description of which we gave last Saturday is nearly completed. The equestrian and gymnastic company from New York are due here to-morrow, and the season will probably commence next Saturday.

The run of "The Naiad Queen" at the California Theatre has proven how admirably the front part of the house is managed. Notwithstanding the rush to obtain seats, no confusion, and no "unpleasantness," at least on the part of the patrons of the theatre occurred, though we expect the patience of the ushers was sometimes sorely tried, but Chief Wallace and assistants proved themselves fully up to every emergency in performing their arduous duties.

The "Golden City Amateurs," an association of very creditable performers who have grown beyond the incipient years of boyhood, will give an entertainment and ball at Platt's Hall, on Thursday, Jan 29th.

Young Maguire, treasurer of the Alhambra, is to have his first benefit at that theatre on Friday night next. An extra bill will be given on the occasion of this christening.

As will be seen by correspondence published in another column, the complimentary benefit to Madame Anna Bishop, of which we made mention at the beginning of the week, is to take place at Platt's Hall on Thursday evening the 22d inst. In tendering this testimonial to a world-renowned artist, the citizens of San Francisco do honor to themselves. Madame Anna Bishop has thousands of times sung for the benefit of charitable institutions and members of the dramatic and musical professions, and should certainly have a thronged house on this occasion. The opera of "Norma" will be presented, with the beneficiary in the title role, Miss Anna Elzar as Adalgisa, Signor Pietro Baccei as Pollio, Signor Fulvio Rigo as Oroveso, Mrs. Geo. T. Evans as Clotilde, and Mons. Charles as Flavio. George T. Evans will be conductor, and the opera will be produced under the management of Chas. Schultz. The box office will be open on Monday, when Henry Buttle, Madame Anna Bishop's agent, will be on hand to sell reserved seats.

Miss May Howard is in the city, and will remain here some time, the prospects in the East not being encouraging. She may probably make a trip to Australia

On Monday evening Miss Annie Higgs, a very pleasing little California artiste, who has volunteered for many benefits, will be the recipient of a benefit herself. A variety entertainment will be given at Platt's Hall. The beneficiary will appear in her best specialties, Geo. C. Thompson will present his clever impersonation of "Old Black Joe" and many others, whose names are published in programme on our first page, will appear.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, "The Belles of the Kitchen," by the Vokes Family, and "Romeo Jaffier Jenkins," by Leffingwell and Company, were the attractions ....."Gabriel Grub" was still drawing well at the Olympic....."Humpty Dumpty Abroad" was to be followed at the Grand Opera House by a spectacular sensation drama founded on the Cuban insurrection....."Led Astray" was drawing well at the Union Square Theatre.....At Wallack's "A Man of Honor" was a great success, and still continued on the stage.....At Booth's Theatre Mr. J. B. Booth was to appear in an adaptation from the French of Adolphe Belot, entitled "La Femme de Feu".....Miss Ada Dyas made a successful debut at the Fifth Avenue Theatre in "Man and Wife." It was followed by a revival of "Saratoga".....At the Bowery Theatre Miss Kate Fisher was playing in horse pieces..... At the Metropolitan Theatre Charles Howard, the favorite "Old Nig" actor, was the latest attraction.....At Wood's Museum Miss Madelaine Andrews was the star, and Colonel South Goshen, the giant, was playing in a piece entitled "The Giant of the Cave".....Cinderella" was still running at Bryant's Opera House.....At Tony Pastor's Miss Blanche Letwyn, male impersonator and serio-comic vocalist, and Miss Sadie O'Niel, jig dancer, were the latest additions to the Company.....At the Theatre Comique, a new play entitled "The Scalpers of the Plains" was being performed.

The New York Dispatch of the 4th says: Miss Tennie C. Claflin made her first appearance in drama at Bridgeport, Ct., on New Year's night, in the character of Portia. She was supported by Mr. Alfred Ayers as Shylock, and a well-selected company. Miss Claflin's performance was a decided success for a debutante, and Mr. Ayer's Shylock was a carefully studied and effective impersonation of that difficult character. The company will play in Providence, New Bedford, Fall River, and other New England cities during the coming week, subsequently appearing in New York.

Miss Lydia Thompson and troupe are in New Orleans.

Miss Alice Atherton has become Mrs. Willie Edouin.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Davenport have gone to Troy.

Lotta will play in Memphis, from January 13th.

New Orleans will have Lotta on the 19th.

An Eastern exchange says:

Pottsville, Pa., is building a $40,000 opera house. The whole has already been subscribed. It will be in rear of Union Hall, and is expected to be completed by September 1, 1874.

Good for Pottsville! The drama will yet flourish in Pottsville.

"The Poor and Proud of Philadelphia" is the name of a new local drama in preparation at Mrs. John Drew's Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

Mr. George France appeared at the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 5th, as Skid in "Marked for Life."

Mr. Edwin Booth appeared as Richelieu at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 5th.

Mr. C. W. Couldock will appear at Wood's Museum, Philadelphia, on January 26th.

Mr. Sothern commences an engagement at Ford's Theatre, Washington, on the 20th.

Mr. Edwin Booth will play an engagement at De Bar's Opera House, St. Louis, in February.

Miss Carlotta LeClercq will play in St. Louis one week from February 2d.

The Berger Family and Sol Smith Russel performed in Winnsboro, S. C., on Dec. 27, and at the conclusion of the performance were waited on by a committee of gentlemen, who invited them to a grand banquet, which had been gotten up in their honor by a number of the leading citizens of the place.

Mr. A. S. Pennoyer has relinquished his engagement with Lotta as business manager, and has accepted a like position with Mr. Sothern, for a few weeks only.

Marie Vestvali commenced a two weeks engagement at the Metropolitan Theatre, New York, on Jan. 12.

Prof. R. W. Risley, once well and favorably known all over the world as a gymnast, and who has been acting lately as business manager and advance agent for variety establishments in Philadelphia, is said to be an inmate of one of the insane asylums there.

Mr. John A. Crouts, a well-known actor died at Greenpoint, L. I., 30th, in his 69th year. He was for some years stage manager of Mr. Charles B. Thome's various enterprises. Some years ago he made quite a "hit" at the Boston Museum as Old Probity in the "Chimney Corner."

The New Orleans correspondent of the New York Clipper, speaking of the performance of "The Black Crook" at the Academy of Music, says:

Among the specialties Baby Benson is worthy of especial notice. This sweet little child has not yet been allowed to pass from the stage after a single performance without receiving from four to six encores, and she carries the audience literally by storm.

Baby Benson commenced her theatrical education in San Francisco, while her mother, Jenny Benson, was engaged at the Bella Union Theatre.

Mrs. Jas. A. Oates, supported by her newly augmented Comic Opera Company, began an engagement at the Savannah, Ga., Theatre, on Dec. 29, to a crowded house, and continued the presentation of the gems of her repertoire the ensuing week, with a New Year's matinee, to equally large and delighted audiences. Dates ahead: Charleston, S. C., Jan. 9, 10, Columbia 12, Augusta, Ga., 13 to 17, Wilmington, N. C., 19, 20, Richmond, Va., 21, 22, Norfolk 23, 24, Baltimore, Md., 26, for one week.

We are pleased to hear that Mr. John E. Owens has recovered from his recent accident and has resumed his tour.

"The Belles of the Kitchen" is being played for the last time at Niblo's. The next changes upon those belles will be rung in Australia. Then the troupe returns to England, and appear, I suppose, in a new version of "The Old Vokes at Home."

The Arcadian says:

The playwrights bid fair to turn the tables on the Managers, and avenge the fates of poor Otway, Marlowe, Green, and many other dramatists, whose plays made the fortunes of everybody concerned in them except themselves. For "Agnes" M. Sardon received from the management of the Union Square Theatre, six thousand dollars; Mr. Daly paid between two and three thousand for the exclusive right to play "Frou-Frou;" Mr. George Fawcett Rowe was made happy by a douceur of over three thousand from Messrs. Shook and Palmer, for his "Geneva Cross;" and Mr W. S. Gilbert, of London, for one fortnight of "The Wicked World" got seven hundred dollars. Better still, Mr. Boucicault receives upwards of one hundred dollars a night for "Led Astray," one of the most popular pieces ever presented at Union Square Theatre.

The Boston Courier says: The well-known actor Mr. W. H. Crisp, died on Thursday, Jan. 1, at Dallas, Texas. Mr. Crisp was in his day one of the most admirable light comedians and accomplished general performers known to the American stage. Although an Englishman by birth, Mr. Crisp was to all intents and purposes an American actor, having made his first appearance in this country as early as 1845 or '47 at the Old Park Theatre, New York. He leaped into favor at once, and was for a long time one of the reigning favorites of that city. For the last twelve or fifteen years Mr. Crisp has remained principally at the South, following his profession. He was a man of singularly fine personal appearance, and a gentleman of the widest general culture and the most polished manners. At the time of his death he was managing a dramatic company. It is almost needless to add that the present W. H. Crisp of the Boston Museum is his son.

Hyers Sisters, colored songstresses, Munson, Mass., 5th.; Ware, 6th; Hartford, 13th.

The name of Joan Brougham's new drama, written for Jennie Wallace, is "Amy Dorritt," founded on Charles Dickens' story of "Little Dorritt."

Charlotte Cushman will head shortly a traveling troupe, composed of Milnes Levick, and others, of Jannauschek's present troupe, Richmond, Va., Feb. 9, one week.

Max Maretzek is a lucky man in having escaped his proposed Havana operatic season. Knowing wives from the tacu green-loom in despair. She says, in substance, that the present enormous discount on the current garlic-flavored paper money, and the unwillingness of the Havanese to pay even $4 of this depreciated stuff for seats, have caused all the Company to yearn piteously for Uncle Sam's bright, healthy looking greenbacks. It should be known that a Cuban paper dollar is worth 20c in American currency. Vizzani's wallet has been depleted, and his $5,000 bank reserve sent for and absorbed, and as walking from Havana to Key West is not considered a healthy exercise at this season of the year, the famous tenor impressario may yet be compelled to devote his attention and time to the study of Spanish volunteer tactics. Meanwhile, Max, relieved from his operatic incubus, is quietly furnishing on Staten Island, probably rejoicing that his artistes refused his offer to pay them exhorbitant salaries in United States paper money.

Frank Mayo will appear as Davy Crockett on the abdication of the "Naiad Queen" at the Boston Theatre.

L. P. Barrett made $2,000 by his New England engagements.

Madame Janauschek has purchased the cottage she occupied last summer at Cohasset.

Miss Josephine Henry, (Mrs Robert Craig), is playing with Mr. L. P. Barrett's traveling company, and is quite a favorite.

Miss Lizzie Price is the actress who eloped with Fechter.

Mr. Lewis Morrison, of the California Theatre, announces in the Spirit of the Times that Miss Rose Wood and himself will commence their starring tour at the Walnut-street Theatre, Philadelphia, next June. "Field and Fireside" and "Cuba" will be their pieces.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—Miss Katherine Rogers made her first appearance in California, at the Metropolitan Theatre, under the management of John Piper on Tuesday evening. "Romeo and Juliet" was the play. The Sacramento Union of Wednesday said:

She enacted the character of "Juliet" in a very intelligent manner—natural, yet exceeding'y forcible—and introducing much originality in the reading as well as the "business" of the part. No matter how strong the situation, she always exhibited a reserve force that made her fully equal to the emergency. Her presence is very prepossessing, she being possessed of a fine form and handsome intellectual features, while her voice is sympathetic and not likely to become wearisome. We predict for her a successful engagement.

The same paper spoke highly of W. J. Coggswell's impersonation of Romeo. On the following night Boncicault's drama of "Mimi" was presented, and has held the stage ever since. On Monday Miss Rogers will take her Leonie. "Galatea" is underlined for speedy production. The Bee, speaking of Miss Rogers performance of Mimi, says:

There was nothing wanting either in the childish wonder of the simple maid at the perplexity of her lover to reconcile his patrician connection with a marriage below his rank, or in the heart-rending parting with Maurice, in which she threw an intensity of passion that was quite new to us, and which has rarely been equalled, to make her personation a complete success. The various scenes gave occasion for a display of every quality of a devoted woman's heart, and in them all, even to the slightest shades of difference, Miss Rogers' portrayal was perfect. She has indeed all that vivid earnestness and power to lose her own individuality in the character that she represents that we are so often told is the best test of histrionic genius. It is certainly in the emotional and more elevated parts of the drama that Miss Rogers has her greatest strength. With more womanly grace and naturalness than almost any of the leading actresses on the American stage, she is in our judgment without her equal in the personation of the characters of the emotional drama.

SAN JOSE.—H. A. DeLacy has done much towards exciting a taste for beautiful amusement among the public of San Jose. Last night J. M. Hutchings exhibited his pictures of Yo Semite, and lectured at the Opera House, and Prof. Faber introduced his wonderful talking machine. The same entertainment will be given this evening. Next week the wonderful Girards, the Remmelenberg Sisters, Mlle Marie Gangain, the Tumbleronicon, and other features of the "Naiad Queen" will be presented at the Opera House in a piece constructed for the purpose of introducing them. Mr. DeLacy spares neither trouble nor money in catering for the amusement of the people of San Jose, and deals liberally with the profession.

OAKLAND.—No amusement here at present, but the people are talking of building a theatre to cost $100,000, and seat 800 persons. Gray, who built the San Francisco Opera House, is moving in the matter.

GRASS VALLEY.—The Templeton Troupe, including Fay Templeton, Miss Alice Vane, Mr. Templeton and others are announced to perform here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. John H Hunter is business manager of the troupe.

NEVADA.—The Templeton Troupe are to perform here on Thursday and Friday of next week.

MARYSVILLE.—The Templeton Troupe will perform at the theatre on Saturday and Sunday of next week.

EUREKA.—At latest advices the Fanny Morgan Phelps Troupe was playing at Pratt's Opera House, which has been much improved. The Company comprises Miss Fanny Morgan Phelps, S. W. Piercy, James Barrows, F. J. Crowell, Elias Lipsig, J. W. Wilkes, Mr. Milton, H. Burnett, Miss Carrie Lipsig and Miss Lizzie Morgan. On Monday last the "Colleen Bawn" was presented. The McGinley Troupe of dancers and vocalists were playing at Ryan's Theatre. Times were good and both troupes were making money.

OGDEN.—J. S. Lindsay and a dramatic company were performing here at latest dates with good success.

SALT LAKE CITY.—James A. Herne entered on the second week of his engagement, on Monday with good prospects. He appeared as Terence O'More in "Kathleen Mavourneen," and as "Solon Shingle" in the play of that name. A drama by John DeBonay, entitled "Carlotta, the Queen of the Arena," was in rehearsal.

PORTLAND, O.—Charles Vivian, supported by G. W. Jester, the ventriloquist Madame Reiffarth, soprano, and Madame A. E. Muse, pianiste, gave a matinee entertainment at Ore Fino Theatre last Saturday, and performed again in the evening. He received a hearty welcome, being a great favorite there as he is everywhere else. A. F. Bailey is business manager of the troupe. Madame Laura Agnes Stevenson is in Portland singing at Trinity Church.

ALBANY, O.—Vivian and troupe on the 7th.

EUGENE CITY, O.—Charles Vivian, G. W. Jester, and others on the 8th.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind.";

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410. below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Colville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins!
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred [illegible] Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain!
Who [illegible]
once more will go again,

An Old Adage Verified.

The old adage runs "One man may steal a horse, while another may not look over a hedge." This has always seemed an exaggeration, but the times give it proof. S. Dorlet had his grocery store on Dupont and Green streets, broken into some evenings ago and robbed. The Chronicle of Saturday tells the rest of the story:

There was no clue whatever to the thieves, but yesterday morning the proprietor of the store was standing at the door, when he noticed a Chinaman pass along on the other side of the street, stop and look at the house. His actions seemed suspicious in the eyes of the victimized storekeeper, so, without further ado, he called an officer and had the astonished Celestial arrested and conveyed to the City Prison, where he will remain until the detectives can investigate the case.

So we find that while a Caucasian may break into a house and rob it without being suspected, a Chinaman may not look at the house from the other side of the street without being arrested by our active police. This more then verifies the old adage.

Spiritualism.

Spiritualism is making headway fast in Great Britain. Its leading organ, the Spiritualist, has just announced its future weekly issue. This paper is about four years old. It started as a monthly and grew into a fortnightly, and now is about to take another step in the same direction. The leading men of the movement recently gathered and formed into a body, to be called the British National Association of Spiritualists, and there is every reason to believe that they will establish a society which will take rank among the existing modern literary and scientific institutions.

Where?

An Iowa school teacher has been discharged for the very excusable offence of kissing a female assistant. We should like to know what inducement there is for any person to exile himself to the country districts of Iowa to direct the young idea in its musket practice, if he is to be denied the ordinary, luxuries of life? If a Platonic exercise in osculation, occasionally, cannot be connived at, where are the mitigating circumstances in the dreary life of a schoolmaster?

Effect of Eloquence.

"I see," said a Chicago lawyer, "a band of white-robed angels crossing the silvery strand, with beaming faces, bearing in their hands the laurel wreath of peace to place upon the brows of these innocent young people!" And the jury sent those "innocent young people" to the penitentiary for ten years for participating in the panel game.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410. below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that he enterprising firm of Kahn & Haas are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11-r

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation Hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

Holiday Hats.

Certainly a new hat is about as pleasant a holiday gift as can be imagined. There is an immense stock of Hats to select from at "The Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second hat store below Kearny). The newest styles a reasonable prices. 12-j

Owen Marlowe in Brooklyn.

The Spirit of the Times has the following: Moses W. Fiske, the clever low comedian, now with Marlowe at Hooley's Opera House across the river, thus tells the story of his leaving Samuells' Theatre: "Well, sir, this is the story: I was engaged at a certain salary for the Park Theatre Company, under the supposition that the manager was a Crœsus—a millionaire—a rich fellow. Three week's salary came all right. Then it didn't. Then one-third was taken off, and things were not all right. Sometimes it was pretty hard to get money when it was due you. Then Owen Marlowe got his burlesque and comedy combination up, to go into Hooley's Opera House. I saw money to come out of such an entertainment, especially at low prices of admission. I thought more of that than of any impecunious first-class theatre's treasury, and I said I'll be low comedian of that combination; it was agreed upon. Your newspapers put it into the papers Sunday morning, and Samuells saw it for the first time, so he says. However, I notified the stage manager and acting manager that I was about to leave. Samuells sent for me and wanted to know if it was true. I said 'Yes.' He said 'That settles it.' I said, 'That settles it,' and went away. At the theatre yesterday he sent for me again; wanted to know if I wouldn't back out, and said everything was solid now. I'd heard that before, over there, and found it very soft. So I told them 'No, I've promised and am going next Saturday night. Next Monday I open at Hooley's Opera House in the nicest little company you ever saw.' He then said. 'If that's so, you can't play here to-night, nor this week.' 'That settles it again,' said I. 'It does.' says my bold Samuells, 'You'll get five day's pay, Wednesday.' 'Hold on,' said I, "There's Thanksgiving and Christmas matinees, you know, that'll make a week—seven days.' 'No, we don't pay,' said Samuells, 'for matinees.' 'No,' said I, 'not for Saturday matinees, but you do for these. My papers say, one matinee a week, not two.' So you see I'm discharged. Look at me! Behold a discharged low comedian."

A Brilliant "Dorg."

We heard one man express the most complimentary opinion of a dog he owned. He praised him almost as highly as actors do rivals. He said: "That yer dog is smart, he is. Why, blast him, I went out a gunnin' one day, and what d'ye think he did? He woke up a skunk thinkin' it wer a rabbit. I lost a suit of clothes by that yere manuvre. I took him to kill a rat. What d'ye think he did? Bet ye can't guess. Why he just stuck his tail in the rat's mouth and commenced to shout as though he was victorious. The other evenin' took him with me when I went to visit a friend in Brooklyn. The dog went along. Now what d'ye think he did? Can't tell? Well, I guess not. Why we'd no sooner got to the house than he made a raid on the lady of it, and threw her into a fit. And when her husband went to her assistance, this yere brilliant dog got him by the pants and tore a piece out of them. Then he went for the baby that was in the cradle, and if I hadn't a got hold of him and chucked him out of the window I guess he'd chewed up that baby. I'd like to sell this dog, but I don't know of anybody who's smart enough to appreciate him. But it's my 'pinion that if he keeps on in his brilliant way he won't live long."

Lacy's Theatrical Library.

The private theatrical library of the late Mr. T. H. Lacy, who bequeathed the bulk of his property to the Dramatic College, has just been sold at auction by Sotheby & Co. It realized 2,647*l.* 1*s.* Mr. Lacy's great ambition was to collect everything relating to the stage, and his collection of provincial and London play-bills, dramatic biographies and portraits, theatrical costumes, etc., was almost unrivalled. Amongst the articles most eagerly contested for was lot 638, Genest's Account of the English Stage, profusely illustrated with portraits of celebrated actors, which brought 200*l.* Lot 965 Lord Lytton's "Cromwell," a drama, of which the author had only four copies printed for his own use in altering or amending, having the concluding lines in the autograph of Mr. Macready (at whose sale it was purchased for 2*l.* 2*s.* by Mr. Lacy,) was knocked down for 11*l.* Lot 128, a collection of newspaper cuttings, letters, &c., respecting the famous Jack Banister, sold for 7*l.* 5*s.*, and similar cuttings respecting Astley's Theatre, for 14*l.*, Ranelagh Gardens, 35*l.*, and Vauxhall, 20*l.*, £10s. The collections of costumes produced in several instances exorbitant prices. Theatrical autograph letters brought moderate prices, excepting lot 1808, relating to E. Kean and his family. The various collections of local and London play-bills sold at a higher rate than is usually the case.

Mr. Lacy's theatrical portraits were afterwards disposed of. Among the more important lots were Dowton as Sir John Falstaff, was "knocked down" for £3 10*s.*; Liston as Endless, for £6 6*s.*; Miss Fannie Kemble as Euphrasia, £5 5*s.*; Quick, as Colonel Hubbub, £7 15*s.*; T. A Prayer for Peace.

The Virginia Chronicle thus pleads with our Legislature: Some pious individual at San Jose, California, has suggested to the Legislature of that State, through the columns of the Sacramento Union, that a law should be passed to prohibit stock gambling. Don't do it, gentlemen. Don't deprive the people of their last remaining chance to squander their cash. Already the aggressive law has throttled the beloved "tiger;" has removed from the festive "dive" the attractive "beer-slinger;" has restrained the gentle hilarity of ye harmless hoodlum, and tampered with our lager. Let us have peace.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men perfer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low

Alhambra Theatre.

There is no end to the attractions at this wonderful variety theatre. The Siegrist Family, Ella Wesner, George S. Knight, Con T. Murphy, Billy Manning, and Billy Sweetnam, and Welch and Rice form of themselves a stronger combination of stars than any Eastern manager dare bring together in a theatre of no greater seating capacities than the Alhambra. All these will appear tonight in the rich programme published on our first page, and next week the wonderful Girards, and Professor O'Reardon, are to be added to the attractions. If the Alhambra Theatre were not crowded nightly, this sort of thing could not be kept up.

California Theatre.

The season of spectacle at this theatre, terminated on Saturday night as brilliantly as it commenced, the final performance of "The Naiad Queen" being witnessed by an immense audience. To-night, the most popular and most successful of all modern playwrights, Dion Boucicault will make his first appearance in California at this theatre. An original sketch written by himself, and entitled "Boucicault in California" will serve to introduce the great dramatist to the public. The characters are Boucicault, by himself, Barton Hill, by himself, Murphy by J. C. Williamson, Bogus Push of the Weekly Pill, W. A. Mestayer and Miss Aurelia McGush, a would-be debutante, by Miss Maggie Moore. This will be preceded by the amusing farce of "Jones' Baby" the cast of which appears on our first page. The performance will conclude with one of Mr. Boucicault's latest productions—"Kerry" which will on this occasion be presented for the first time in San Francisco. Mr. Boucicault will appear as Kerry, a servant in the family of Gerald Desmond, Lewis Morrison as Gerald Desmond, Walter M. Leman as Dr. Mellish, E. J. Buckley as Coldham, Miss Annie Graham as Blanche Desmond, and Miss Maggie Moore as Kate Desmond. Such a bill, and the appearance of such a celebrity as Dion Boucicault will crowd the California Theatre to suffocation. Seats can be reserved to-day.

Opera House.

To-night the performance at this popular theatre will commence with the screaming farce of "Lodgers and Dodgers," in which J. P. Burnett will appear as Mr. Singleton Sudbury, and Miss Jennie Lee in her original character of Julia Juniper. After this the highly successful burlesque of "Kenilworth" which was received with roars of laughter last week by an audience of over a thousand persons, will be presented with Miss Jennie Lee as the Earl of Leicester, John Howson as Varney, the master of the horse, and a generally strong cast. This piece is full of fun, and cannot fail to be enjoyed by all who witness its performance.

Platt's Hall.

To-night that favorite young California artiste Miss Annie Higgs, who has appeared, under the name of "The Little Jewel," for many benefits, will receive a benefit herself, at the above named hall. A very attractive programme has been prepared for the occasion. It appears in full on our first page. Geo. C. Thompson, Murphy and Guerin, L. Hartnett, J Davis, O Kohler, Wm. Suffern, James Clark, Fred Varley a new comer, and others have volunteered. Miss Annie Higgs will appear in some of her most admired specialties. After the performance there will be a social dance.

Bella Union.

Jonny Toers is quite at home again at this theatre where he occupies his old position of end man. He also appears nightly in some of his laughable sketches. Nickerson "effuses" every night, Cassim and Fritz present their thrilling feat of "Les Chaises," and "The Graceful Brothers" by Nickerson, Cassim and Bitchie terminates the performance.

Buckley's Varieties.

A great performance is giving nightly at this house. The company comprises such popular favorites as Leon Samwells, Miss Lizzie Harmon, Miss Maggie Brewer, Hughey Morton, Lon Dixon and the clever character vocalist, Frank Mortimore. To-night, Miss Nellie Wayne a pleasing vocalist is announced to make her first appearance

Notes.

The New York Spirit of the Times says:

Manager John McCullough, having spoiled the Eastern heathen of their piastres, has returned to San Francisco to play them in against earthquakes, in the way of buying building lots. His engagements were everywhere artistic and financial triumphs.

Mr. McCullough will probably make his reappearance on the stage of the California Theatre on the 16th prox. The public will look forward to this event with much pleasure.

The opera of "Faust," was excellently well performed last night, at the California Theatre, and was enjoyed by an immense audience. Madame Inez Fabbri as Margarita, Signor Pietro Bacci as Faust, Signor Falvio Rigo as Mephistopheles, Signor Orlandi as Valentine and Miss Anna Kiser as Siebel, performed their respective parts admirably and won much applause. The introduction of the wierd performances of the wonderful Girards, in the fair scene, in the second act was a very attractive feature of the performance. Mr. Chas. Schultz, the business manager of the opera nights, is engineering them most successfully as five successive crowded houses attest.

The public must not forget that Madame Anna Bishop's benefit will come off on Thursday next at Platt's Hall, when she will appear in "Norma."

George T. Evans, the musical conductor and composer, will shortly have a benefit. No man deserves one better.

Next Sunday, the opera of "La Sonnambula" will be presented at the California Theatre by Madame Inez Fabbri, Signor Pietro Bacci, and others.

That admirable actress, Miss Katherine Rogers will commence an engagement at the California Theatre within a few weeks.

John Piper, of the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento, and Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, is in town prowling round, seeking talent.

Woodah Cooke principle somersault rider, Mlle. Millie Tournaire, "Queen of the Air," and Leon and Lascell, star gymnasts, arived last night under engagement to John Wilson's Palace Amphitheatre, on New Montgomery street, Ted O'Brien the champion leaper will arrive to-night, and other talent will follow.

The twenty six performances of "The Naiad Queen" at the California Theatre, netted $39,500. Averaging over $1,135 a performance. The stockbrokers want manager McCol ought to incorporate him next holiday piece, and place the stock in market.

SPEAKING SQUARELY.

"I fain would climb, but fear I fall,"
To Bess wrote Raleigh,
"If thy heart fail, climb not at all,"
Bess answered fairly.
So answered Raleigh sweet Queen Bess
In words that did a world express.

Few better read the human heart
Than Courtier Raleigh.
He plays at love a humble part,
That speaks not squarely;
Then Raleigh donned a bolder face
And won the sovereign lady's grace.

Long shone the light in courts and camps
Of Soldier Raleigh.
He may have been the worst of scamps,
But he spoke squarely;
And so prevailed on Mistress Fame
To breathe a magic o'er his name.

Yet who can say the task is light
Of speaking squarely?
True lovers in their ladies' sight
Are bold but rarely,
Else had I been more blessed to-night,
Than Walter Raleigh.
But I like him have feared to fall,
And therefore have not climbed at all.

—Springfield Republican.

The Pool John Far Away.

I stopped at the Metropolitan Hotel in Corinne. I juxtapositioned with a historical cuss the first thing. Says he, "So he's dead, is he?" Says I, "Who?" Says he, "Napoleon." Says I, "Dead as a mackeral." Says he. "Stranger, I'm from the mines, and I only just heard it. One of 'em died years ago, I believe, but stranger, what gets me is, what became of the other hundred and nine?" Says I, "Hundred and nine? My dear sir, there never was a hundred and nine." Says he, "stranger, there was a hundred and eleven of 'em." And he hauled out a book and pointed to Napoleon III., and says he, "What's that but Napoleon one hundred and eleven?"

Agassiz.

The London Times thus closes a sketch of Professor Agassiz's career: "In Agassiz the world has lost a philosopher and naturalist whose name will be remembered along with those of Buffon, Cuvier and Humboldt, and of whom both his native Switzerland and his adopted America might be well proud.

An Art Criticism.

A young lady from Georgetown came to the city the other day to have her picture taken. When the artist showed her the "proof" and asked her how she liked it, she placidly remarked that he "put too darned much mouth on it to suit her."

Not a Camp Meeting.

Some person in a Georgia Court "applauded" whereupon the Judge (we quote from the Griffin News) indignantly remarked, "Now dry up; I will let you know that this is no camp meeting!"

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat,
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Mission streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Happy New Year.

For Bon Bons and Mottos for your New Year's table, go to "The Leading Candy Store," George Haas & Co's, 20 Kearny street, near Market. Their display of holiday fancy goods will totally eclipse any former exhibition of this very popular firm. They have also imported the most elegant assortment of French Candy Boxes and Cornucopias ever seen in this city. 11s

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there

Human Nature.

If the gates of heaven were suddenly to swing open and all mankind be asked on equal terms to enter into the kingdom, don't you know some people who would pause to see what some other people were going to do about it, and some would draw back for fear the celestial city was getting vulgar; and some who would refuse altogether, if they saw the so-and-so's about to enter?

There is Something in It.

It is thus that Bulwer writes of music: "Very stupid people often become very musical. It is a sort of pretension to intellect that suits their capacities. Plutarch says somewhere that the best musical instruments are made from the jawbones of asses."

Lipman's Great Discovery

Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Satisfactory.

It is not very long ago since the FIGARO received a letter from the banking house of Henry Clewe & Co., Wall street, New York, telling us that while no money would be paid out, deposits would still be received, and requesting such marks of confidence in the stability of an old established home. We immediately determined that we would not draw a cent from that bank while it was in trouble, and now another letter dated January 5th, comes, which commences as follows:

We take pleasure in announcing that we this day resume business.

We are indebted to the consideration, friendliness and forbearance of our creditors for our ability to renew with our customers relations that were broken off by an unprecedented financial crisis, which it would have been ruinous for us to resist any longer than we did.

Those to whom we were the most largely indebted, and who best knew how and why we yielded temporarily to a combination of general disasters, have been the most prompt and willing to assist us.

Say no more about it, gentlemen. We are only too glad to know that you have weathered the storm. We wouldn't have our money if we could, and if we couldn't, how could we.

The Difference.

"Almavira," the theatrical critic of our London namesake, has the following:

"Did I get value for my money?" This question is asked me by a gentleman, who says he paid sixpence for a programme, which he incloses for my inspection. The programme was that of Mr. Anderson's benefit, at Drury Lane, when, as may be recollected, "Macbeth" was played. As I observe that, from the playbill sent to me, the name of Macduff is omitted, as well as that of the performer who took the part, and made it the best thing in the piece, I think there can be no difficulty in answering "No," to my correspondent's conundrum.

Rather a difference between London and San Francisco! There, one has to pay sixpence for a mere bill of the play; here, in every theatre, FIGARO, which is considerably more than a bill of the play, is given free to every one entering the house. Oh! California's a blessed land.

How We Apples Swim!

Nice modest little account of the Chronicle newspaper "establishment," in Sunday's issue. The "senior proprietor," the "junior proprietor," the "staff," etc., etc. "The "senior proprietor" is Charley, the "junior proprietor" is Mike. Good Gracious! How those boys blow!

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind.";

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11r

The Manager and the Playwright

A New York paper tells the following story: Mansell, the whilom manager of the unfortunate Lyceum in this city, whose fiasco in the management of that theatre caused such a grin in the theatrical world, has some very original ideas about the stage, and what constitutes a successful play. It will be remembered that when he arrived last fall, to inaugurate the season, he announced his triumphant career in the noisiest manner possible. Before the din had subsided Mansell was shelved and forgotten, save by those into whose pockets he had his arms to the elbow, and the hapless artists who had been enticed to this country by his braggadcio. Shortly before the Lyceum opened a young New York journalist, who had written a couple of successful plays, arranged an interview with Mansell, to submit a new play, and, in company with an old experienced actor, the young author, with his manuscript, called by appointment at the theatre. The modest manager was eating his dinner in his office, to impress his visitors with his extreme occupation and mental strain. After the usual courtesies were exchanged, the young author unrolled the manuscript and the reading commenced. At the end of fifteen minutes he had read the first act, and Mansell had devoured his pate and was ogling one of the newly-arrived actresses, who was present and watching the manager feed with unmistakable delight. At the end of thirty minutes the second act was finished, and the over-burdened manager had finished his claret and was engaged in an animated conversation with the pretty actress. The author commenced to wrap up his play preparatory to leaving the sacred managerial atmosphere. Then it was that the great man and discriminating manager arose, and with a magnificent wave of his hand thus addressed his visitors: "Arrah, me boy, the play's the devil's own play, as far as ye's read; but bedad, I don't like the thame at all, at all. Sure, isn't the thame money? The charackters are mighty foinely drawn, and the language they use is illigint. With the patience of Saint Patrick I've listened to ye read thim two acts, and never a word about love have I heard, and fat's a play widout love? Tell me fat, will ye's? Love, my boy, is the r-r-roast bif of life; it's the joint, as we say in England. Ah, behad it is." And here Mansell leered lovingly at the pretty actress, who hung upon the manager's words like the bee upon the flower. The proper effect having been produced by this magnificent tribute to love, the orator resumed: "Love, sir, is the r-r-roast bif of life."

The author ventured to suggest that love was more appropriately the omelette souffle of life, but Mansell wouldn't have it. "Look at me," said he, "I have been twinty years a faling the public pulse, and by the black crook of Saint Patrick I know it loike a buk. I'm the lad fat will astonish the Americans. The papers'll be full of Mansell. Good-boye, my boys, and the next time you wroite a play fill it full of the r-r-roast bif—the joint." When the author and his actor friend escaped, and were safely outside the building, the old actor uttered but one word, and was silent for the rest of the evening. That one word was highly suggestive of the name of a personal friend of Philander Doesticks, which figures prominently in the writings of the latter gentleman. It might not be amiss to add that the play, within forty-eight hours after, was accepted by a rival manager.

Lovers of Dumb Animals.

We know a sympathetic man. He sympathizes principally with animals. If he encounters a dilapidated dog he makes much of him, and goes off to the butcher's and buys him tenderloin steaks and lamb chops, and feeds him back to health and exuberant barking. A cat that's been thrown from a sixth story window finds in him a tender nurse. And even a rat that's been worried by a terrier arouses the susceptibilities of his nature. A short time ago he discovered a severely used-up rat. He took it home to his room, bought it cream and fish, washed its wounds daily, tended it as carefully as a mother would her most loved child, and petted and caressed it. When it was entirely well, it continued to live with him. Last week he went out, leaving a bureau drawer open. When he returned in the evening he found the rat at work industriously. It had gnawed through the bosoms of all the shirts he possessed. It had chewed up a box of kid gloves. It had destroyed half a dozen fine pocket-handkerchiefs. It had left his underclothing unfit for farther use. And it had swallowed the picture of the adored one—the picture he had so often sat for hours gazing at, on which he had imprinted kisses innumerable, was now being digested by a rat! Suddenly he lost all interest in that rat. Then he secured a pair of tongs, took the rat to the window, and carefully dropped it out. It lit on the head of a boy and then dropped to the ground. The boy danced a jig on it, yelling all the time. "You wanted to eat me up, did you? I'll show you." Since the rat ate up that beloved portrait, our sympathetic friend has, somehow, lost all interest in diseased animals.

Josh Billings.

The San Jose Mercury says: Josh Billings the famous humorist, is coming to California. He has accepted an invitation from the Sacramento Library Institute to open the second course of lectures in February. Some time since the Secretary of the San Jose Library Association received a letter from Billings' agent in regard to the early appearance of the great humorist in this city. We hope the arrangements will be made. We think Josh would draw.

Fastidious Youngster.

The Gold Hill News tells the following: Gold and silver pieces, coined at the Carson Mint, are frequently placed in circulation before they get fairly cold. The other day a two-year old youngster, the son of one of the attaches of the Mint, on being presented with some dimes by his father, objected to receiving them because they were cold. The fastidious youth demanded freshly roasted coin, hot as blazes.

Another Poison.

The Scientific American says that a new poison has been discovered. It is used for coloring candy, and its effect is to keep down the population. So Science marches on.

Hoping our soldiers will go forth

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The popularity which THE dramatist of the nineteenth century enjoys in San Francisco, was sufficiently proved last night by the immense audience which assembled, on one of the most blustering stormy nights known here for years. Every seat was occupied, and the aisles were filled with chairs. The performance commenced with the farce of "Jones' Baby," in which J. C. Williamson was excessively amusing as the "parient" in search of his lost off-spring, and Mrs. C. R. Saunders, W. A. Mestayer, Miss Nellie Cummings, F. J Buckley and others in the cast, played with much spirit. The applause and laughter proved that a California audience thoroughly enjoys a good farce well performed. After this, came "Boucicault in California," a sketch written by the dramatist to take the place of an introductory speech. Boucicault requires no introduction here, as he is well aware. In this sketch, he is at home at the Occidental Hotel, attended by his servant, Murphy (J. C. Williamson), Barton Hill entering to talk to him about the pieces in which he is to appear, and during the conversation Murphy "chips in" with telling remarks. Miss Maggie Moore appears as Miss Aurelia McGurk, a would-be debutante with "a splendid wardrobe," "a large circle of friends," and a "San Jose reputation." W. A. Mestayer makes his appearance as Bogus Push, of the Weekly Fill. Mr. Boucicault said many good things, Williamson made the house roar at his interruptions. Barton Hill was himself to perfection, Miss Maggie Moore played her part with much spirit, and W. A. Mestayer, wonderfully made-up for Charles Gayler (the antithesis of Boucicault, he being the worst, as Boucicault is the best, dramatist of the age) was extremely funny. At the conclusion of the trifle the author was called out and added a few words which were much applauded. After this, one of Mr. Boucicault's latest productions—"Kerry"—was presented with the author in the title role. This is one of the most charming plays ever written. The plot is very simple, but it is worked out so elaborately as to have all the interest of a five-act drama. Kerry (Dion Boucicault), is the devoted servant, of Gerald Desmond, (Lewis Morrison) a Lieutenant in the English navy, who is supposed to be lost in the troops ship Liverpool. Blanche Desmond (Miss Annie Graham), his wife is nearly dead with grief at his supposed death. She is sustained in her affliction by the devotion of Kerry, the affection of her sister Kate Desmond, (Miss Maggie Moore) and the strong friendship of "Coldham" (E. J. Buckley) a brother officer of her husband. Dr. Mellah (Walter Leaman,) the family physician watches over her tenderly, and insists that she be guarded from any sudden emotion of either joy or sorrow, as such might prove fatal. Coldham is in love with Kate Desmond, and proposes to her through, her sister who believing the offer made to herself is much hurt and retires from the room. The lost husband who has been rescued, and brought home, makes his appearance and sends poor old Kerry into a delirium of joy which is mingled with fear at the effect this sudden happiness may have on his mistress. He sees her and with Kate tells her a story of how the 'washer woman's son,'' who was supposed to have been lost at sea has returned, but alas! the washwoman is discovered to be a single woman who never had a son. Kerry is at his wit's end. The doctor arrives and at length the truth is allowed to break upon Blanche Desmond, and Desmond who is locked up in a room breaks out. Boucicault's impersonation of Kerry is one of the most exquisite bits of acting ever seen on any stage, and established him at once in the good graces of one of the most critical audiences before which it has ever been his fortune to appear. Play and actor are perfect, and the support afforded by Miss Annie Graham, Miss Maggie Moore, Lewis Morrison, E. J. Buckley, and Walter M. Leman, is all that could be desired. The same bill will be played to-night, when another overflowing audience will of course be present, seats being secured many days in advance for the few nights on which Mr. Boucicault can appear in this city.

Opera House.

The performance at this house last night, commenced with the very amusing farce of "Lodgers and Dodgers" in which J. P. Burnett did some clever acting as Mr. Singleton Sudbury an impecunious, good-hearted gentleman, and Miss Jennie Lee as Julia Juniper, was extremely lively and fascinating. After this came the capital burlesque of "Kenilworth" in which Miss Jennie Lee looks fascinating, and sings charmingly as the Earl of Leicester, and John Howson rouses a perfect hurricane of applause and laughter by his acting as Varney. The same bill will be played this evening, and should draw a crowded house.

Alhambra Theatre.

The new bill presented at this house last night was a great success. It comprised Welch and Rice in "The Happy Irish Couple," Ella Wesner in a most attractive budget of character songs, the Giraffe Boys, Messrs. Sweatnam and Manning—in their terrific leap for life, and another blood curdling performance, George Knight in new specialties, introducing his original song "Dot House on de Cliff," the Siegrist Troupe and their accomplished dogs, and the laughable sketch of "The Squire's Man," in which Con. T. Murphy, Geo. S. Knight, C. Reed, Miss Jennie Sherman and others played. The same bill will be presented to-night.

Platt's Hall.

This hall was crowded last night when Miss Annie Higgs was the recipient of a complimentary benefit. The various temperance societies for whom the little lady has so often volunteered her services turned out well, and paid a well deserved compliment to the young California artiste. The performance was quite a success in every way. The beneficiary gained great applause for her clever and varied performances, and all the volunteers acquitted themselves well.

Bella Union.

"Looking for Work," "Red Hot," "On Guard" and "The Four Old Maids" are only a few of the acts in which Johnny Tuers, Tommy Barton, Matt Kelly, Tommy Bree and other Ethiopian comedians at this house will appear to-night. The full programme is published on our first page.

Buckley's Varieties.

Miss Nettie Wayne the charming vocalist, Leon Samwells, the famous acrobat, Mortimore the change artiste, and many others will appear to night in a great bill, terminating with the screaming farce of "Here She Goes, and There She Goes."

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Madame Anna Bishop's Benefit.

The box sheet for this entertainment was opened at Platt's Hall yesterday, and in the course of the day five hundred seats were taken. The benefit comes off on Thursday, when the opera of "Norma will be performed.

Woodward's Gardens.

Skating in the pavilion, the museum, the picture gallery, the conservatories, and other attractions at these gardens can be enjoyed every day. Two balloons will arrive by the Panama steamer. These will be anchored, and hourly ascensions will be made.

IRREPARABLE.

BY RICHARD HENRY STODDARD.

The sorrow of all sorrows
Was never sung or said,
Though many a poet borrows
The mourning of the dead,
And darkly buries pleasure
In some melodious measure.

The loss of youth is sadness
To all who think, or feel—
A wound no after gladness
Can ever wholly heal;
And yet, so many share it
We learn at last to bear it.

The faltering and the failing
Of friends is sadder still;
For friends grown foes assailing
Know when and where to kill;
But souls themselves sustaining,
Have still a friend remaining.

The death of those who love us;
And those we love, is sore;
But think they are above us,
Or think they are no more;
We bear the blows that sever
We cannot weep forever!

The sorrow of all sorrows
Is deeper than all these,
And all that anguish borrows
Upon its bended knees;
No tears nor prayers relieve it,
No loving vows deceive it

It is one day to waken
And find that love is flown,
And cannot be o'ertaken,
And we are left alone;
No word that can be spoken,
No heart that can be broken!

No wish for love's returning,
Or something in its stead:
No missing and yearning
As for the dearer dead;
No yesterday, no morrow,
But everlasting sorrow!

—Scribner's for January

A Lawyer's Power.

During the Tichborne trial, Dr. Kenealy told the following story to illustrate the dangerous ingenuity of Mr. Hawkins, the leading counsel for the Crown, in the art of cross-examination. He said: "Indeed, my learned friend can sometimes say what he pleases. You perhaps may remember the great bug case, in which my learned friend shone with such lustre. It was an action brought by a London householder to recover rent, which the defendant refused to pay because the house was so overrun with bugs that he could not live in it. My learned friend examined and cross-examined, and re-examined the witness till the whole court seemed filled with an atmosphere of bugs. My learned friend at last asked a witness: 'Were not the bugs in such strong numbers and so well organized that when you went to catch them they turned round in the bed and barked at you?' This poor witness was so overcome by my learned friend's skill and audacity that he answered: "I believe they did.'"

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'd
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

A Cruel Libel.

A woman in Fort Laramie has sued a paper for saying that she has murdered three husbands, when the fact is she hasn't murdered but two, the third one getting away with a broken rib. There is nothing like being accurate when dealing with such grave matters.

Lipman's Great Discovery

Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. WEDNESDAY.....JANUARY 21, 1874

A Literary Curiosity.

The Chronicle's "criticism" of Dion Boucicault, in yesterday's issue, was extremely funny. It is written in neither English, German, Irish, nor Chinook, but in some unheard-of jargon. The writer says: "—Why Charles Gayler should be represented as the reporter of a San Francisco weekly, seems slightly incongruous." Did the man mean to say that Charles Gayler's being represented as such seemed incongruous. We suppose so. The whole article is a painful exhibition of a struggle with parts of speech, and a blind grabbing at moods and tenses. It must have been the work of the "senior proprietor."

Marriage in New York.

The New York Observer says:

We believe there is no statute law in the State of New York defining precisely what constitutes a legal marriage, but numerous decisions of the Courts have established a common law. When a man not previously married lives with a woman, treating her as such, she becomes his wife in law without any marriage ceremony, and is entitled to all the rights of property inhering to a wife.

With these decisions we don't see where the profits of the clergymen and Justices of the Peace come in. It is the simplest thing in the world now-a-days to be married unintentionally.

A Knickerbocker.

Mrs. Margaret Stuyvesant Gibson, who died at Waterford, New York, recently, in her eighty-fourth year, was the sixth descendant, on her mother's side, of Petrus Stuyvesant who was Governor of the Colony from 1647 to 1664, the last Governor under Dutch authority. Her father, Direk Ten Broeck, was Speaker of the Assembly when John Jay was Governor, in 1796, 1798, 1800.

That is nothing! We can beat the above a generation, in Knickerbocker genealogy, and are still alive, with a chance of yet getting abig slice of that Trinity-Church property.

Pleasing to the Clergy.

We rather like the heading to the account of the death of Annie Powers, which appeared in the Alta:—"A Clergyman's Daughter Drives two Husbands to Frenzy." The Alta says that this affair called forth the remark, "Here's another chance for the reporters to go for the underground mills." Isn't it a chance also for the reporters to go for the clergymen and their daughters.

Ah! Ah! Eh. Eh.

The Alta brevity man has left off italicising his jokes, and we are afraid the public can't see them now. Here is one:

The driver of a spice wagon was thrown from his vehicle yesterday, at the corner of Clay and Montgomery streets. He clove to the reins until the horse was stopped.

Spice, clove, see it? Clevah, deuced clevah.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Colville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Painter of France.

Delacroix's picture, "Le Sardanapale," has recently been sold at Paris for the enormous price of 96 000 francs, and the owner announces his intention of exhibiting it in London, and perhaps in this country. The picture was first displayed to the public in 1827, the same year that witnessed the exhibition of "The Apotheosis of Homer," by Ingres. Paris was divided on the subject of these rival pictures, and, by their admirers and detractors, they were alternately lauded and condemned unsparingly; the enthusiasts for color, the sticklers for severity of drawing, waged wordy war. The academy carried the day, and Delacroix was stigmatized as destitute alike of taste and execution. He was at that time poor and proud—so poor that some months later, after completing his picture, "La Barque de Dante," only a day or two before the time appointed for the meeting of the committee, he was without money sufficient to buy a frame for the picture. In despair he made one himself, but fearing the frame would cause the picture to be rejected, with but faint hopes he sent it to the Louvre.

On the opening day, Delacroix hastened to the palace, went through the rooms, and, not seeing his picture, turned away discouraged. As he was descending the stairs he met one of the custodians, who said:

"Well, you must be satisfied now."

"Why?"

"Go into the grand salon and look at the picture that faces the entrance."

Delacroix hastened back and there in the place of honor, saw this picture in a most superb frame. He inquired, and learned that, owing to the meanness of the frame, his picture had been cast aside without examination, when Baron Gros, after the last of the committee had left, examined it carefully. Then sending for the finest frame in the storeroom, had the picture reframed, and ordered in the place of honor.

Delacroix, though personally unacquainted with Gros, hastened to his studio to thank him for his kindness. He found the baron, whose polish of manner did not equal his kindness of heart before his easel, pallette in hand.

"Ah!" said Gros, as he was announced, "you are the man who painted the ship! 'tis well done, I assure you."

"I am very grateful—"

"No, no, your picture is a fine one, so far as color is concerned, a very fine one; but for the drawing—you must let me tell you—you draw like a hog!"

In after years Delacroix used to tell this story with infinite relish.

A Cat Organ.

In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries there were few public festivals, triumphal processions, or perambulating shows, in which trained animals did not occupy a prominent position. A Spanish chronicler gives an account of a procession in Brussels, in 1549, organized for the entertainment of King Philip II. The band were stationed on a large car; in the centre sat a huge bear playing on an organ, not consisting of reeds and pipes, but a score of cats, enclosed in separate boxes where they could not move; the tail of each one was drawn out through an aperture, and tied to a string corresponding to one of the keys of the instrument, so when the bear struck these keys the cats' tails were jerked, and the poor creatures howled in a most dismal manner. There were tenors and bases, and they were trained to mew in concert. Poodles and monkeys danced to the string music, "and," the chronicler goes on to say "although King Philip was the most solemn and demure of men, he could not refrain from laughing on beholding the strange sight." Several other styles of cat organs were afterwards invented, and in one of these sharp points or needles were substituted for the strings.

The Wife of Agassiz.

I know what those silent lips would say if just here their testimony could be gathered. I would be a testimony as sweet and beautiful as that of John Stuart Mill to the helpmate he so devoutly loved. It may be a fact less familiar to the public, but it is one well-known to Prof. Agassiz's friends, that his wife was his complement and in every sense a helpmate. What the professor lacked in order, method, or business habits, was abundantly supplied by Mrs. Agassiz. It was her graceful and assiduous pen that recast and put into more classic moulds the professor's ready English.

It was her constant encouragement and stimulus that supported the professor in new and difficult undertakings. Her counsel was always listened to with respect. It is safe to say that we should not have had so many of his works put in a permanent form in English if it had not been for her earnest co-operation. The professor, as all know, was a ready lecturer, and always delivered his addresses without manuscript. In all of his lectures and speeches near home, Mrs. Agassiz accompanied him whenever possible, and took copious notes, and thus preserved the thought for future use.

All of his communications for the press passed through her hands. She wrote much from his dictation, attended to a great many of his business details, and in a thousand ways forwarded his work. Every word of praise we bestow on the silent dead is an unuttered recognition of her who shared alike his labors and his rewards. Let us hope that she who knew him better than any or all of us may crown this life of devotion by completing and giving to the world her own record—long since begun—of the genius and work of him whose departure has left such a void in our hearts.—Boston Letter.

Friends.

As we live on we find out who are the people that we have really loved, which of our companions belongs to us, linked in friendship as well as by the chances of life or relationship. Sometimes it is not until they are gone that we discover who and what they were to us—those "good friends and true" with whom we were at ease, tranquil in the security of their kind presence. Some of us, the longer we live, only feel more and more that it is not in utter loneliness that the great at peace is to be found. A little child starts up in the dark, and, finding itself alone, begins to cry and toss in its bed, as it holds out its arms in search of a protecting hand; and men and women seem for the most part true to this first childish instinct as they awaken suddenly. (How strange these awakenings! In what incongruous places and seasons do they come to us!) People turn helplessly, looking here and there for protection, for sympathy, for affection, for charity of human fellowship. Give it what name you like, it is the same cry for companionship, and terror of the death of silence and absence. Human sympathy, represented by inadequate words or by clumsy exaggeration, by feeble signs or pangs innumerable, by sudden glories and unreasonable ecstasies is, when we come to think of it, among the most reasonable of emotions. It is life indeed; it binds us to the spirit of our race as our senses bind us to the material world, and makes us feel at times as if we were indeed a part of Nature herself, and possessed chords responding to her touch.

A Stage Manager's Delight.

The Howard, which had closed its doors after the departure of the Marsh children in February, was opened June 1st, 1859, by Signor Donnetti's trained troupe of dogs and monkeys. The monkeys were a dramatic company, and Signor Donnetti announced with honest pride that they had performed with the greatest success for over three hundred nights in Paris, and on one occasion received the personal approbation of the Emperor himself. He pledged himself that each and every monkey was a conscientious artist, always perfect in his or her role and subordinated to discipline. No monkey had ever been known to refuse a part. The leading man of the monkeys was said to be a robust, vigorous artist, with much dramatic fire and energy, being particularly fitted for those parts in the Darwinian drama, analogous to the Macbeths and Richards of your regular stage. The leading lady was acknowledged as very bewitching and pathetic to a degree; and the low comedian was declared to be fun incarnate. Suffice it to say they all made hits, and we have often wondered why Signor Donnetti has not since favored Bostonians with the intellectual exhibitions of his charming artists.—Boston Courier.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

The very lively farce of "B. B.," in which J. P. Burnett, Miss Jennie Lee, W. Simms and others appear, is received nightly with roars of laughter. The burlesque of "Kenilworth," with which the evening's entertainment concludes, is extremely amusing. H. D. Thompson, as good Queen Bess, is very funny; Miss Jennie Lee looks bewitchingly as the Earl of Leicester, and acts with great spirit; and John Howson as Varney is a whole circus troupe in himself. His wonderful trained steed is a marvel of power, beauty and intelligence.

Alhambra Theatre.

Welch and Rice in song and dance, Ella Wesner in her l gghing changes, George S. Knight in his comical Dutch specialties, the Siegrist Troupe and their wonderful dogs, the extraordinary Giraffe Brothers, and many other entertaining features will be found in the programme for to-night, which appears on our first page. On Friday night Master Thomas Maguire, the Treasurer of the Theatre, will take a benefit, and will, we hope, handle much coin on that occasion.

California Theatre.

Another large and brilliantly fastidious audience greeted Dion Boucicault last night, when he made his second appearance on the California stage. "Korry" is pronounced by all who have witnessed it a gem of the first water, and Mr Boucicault's impersonation of the title role the perfection of acting. The same bill will be presented to-night for the last time. To-morrow (Thursday) evening, "The Colleen Bawn" will be produced.

Bella Union.

Johnny Tuers is a great favorite at this house where he appears nightly on the end in the first part, and also in amusing acts. "Sally Ann," in which Miss Jennie Johnson plays Lucy Manvers, is received nightly with much applause.

Buckley's Varieties.

George Foster, Harry Devoy and Hughey Morton present the pleasant sketch of "Scenes in the South" in capital style, the double polka by Miss Fanny Webster and M'lle Blanche is always applauded, and there are many attractive features in the bill.

Madame Anna Bishop's Benefit.

The sale of seats for Madame Anna Bishop's benefit, which is to come off at Platt's Hall to-morrow evening, indicates that a full house will be in attendance. "Norma" will be performed on the occasion, with the beneficiary in the title role, Miss Anna Elzer as Adalgisa, and Signer Baccei as Pollio.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

Skating in the pavilion, the museum, the picture gallery, the conservatories, and other attractions at these gardens can be enjoyed every day. Two balloons will arrive by the Panama steamer. These will be anchored, and hourly ascensions will be made.

SPINNING.

Like a blind spider in the sun
I tread my days;
I know that all the threads will run
Appointed ways;
I know each day will bring its task,
And, being blind, no more I ask.

I do not know the use or name
Of that I spin;
I only know that some one came
And laid within
My hand the thread, and said, "Since you
Are blind, but one thing can you do."

Sometimes the threads so rough and fast
And tangled fly,
I know wild storms are sweeping past,
And fear that I
Shall fall; but dare not try to find
A safer place, since I am blind.

I know not why, but I am sure
That flint and place
In some great fabric to endure
Past time and race
My threads will have; so from the first,
Though blind, I never feel accurst.

I think, perhaps, this trust has sprung
From one short word—
Said over me when I was young—
So young I heard
It, knowing not that God's name signed
My brow, and sealed me his, though blind.

But whether this be seal or sign
Within, without,
It matters not. The bond divine
I never doubt.
I know he sat me here, and still,
And glad, and blind, and wait his will.

But listen, listen, day by day,
To hear their tread
Who bear the finished web away,
And cut the thread,
And bring God's message in the sun,
"Thou poor blind spinner, work is done."

A Jolly Songstress.

The Baltimore correspondent of the Arcadian says in a recent letter: You should see Madame Rouzeaud-Nilsson in the domestic circle. She has the most wonderful faculty of ingratiating herself with children. She will get down on the floor among them, enter into all their fun and infantile architecture, and then precipitate them into ecstacies by whistling for them, and she whistles like a flute or a nightingale, or playing the violin. It is really wonderful to hear her whistle; no one ever could do it better. There is nothing she is fonder of than a good romp with a lot of lively children; she makes them all infatuated with her in less than a minute, and she kicks up more noise than an eight-horse power schoolgirl.

A Gallant Duck.

It is nothing uncommon for a young lady to have a dearest duck, but a damsel in Athol, Mass., has an unmetaphorical feathered duck which follows her just like that little lamb which was sure to go wherever Mary did. At a recent musical entertainment, instead of absurdly going on and trying to sing, this sensible duck waited below until the concert was over, and then escorted his mistress home, to the great indignation, no doubt, of the feartherless geese who would have gladly been summoned to that sweet service.

Procrastination.

The residence of the late William Shakspeare, at Stratford on Avon, was recently sold to a New Zealander for £190,000. The Louisville Journal says the inconsiderate savage might have saved nine-tenths of his money if he had gone over in time to make the trade with Shakspeare himself.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins'[s]
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Act Out Your Nature.

Sidney Smith says: Whatever you are from nature keep to it; never desert your own line of talent. If Providence only intended you to write posies for rings, or mottoes for twelfth-cakes, keep to posies and mottoes; a good motto for a twelfth-cake is more respectable than a villainous epic poem in twelve books. Be what nature intended you for, and you will succeed; be anything else, and you will be ten thousand times worse than nothing.

Lipman's Great Discovery

Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Remarkable Delicacy.

The dramatic critic of the Evening Post, and he of the Chronicle also, thinks the farce of "Jones' Baby" very "broad." The former hints that it is positively indecent. We are sorry that he should be shocked by the production of such a piece. "Jones' Baby" didn't shock the ladies and gentlemen of London, when it was produced at one of the first-class theatres. They thought it very good fun. A great many of them have babies themselves, and don't think them indecent. Of course it is indecent for some people to have babies. For the dramatic critic of either the Post or the Chronicle to have a baby would be grossly indecent; more—it would be an outrage on the community. These remarkably delicate individuals remind us of the maiden lady who never allowed her birthday to be celebrated, and always blushed at the mention of her father because it was "suggestive." As for ourselves, we don't consider "Jones' Baby" more indecent than the generality of babies. We never saw a baby that was not indecent, but we have got used to it, and don't mind it. It is really a pity that these young men, who are shocked at a broad farce, should be in a position to have their feelings of delicacy outraged. The sooner they are taken off the theatrical business and set to work reporting drunks and runaways, the better it will be for the readers of the papers.

Perhaps Not.

John F. Ford hits a heavy blow. Patrick Linehan married his great aunt, and asserted his "rights" by beating her. John F. Ford being a man, would not see a woman beaten without interfering, so he let out from the shoulder, and struck the husband of his great aunt so that he died. The Alta reporting this says:

He feels that he acted in self defence, and while it will be the regret of his former years, yet he thinks it was one of those unavoidable, fatal mishaps that will at times occur to mar the harmony of unobtrusive lives.

We think Mr. Ford troubles himself too much about this matter. "His former years" will, we have no doubt, be spent very pleasantly, and this unavoidable act will not tinge with regret his memories of the future.

A Noble Longing.

Watterson, of the Courier-Journal, having been informed that Baltimore has 16,000 more women than men, says: "We never go to that blessed city that the number and beauty of the girls there don't make us long to seize a couple of car-loads of them and fly to the bosom of the Mormon Church as a city of refuge."

We have felt just the same kind of feeling in San Francisco, and we have the advantage that it is a little nearer to Salt Lake City.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 778 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11r

Asa L. Waugaman's New Saloon,

Corner of Halleck and Leidesdorff streets. Large and commodious saloon centrally located, with ante-rooms, supplied with the best brands of Liquors and Cigars; bountsous hot lunch—his great specialty—served from 11 A. M. to 2 P. M., and a cold lunch afterwards. Drop in and "be satisfied." 12bh

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

Our butter and cheese we bought at Chapman's, 72 and 73 California Market, and pronounce it superior to any in the market. 12v

Fresh and Sweet.

For the best confectionery, go to Canty and Wagner's, 107 Montgomery St. near Sutter. 1

Nutmegs.

[From the Danbury News of Saturday.]

A Danbury man, the possessor of several old papers, very thoughtfully mailed them to Miss Susan B. Anthony, on Wednesday, as a holiday gift.

"Old Michael," the New Fairfield charcoal peddler, being asked why he did not attend church, deprecatingly explained that he "lived so d—d fur he couldn't git there."

All little boys are not indifferent to the needs of their little sisters. There is an ingenious lad on Pine street who snowballs obese pedestrians with a view to making them dodge. The strain they are thus subjected to breaks off more or less of their buttons, which he industriously gathers after the victim's departure, and gives to his sister to put on a string.

Johnny, aged six, is the hero of this tale. Last Thanksgiving day his paternal remarked, while at the table, that the turkey "fairly made his mouth water." That being a good sentence, Johnny laid it by for future use, and to-day (Christmas) while at the table, he fairly startled the company with the remark, "I say, father, that turkey fairly makes water in my mouth."

There is a sort of delirious joy in looking over a family album, especially if it is a very old album with a sprained back, which occasionally and unexpectedly drops through your fingers, leaving a couple of cousins in one hand, and three aunts in the other, and the balance of the family under the chair. The first picture is of an old gentleman with an expression of wary cautiousness in his face, as if he were engaged in dodging a wild bull, and was somewhat doubtful of the result. Opposite him is the grandmother, a patient-looking lady in a black dress, with a book in one hand and a pair of spectacles in the other. There is a feeble but well-meaning effort to look safe in her face. On the next leaf is a middled-aged man, looking as if he had been suddenly shot through the roof of a starch factory, and had landed in the middle of a strange country. Opposite is the picture of his wife, who, having heard a rumor of the catastrophe, has made up her mind to be prepared for the worst. Then follow the children—little girls looking so prim as to make you squirm, and little boys with their eyes turned on their noses, and with an expression on their face of unearthly solemnity. Then follows uncles, taken in their overcoats, with a spreading inclination in their clothes, hair and face, as if they were bound to get their money's worth; and aunts with warts on their noses, and varnish in their hair, and preposterous lace collars about their necks. Then there is the bashful young man penned opposite an aggressive young lady, whom heaven and some married women have designed for each other. There are also the pictures of Cousin Alcek and his young wife, who stopped here when on their tour, and no young man looks at him without retiring at once and registering a terrible vow never to get married. Beside these is the picture of the man who lived next door for eight years, at the end of which time his wife died, and he moved to Illinois with the children and is now worth some fifty thousand dollars. He has been photographed in his hat, which is one size too large for him, and which gives him an appearance of having murdered his aunt and concealed the body. Then there are two or three fine looking corsairs of no particular identity, and several broken-spirited women with babies in their arms—directly or indirectly related to the owners of the album; and the exhibition closes.

What a Pity.

The young man who airs himself on Merchant street below Kearny, and carries under his arm a couple of law books, isn't a lawyer. He's only a weak-minded and infatuated youth, who thinks it's a higher honor to be a bad lawyer than a good waiter. He doesn't stand alone in that hallucination.

A Dutiful Son.

Rev. Gent.—"But you really can have no serious reason to wish to be parted from your wife."

Rustic—"Well, no sir! I like my wife well enough, but, you see, she don't please mother."

The Great Fortune Teller.

A fresh, young, budding girl, trembling with emotion, evidently laboring under great distress of mind, was introduced by the servant into the great fortune teller's study.

"Oh, Madame!" exclaimed the young girl, "you who read the future, come to my help."

Madame L normand looked intently for some time at the trembling fawn-like figure, and, after asking a few insignificant questions, she said in an impressive tone:

"You have fled from your father's house!"

"Alas! yes."

"It was love that induced you!"

"It was."

"He entreated you to follow him!"

"It is true."

"So much for the present, then, my child."

"But the future, madame, the future."

"The future—this is the future. He will leave you, abandon you to infamy and poverty, leave you to die of shame and grief. Despair and sorrow will send your father to his grave."

Then putting her arm round the poor child, she soothed her, spoke words of affection and reason, till her mind became clearer; and then, when tears began to flow, and the feverish excitement of passion abated, she ordered her carriage and took her home.

A few days after, the fortune teller was sent for to receive the thanks of the father for saving his child from a libertine's infamy.

As she was taking her leave, the now happy young girl kissed her hand, and gazing thankfully and wonderingly in the face of her benefactress, said:

"You are indeed a prophetess—nothing is hidden from you—the present, the future."

"No, my child, I am not a prophetess, nor a witch—but I am a mother, and the instincts of a mother's heart inspired me."

We are afraid the fortune-tellers are not generally as good and conscientious as Madame Lenormand was. They could do incalculable good by giving the silly girls who consult them advice, which their knowledge of the world eminently qualifies them to bestow.

Marriage in California.

There is a paper published in New York, which howls about the slavery of marriage, and insists that marriage should be simply a civil contract which can be dissolved at the pleasure of the parties who made it. The chains of matrimony are not very irksome in California, under the Code. To get married, there need be no application to either clergyman or Justice of the Peace. People may just consider themselves married, and they are so. There is not much interference here. Then, to get unmarried, all that is necessary is, for the parties to separate for one year, for one to "desert" the other—and lo! the "chains" are loosed. If this is not liberal enough, we don't know what the apostles of the new dispensation require. Surely it is well, in such a very serious matter as the dissolution of a partnership, which was intended, when it was entered on, to be for life to give a year's consideration to the benefit or ills likely to result from such dissolution of partnership. We are of opinion that often, in cases of matrimonial infelicity, a year's separation would result in the two coming together and living happily as man and wife until death. The only flaw in the law which the radicals will be able to find is, that it is necessary in order to obtain a divorce on the grounds of "desertion," that one of the parties shall profess his or her consent to resume the relationship with the other, which was broken off by his or her desertion. When both are agreed to separate, then the law says no. There is certainly an inconsistency in this. However, inhabitants of the Golden State cannot, we think, complain that the marriage laws are irksome and tyrannical.

Alhambra Theatre.

This house is always crowded, and the applause which rewards the efforts of the stars who nightly appear here, prove how thoroughly the entertainment given suits the public taste. Ella Wesner, the Siegrists, Welch and Rice, Sweetnam and Manning, George S. Knight and others, whose names appear on our first page, will all take part in the performance this evening.

California Theatre.

Every one in San Francisco wishes to see Dion Boucicault during the time he is here. They are the more anx ous now that it is decided that he is in character parts as good an actor as he is a dramatist. Kerry will long live in the memory of our theatregoers as one of the most exquisite bits of acting ever witnessed in this city. To-night "The Colleen Bawn," which, we believe, Mr. Boucicault considers his best play, will be presented, with the author as "Miles na Coppaleen," Miss Maggie Moore as Ily O'Connor, Miss Lillie Wilson as Anne Chute, J. C. Williamson as Danny Mann, Lewis Morrison as Hardress Cregan, and a generally strong cast, which is published in full on our first page.

Opera House.

Those who have not recently visited this house have no idea how excellent an entertainment is given here. The burlesque of "Kenilworth," in which John Howson does such wonderful things in the character of Varney, is one of the brightest things presented on the stage for a long time. To-night the roaring farce entitled "Mother Goose and the Golden Eggs," will be presented, in which J. P. Burnett, John Howson and other members of the company appear.

Platt's Hall.

To-night the world-renowned cantatrice, Mme. Anna Bishop, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit, and will make her first appearance in some years in Italian opera, playing the role of Norma in the grand opera of that name She will be supported by Miss Anna Eizer as Adalgisa, Signor Pietro Baccei as Pollio, Signor Rigo as Oroveso, Mrs. George T. Evans as Clotilda, and Mons. Charles as Flavio. The sale of seats has been so large that there is no doubt about the attendance. There will be a very large and fashionable audience, and we are sure that the performance will be worthy of the occasion.

The Dashaway Association.

The usual Social—under the auspices of the Dashaway Association, will be held in the lower Hall this evening.

Bella Union.

Johnny Tuers in the first part and also in "Red Hot" and the "Four Old Maids," Miss Jennie Johnson in "Sally Ann," Nickerson in specialities. Moore and Bray in song and dance, and many other attractions will be offered at this house to-night. A new bill is in preparation for to-morrow evening.

Buckley's Varieties.

Woodward's Gardens.

Skating in the pavilion, the museum, the picture gallery, the conservatories, and other attractions at these gardens can be enjoyed every day. Two balloons will arrive by the Panama steamer. Theirs will be anchored, and hourly ascensions will be made.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon in elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street.

THE SPIRIT TO ITS MATE.

How near I am thou canst not know
By outward sign or token;
My spirit in thy thought perceives,
Not in the language spoken.

With thee by day I share the life
That gives to thee thy being,
And in thy consciousness I see
The sum of all thy seeing.

Through every sense my spirit learns
With thee the touch of nature;
And feels the harmony of life
Created in thy creature.

With me, when slumber shuts the gates
Of life's material portals,
Thy spirit wanders through the spheres
The land of the immortals.

Our peace doth like a river flow
Through landscapes ever vernal,
Along the shifting banks of time
And in the land eternal.

Forever one, we seek no more
In sadness, hungry hearted,
For the dear angel of our life,
Unknown or erst departed.

We wait not for a heaven to come
Down from the heights above us;
Our heaven is in this life of love,
With all we love who love us.

Unfortunate Mr. Bailey.

A student in the State University at Iowa City, by the name of Bailey, wrote to Bailey of the Danbury News, to ask if the man of humor was any of his kin. He received this reply:

"DANBURY, CONN., December 8, 1873.

"In answer to your note I am compelled to say that some one has got up a corner on my relatives of the name of Bailey, and that at present I am not in possession of one, to my knowledge.

"It is a fearful thing to stand alone in the world, without a single, or married, relative in the distance, but I am so successful in concealing my sorrow that no one suspects its existence.

"Whether my ancestors came over in the Mayflower depends in a large measure upon what was the passage money. If anything at all, I am inclined to believe that they 'went around.'

"When asked if I am a relation of yours, you should kindly, but firmly, deny it. It is going to be too hard a winter to take on relations. Yours in sympathy,

"J. W. BAILEY."

Poor Dumb Creature.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe asserts that while men riot and revolutionize, "there is nothing but dumb submission for women." Which the Kingston Freeman supplements with the sympathetic remark, that "Julia's dumbness is one of the most affecting spectacles of the age."

A New Industry.

In the Indian Territory every settler who marries a squaw is hereafter to be presented with a section of land. A good-looking gentleman could gobble up the whole Territory in a year or two.

Unusually Quiet.

A New Hampshire farmer's wife fell into a well, and it was four days before he missed her, and made search. He said he thought the house unusually quiet, but he didn't know what made it so.

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second Hat Store below Kearny). The prices are remarkably reasonable. 1r

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Had Her There.

Quilp and his wife had a bit of contention the other day. "I own that you have more brilliancy than I," said the woman, "but I have the better judgment." "Yes," said Quilp, "your choice in marriage shows that!" Quilp was informed that he was a brute.

Boy Nature.

"Say, have you got any books for boys that ain't got no religion in 'em?" was the inquiry a juvenile made at a New York book store.

A Jealous Camel.

On the 3d, while Wm. H. Conklin, superintendent of the animal department of Central Park, was feeding the camels, the largest male of them suddenly lifted him up by seizing him with his teeth, and then violently threw him to the ground. Not satisfied with this, the animal stepped on him till he had broken his right leg, and would have undoubtly continued his attacks but for an interference of the keepers, who hit him on the snout. It was a case of jealousy. Conklin having recently nursed the female companion of his assailant during a brief spell of sickness, to the gratification of the patient, and the ire of its mate.

We think this a pretty hard case. Mr. Conklin nursed this wretched camel's wife through her sickness, and intead of thanks received "human" treatment for it. If the jealous husband had been a man, we should not thought much of it, but we expected better things of a camel.

Railroad Liabilities.

The Chicago Times roughly inquires: "Why should the Washington Government guarantee Tom Scott's liabilities any more than any other man's liabilities?" This reminds us, says the Cincinnati Gazette, as Lincoln would say, of a little story. "McLean," said General Dix, (now Governor of New York) to Washington McLean, who had provided himself with an immense demijohn of whisky, which he wanted sent to General Roger A. Pryor, in Fort Lafayette—"McLean, why should you expect me to send a jug of whisky to General Pryor, I should like to know?" "Because," was the reply, "General Pryor likes whisky." Dix hadn't thought of that. The reason was a perfect novelty to him. So he smiled and passed the jug. Tom Scott's liabilities probably might be paid because it would oblige him very much. He would like it. Pay them, of course.

Good Advice.

The editoral philosopher of the Logansport (Ind.,) Pharos issues good advices:

Don't invest all your money in lottery tickets. Give some other man a chance to draw a prize.

Don't tell an editor how to run a newspaper. Let the poor fool find out for himself.

Don't loaf about the streets and depend on the Lord for your "daily bread." He isn't running a bakery.

Don't discuss scientific questions with a lightning-rod man. His arguments are generally solid, and always pointed.

Don't spend all your time in watching your neighbors. Every one should be selfish enough to devote a few hours to his own business.

Don't imagine that the Lord will call a first-class preacher to a church paying a second-class salary. He doesn't treat his children so shabbily.

Don't abuse honest office-holders in print who have refused to loan you $1,000 just before election. It is too thin.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind,

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410. below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Gorville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
Th-re you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Smooth Eph.

We find the following in the White Pine News and it is a good one:

A certain mining superintendent we wo of on the Comstock range, but who shall be nameless here, has the smoothest way of doing all manner of unpleasant things of any man above the sod. He may be said to oil the very hinges of the world as he moves along through it. Our superintendent never makes things "rough" for any one where he can just as well make them smooth. As an instance: He had some men working in a drift in his mine who were inclined to take things easy. Visiting them he examined the rock in the face of the drift, saying:

"My dear boys this rock seems very hard."

"Very hard," said they.

It's too bad, too bad, that it should be so hard," said he, fumbling about and slyly making a mark on the rock near the face of the drift, "terrible work to get it out," added he.

"Terrible," said they.

"Too bad," said he, "but do the best you can my children." The next day he again made his appearance in the drift. Examining the rock in it face, he saw that no perceptible advance had been made beyond his mark.

"I see," said he, "that rock is still as hard as ever."

"No change," said the men.

"Well, well; it's too bad we can get no change. The rock is so hard that I hardly know what we shall do. It is hard on you, too, my children, but I hope it may not worry you much longer." Take care of yourselves," and up to the surface he goes, finds his foreman, and thus addresses him:

"See here, those infernal loafing devils in that southeast drift hain't made two inches in the last two days. D—m such men! When they come up give them their time."

Strolling along C street during the afternoon, our superintendent meets the "children" of the southeast drift who have received their walking papers and starting out in search of "new worlds to conquer."

Our superintendent is greatly surprised.

"Why, hallo! my children, what are you doing up here at this time of day? Has anything happened at the mine?"

"No," say they, "nothing the matter, but the foreman has discharged us."

"Discharged you, my children, I don't know what I shall do with that foreman. I never get a set of good, idustrious men, but he goes and discharges them. Too bad, too bad, the way he uses me. Discharged my best men and the rock in the drift so hard, too! What I am to do now I don't know. Well, well—good-by, my children; we all have little trials in this world.,'

A Hard Case.

Scribner for January contains the following gem. As a contemporary justly observes there is something radically wrong in the formation of society, which forces silence upon women, preventing them from giving expression to their affections at a period of life when their future destiny is on the verge of decision. Bulwer, by the way, in that other "strange story" of his called the Coming Race, gives to woman the exclusive privilege of making advances to the loved object:

I am a woman—therefore I may not
Call to him, cry to him,
Fly to him,
Pray him delay not!

And when he comes to me I must sit quiet;
Still as a stone is,
Harder and colder,
If my heart riot,
Crush and defy it!
Should I grow bolder—
Say one dear thing to him,
Cling to him—
What to stone is
Enough for my sinning!
This were the cost to me,
This were my winning—
That he were lost to me!

Not as a lover at last if he part from me,
Tearing my heart from me—
Hurt beyond cure—
Calm and demure,
Then my behavior;
Showing no sign to him
By look of mine to him
What he has been to me.
Pity me—lean to me—
Christ—O, my Saviour!

A Concise Will.

This is the last will of the great and good man, Agassiz:

"The last will and testament of Louis Agassiz, of Cambridge, in the county of Middlesex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, teacher.

First—I give to my son, Alexander E. B. Agassiz, such of my scientific books as he may select from my library, hoping that when he shall have no further use for them he will add them to the rest of my library of scientific books, which I hereby give to the Museum of Comparative Zoology, in Cambridge.

Second—I give and devise all the rest of my estate, now owned and hereafter acquitted, unto my beloved wife, Elizabeth C. Agassiz, to hold to her, her heirs and assigns, forever. I make no provision for either of my daughters, Ida and Pauline, not from any want of affection, but for the reason that my house in Cambridge (subject to mortage) is the only remaining piece of property that I have to dispose of.

I appoint my wife aforsaid to be the sole executor of this, my will, and I direct that she be exempted from giving surety on her bond as such.

In witness whereof I hereto set my hand, this 29th day of November, in the year of our Lord 1869.

L. AGASSIZ."

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

There was a tremendous house last night when the favorite drama of "The Colleen Bawn" was presented with the author in his original character of Myles-na-Coppaleen which he has played upwards of 1000 nights in London, and the United States. The crowd filled the theatre, and overflowed into the lobbies. Myles-na-Coppaleen as played by Dion Boucicault is an excellent personation, but his rendition of the part proves plainly that Charles Wheatleigh, and others who have performed it in this city have given faithful copies of the original. Every now and then there was a touch which the copyists had failed to reproduce, but on the whole the original did not greatly surpass the perfect reproductions of it, which we have been favored with in this city, except with the respect that an original must always be greater than a copy. The play has never been so excellently put on the stage, and perfectly acted as it was last night. Miss Maggie Moore as Kyle O'Connor played the part charmingly, never overstepping the modesty of nature, and winning all hearts by her naive simplicity. Lewis Morrison presented a rather meaner character than necessary, by his cold style of acting. Henry Edwards was excellent as Kyle Daly, J. C. Williamson presented a new style of Danny Mann, a Danny Mann drawn by Boucicault himself. It was a very effective impersonation, and was well received by the audience. Miss Ellie Wilton as Miss Anne Chute, gave a very spirited and altogether charming rendition of the role, Walter Leman was an excellent Father Tom, and Mrs. C. R. Saunders who never loses a chance to do a good bit of acting was particularly clever as Sheelah. W. Barry whom the public are always glad to see on the stage, acted the part of Mr. Corrigan capitally, avoiding over-doing it, and making it unnecessarily repulsive. Mrs. Sophie Edwin was excellent as Mrs. Uregan, and in the last act did some very good acting. Altogether the performance gave general satisfaction, and will draw another large audience to-night, as well as at the matinee to-morrow, when it will be performed for the last time but one.

Opera House.

The farce of the "Goose and the Golden Eggs" which was presented at this house last night excited roars of laughter. John Howson and J. P. Burnett as the two lawyers, Turby and Flickster, were wonderfully amusing, and Willie Simms, Miss Fanny Young, Miss Esther Williams, and Miss Louise Vavasour, played their respective parts with much animation. The burlesque of "Kenilworth" with Miss Jennie Lee as the Earl of Leicester, terminated the entertainment. The same bill will be presented to-night, and at the matinee to-morrow.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night the performance at this house will be for the benefit of Master Thomas Maguire, the nephew of his uncle, who as Treasurer of the house manages his department very faithfully and pleasantly. Welch and Rice, Ella Wesner, Geo. S. Knight, the Siegriets, and all the rest of the brilliant combination will appear in an immense bill. "The Giraffe Brothers" will perform their hood curdling feats, and other acts, specified on our first page will be presented. The programme which has delighted thousands during the week will be performed at the matinee to-morrow.

Platt's Hall.

Platt's Hall presented a brilliant spectacle last night, on the occasion of the complimentary benefit to the great prima donna, tendered by the best people in San Francisco. Every seat in the spacious hall was occupied, and the auditorium looked like a huge flower garden. The performance of "Norma" was one of the best renditions of that opera ever given in this city. Madame Anna Bishop fully realized the character of the Druid Priestess, and invested it with a dignity which it often lacks when performed by some "prima donna of half a dozen years' training. "Casta Diva" was sung in a manner which delighted the audience, and throughout the performance the audience listened with rapt attention to the notes of that wonderfully preserved voice. The beneficiary received able support from Miss Anna Elzar, Signor Bacosi, Signor Rigo, Mrs. Geo. T. Evans and Mons. Charles. This testimonial did as much honor to San Francisco, as it did to the noble artiste to whom it was offered.

Platt's Hall.

The Golden City Amateur Minstrels will have a benefit at the above-named hall on Thursday evening of next week. A very attractive programme will be presented. It's salient features are published on our first page, and comprises songs, acts and dances, and the farce of "Scenes in a Police Court," in which members of the Golden City Amateurs will appear.

Bella Union.

To-night in addition to many other attractions, the great moral drama of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" will be presented with Mis. Jennie Johnson as Polly, Little Minnie Loder as Mary Morgan, John Woodward as Joe Morgan, Miss Nellie Howard as Mrs. Morgan, and a generally strong cast. The old favorite Johnny Toers, will appear in the first part, and also in the screaming act of "The Oakland Ghost."

Buckley's Varieties.

Miss Nettie Wayne, Miss Lizzie Harmon, Miss Maggie St. Clair, Frank Mortimore, Leon Samwells, George Foster and a great number of other favorite performers appear at this house in an attractive programme. New bill to-night.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

Skating in the pavilion, the museums, the picture gallery, the conservatories, and other attractions at these gardens can be enjoyed every day. Two balloons will arrive by the Panama steamer. These will be anchored, and hourly ascensions will be made.

Death of Parepa Rosa.

The telegraph informs us that Madame Parepa Rosa died, after a short illness, in London, on the evening of the 22nd inst. Thousands will regret that they can never listen to that wonderfully sweet and pure voice again. Parepa Rosa's death is a public loss.

Highly Important.

Many a man with a good head spoils the appearance of it by wearing a hat which does not suit him. Every imaginable style of hat can be obtained at "THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street, (second Hat Store below Kearny).

OUR CHILDREN.

BY J. F. C ARK.

As the fragrance of the roses,
As it floats above the breeze;
As the voice of feathered songster,
As it warbles from the trees;
As the singing of the brooklet,
As it murmurs through the vale;
As the song of birds at even,
With their soft and pensive wail;
As the glory of the morning,
When the sun dispels the gloom;
As the beauty of the landscape,
When it's clad in early bloom;
As the beauty of the diamond,
When it sparkles in the light—
Are the voices of our children,
As they sweetly say, "Good night."

A Friend in Need.

"Confidence," says the proverb, "is a plant of slow growth." It is, perhaps, best not to grow it at all in the Australian bush, judging from the following incident related by a Melbourne paper. A certain person was traveling through a lonely district when he heard a great outcry. Thinking bushrangers were at work, he fired off a pistol to intimidate them; and presently noise ceased, and a scampering was heard. On coming to the open ground, the traveler discovered a man tied to a tree. "Oh! sir," cried the victim, "I am so glad you are come. I have been attacked by ruffians, and they were robbing me when they heard your pistol." "And couldn't you get lose my friend?" asked the traveler. "No; they tied me so very tightly." "And did they rob you of everything?" "No; only of my watch. They had not time to search for my money which I placed in my left boot." "How fortunate," observed the traveler; "was the sum considerable?" "Over a thousand, thank heaven," said the poor man. "Are you sure they are gone?" asked the other. "Oh! certain." The new comer looked round and round, and, seeing the coast clear, said coolly, "Well, as they're gone, I think I'll finish the job myself." And he proceeded to rob the unfortunate victim.

How to Quit Smoking.

One who has tried and knows it, recommends the following rule. He says that if this does not cure nothing else will, and as it costs but little, the reader can lose nothing by making a trial. The rule is: Begin on cigars two for a quarter, and smoke four the first day; then drop to ten cent cigars and smoke five; then buy three for a quarter and smoke six; next, eight, or four for a quarter; then ten five cent cigars, and the following day smoke twenty of those two for five cents, and if you are not cured of smoking, or dead, you needn't try either self-denial or suicide, for you are proof against both.

Familiar Talk.

"In life's great game of poker," as the aged minister tearfully observed in his funeral discourse, "our deceased brother has thrown down his hand, which, permit me to say, brethren, was equal to four aces and a queen—he has surrendered his chips, drained his glass to the dregs, and vamosed."

Religious Chicago.

A Chicago murderer who was to have been hung last Friday, was reprieved for one week to allow him to "get religion." Seven days is the regular allowance in Chicago.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Lipman's Great Discovery

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Lockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

There was a tremendous house last night when the favorite drama of "The Colleen Bawn" was presented with the author in his original character of Myles na Coppaleen which he has played upwards of 1400 nights in London, and the United States. The crowd filled the theatre, and overflowed into the lobbies. Myles na Coppaleen as played by Dion Boucicault is an excellent personation, but his rendition of the part proves plainly that Charles Wheatleigh, and others who have performed it in this city have given faithful copies of the original. Every now and then there was a touch which the copyists had failed to reproduce, but on the whole the original did not greatly surpass the perfect reproductions of it, which we have been favored with in this city, except with the respect that an original must always be greater than a copy. The play has never been so excellently put on the stage, and perfectly acted as it was last night. Miss Maggie Moore as Ily O'Connor played the part charmingly, never overstepping the modesty of nature, and winning all hearts by her naive simplicity. Lewis Morrison presented a rather meaner character than necessary, by his cold style of acting. Henry Edwards was excellent as Kyrle Daly, J. O. Williamson presented a new style of Danny Mann, a Danny Mann drawn by Boucicault himself. It was a very effective impersonation, and was well received by the audience. Miss Ellie Wilton as Miss Anne Chute, gave a very spirited and altogether charming rendition of the role, Walter Leman was an excellent Father Tom, and Mrs. C. R. Saunders who never loses a chance to do a good bit of acting was particularly clever as Sheelah. W. Barry whom the public are always glad to see on the stage, acted the part of Mr. Corrigan capitally, avoiding over-doing it, and making it unnecessarily repulsive. Mrs. Sophie Edwin was excellent as Mrs. Oregan, and in the last act did some very good acting. Altogether the performance gave general satisfaction, and will draw another large audience to-night, as well as at the matinee to-morrow, when it will be performed for the last time but one.

Opera House.

The farce of the "Goose and the Golden Eggs" which was presented at this house last night excited roars of laughter. John Howson and J. P. Burnett as the two lawyers, Turby and Flickster, were wonderfully amusing, and Willie Simms, Miss Fanny Young, Miss Esther Williams, and Miss Louise Vavasour, played their respective parts with much animation. The burlesque of "Kenilworth" with Miss Jennie Lee as the Earl of Leicester, terminated the entertainment. The same bill will be presented to-night, and at the matinee to-morrow.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night the performance at this house will be for the benefit of Master Thomas Maguire, the nephew of his uncle, who as Treasurer of the house manages his department very faithfully and pleasantly. Welch and Rice, Ella Wesner, Geo. S. Knight, the Siegrists, and all the rest of the brilliant combination will appear in an immense bill. "The Giraffe Brothers" will perform their blood curdling feats, and other acts, specified on our first page will be presented. The programme which has delighted thousands during the week will be performed at the matinee to-morrow.

Platt's Hall.

Platt's Hall presented a brilliant spectacle last night, on the occasion of the complimentary benefit to the great prima donna, tendered by the best people in San Francisco. Every seat in the spacious hall was occupied, and the auditorium looked like a huge flower garden. The performance of "Norma" was one of the best renditions of that opera ever given in this city. Madame Anna Bishop fully realized the character of the Druid Priestess, and invested it with a dignity which it often lacks when performed by some "prima donna of half a dozen years' training. "Casta Diva" was sung in a manner which delighted the audience, and throughout the performance the audience listened with rapt attention to the notes of that wonderfully preserved voice. The beneficiary received able support from Miss Anna Elzar, Signor Bacci, Signor Rigo, Mrs. Geo. T. Evans and Mons. Charles. This testimonial did as much honor to San Francisco, as it did to the noble artiste to whom it was offered.

Platt's Hall.

The Golden City Amateur Minstrels will have a benefit at the above-named hall on Thursday evening of next week. A very attractive programme will be presented. It's salient features are published on our first page, and comprise songs, acts and dances, and the farce of "Scenes in a Police Court," in which members of the Golden City Amateurs will appear.

Bella Union.

To-night in addition to many other attractions, the great moral drama of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" will be presented with Miss Jennie Johnson as Polly, Little Minnie Loder as Mary Morgan, John Woodward as Joe Morgan, Miss Nellie How ard as Mrs. Morgan, and a generally strong cast. The old favorite Johnny Thiers, will appear in the first part, and also in the screaming act of "The Oakland Ghost."

Buckley's Varieties.

Miss Nettie Wayne, Miss Lizzie Harmon, Miss Maggie St. Clair, Frank Mortimore, Leon Samwells, George Foster and a great number of other favorite performers appear at this house in an attractive programme. New bill to-night.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

Skating in the pavilion, the museum, the picture gallery, the conservatories, and other attractions at these gardens can be enjoyed every day. Two balloons will arrive by the Panama steamer. These will be anchored, and hourly ascensions will be made.

Death of Parepa Rosa.

The telegraph informs us that Madame Parepa Rosa died, after a short illness, in London, on the evening of the 22nd inst. Thousands will regret that they can never listen to that wonderfully sweet and pure voice again. Parepa Rosa's death is a public loss.

OUR CHILDREN.

BY J. F. C ARR.

As the fragrance of the roses,
As it floats above the breeze;
As the voice of feathered songster,
As it warbles from the trees;
As the singing of the brooklet,
As it murmurs through the vale;
As the song of birds at even,
With their soft and pensive wail;
As the glory of the morning,
When the sun dispels the gloom;
As the beauty of the landscape,
When it's clad in early bloom;
As the beauty of the diamond,
When it sparkles in the light—
Are the voices of our children,
As they sweetly say, "Good night."

A Friend in Need.

"Confidence," says the proverb, "is a plant of slow growth." It is, perhaps, best not to grow it at all in the Australian bush, judging from the following incident related by a Melbourne paper. A certain person was traveling through a lonely district when he heard a great outcry. Thinking bushrangers were at work, he fired off a pistol to intimidate them; and presently noise ceased, and a scampering was heard. On coming to the open ground, the traveler discovered a man tied to a tree. "Oh! sir," cried the victim, "I am so glad you are come. I have been attacked by ruffians, and they were robbing me when they heard your pistol." "And couldn't you get lose my friend?" asked the traveler. "No; they tied me so very tightly." "And did they rob you of everything?" "No; only of my watch. They had not time to search for my money which I placed in my left boot." "How fortunate," observed the traveler; "was the sum considerable?" "Over a thousand, thank heaven," said the poor man. "Are you sure they are gone?" asked the other. "Oh! certain." The new comer looked round and round, and, seeing the coast clear, said coolly, "Well, as they're gone, I think I'll finish the job myself." And he proceeded to rob the unfortunate victim.

How to Quit Smoking.

One who has tried and knows it, recommends the following rule. He says that if this does not cure nothing else will, and as it costs but little, the reader can lose nothing by making a trial. The rule is: Begin on cigars two for a quarter, and smoke four the first day; then drop to ten cent cigars and smoke five; then buy three for a quarter and smoke six; next, eight, or four for a quarter; then ten five cent cigars, and the following day smoke twenty of those two for five cents, and if you are not cured of smoking, or dead, you needn't try either self-denial or suicide, for you are proof against both.

Familiar Talk.

"In life's great game of poker," as the aged minister tearfully observed in his funeral discourse, "our deceased brother has thrown down his hand, which, permit me to say, brethren, was equal to four aces and a queen—he has surrendered his chips, drained his glass to the dregs, and vamosed."

Religious Chicago.

A Chicago murderer who was to have been hung last Friday, was reprieved for one week to allow him to "get religion." Seven days is the regular allowance in Chicago.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T.""
So sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain!
Who goes there once will go again.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Mokaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes every body stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—"Pygmalion and Galatea" was produced at the Metropolitan Theatre, on Monday night, and was played to crowded houses for three evenings. The See says of Miss Katharine Rogers' impersonation of the statue bride:

If we had not been told that Galatea was created for Miss Katharine Rogers, after witnessing its production with that lady in the title role, we should be induced to suggest that the actress was specially designed for the charming statue character. Another full house of delighted humanity witness d the second production of the piece last night, many of the audience being composed of those who were there the previous evening. A better piece of acting than Miss Rogers' once of all things in humanity can hardly be conceived, and the figure she presents, whether in the cold marble or as an animate being, is the embodification of lovelin ss

On Friday evening the bill consisted of the one act comedy of "Nine Points of the Law" with Miss Katherine Rogers as Mrs. Smyllie and the drama of "Leah." A feature of the engagement of Miss Rogers has been her recitation of the fe of Mary Queen of Scotts which was illustrated by dissolving tableaux. The Union has the following:

A. D. Billings, a popular member of the Metropolitan Theatre company met with quite a loss Wednesday night, a meek thief having entered his room at the Pacific Hotel during his absence, burst open his trunk and robbed it of about $375 No clew to the thief.

Everyone will sympathize with Billings who works hard for his money, if ever an actor did

SAN JOSE.—Members of the California theatre company, the Rommelsburg Sisters and corps de ballet, the Girards, Professor O'Reardon and Laura and Harry Clark performed at the Opera House, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, to "appreciative" audiences. Manager DeLacy is too good to those wretched people of San Jose He procured the very best attractions extant, the attractions which crammed the California Theatre for five weeks, and because he didn't bring the theatre itself with all the scenery down to San Jose and play "the Naiad Queen," $330, $388 and $350 were about the sums which rewarded him for his enterprise. We don't know the exact receipts on the respective evenings, but the above figures are mostly correct. It rained, and those thin-skinned San Jose people, who will plough in the rain, wouldn't run the risk of getting wet to encourage Manager DeLacy in providing first-class entertainments for them.

MARYSVILLE.—The Appeal of Tuesday says:

The reconstruction of the Theatre is progressing finely. The patent spring-floor was laid down yesterday, and carpenters were smoothing it with their planes. Painters are also at work, and the proprietor expects to have everything completed next week.

To-night and to-morrow night the Fay Templeton Troupe will perform here.

GRASS VALLEY.—The great Star Alliance consisting of Fay Templeton, Miss Alice Vane, John Templeton, and Isabel Vane performed at Hamilton Hall on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The weather was stormy, and the Union said: We have never seen worse weather for a theatre than was prevailing last night. At the same time we must say that never has a better company visited Grass Valley than the one now here. It is a good company pitched against the worst weather.

NEVADA.—Fay Templeton Troupe on Thursday And Friday of this week.

SALT LAKE.—J. A. Herne closed his engagement on the 17th. On the 19th, The drama of "The Corsican Brothers" was produced by the stock company.

VANCOUVER, W. T.—Charles Vivian, Madame Richarth and Madame Muse gave an entertainment here on the 16th.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place;
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.
CHARLES HAAKE, Proprietor.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Hockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped on a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style.
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be best.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—At the matinee to-day, and again this evening, the roaring farce of "The Goose and the Golden Eggs," with John Howson and J. P. Burnett as the two lawyers, and the very amusing burlesque of "Kenilworth" will be presented. In this piece of extravagance, Miss Jennie Lee appears to good advantage as the Earl of Leicester, and is ably assisted by H. D. Thompson, John Howson, Willie Simms, Miss Fanny Young, Miss Esther Williams, and others whose names appear in the cast published on our first page.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—This theatre was crowded last night, the many friends of Master Thomas Maguire the treasurer, who took his benefit on this occasion, mustering in full force to show their good will. The excellent bill performed will be repeated at the matinee to-day, this evening and to-morrow evening. It comprises J. G. Russell, B. Montague, W. F. Baker, Billy Sweetnam, Billy Manning, and others in first part, and Welch and Rice, Eila Werner, George S. Knight, "The Giraffe Brothers" the Bugrist Family, and others in a brilliant echo of song and dance, character changes, gymnastic feats, Dutch sketches, and other specialties.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The first Bouciault matinee will be given to-day, and "The Colleen Bawn" will be performed. Mr. Bouciault in the character of Myles na Coppaleen succeeds in gaining the sympathy of every lady in the audience for that kind-hearted scapegrace. Miss Maggie Moore as a charming Eily O'Connor, Miss Ellie Wilton a natural and pleasing Anne Chute, and J. G. Williamson a Dandy Mann, after the author's own heart. "The Colleen Bawn" will be presented for the last time this evening, and those who wish to gain admission must either go early or take the precaution of securing seats.

PLATT'S HALL.—The Golden City Amateur Minstrels will have a benefit at the above-named hall on Thursday evening of next week. A very attractive programme will be presented. It's salient features are published on our first page, and comprise songs, acts and dances, and the farce of "Scenes in a Police Court," in which members of the Golden City Amateurs will appear.

OPERA NIGHT—CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—To-morrow night, that general favorite, Miss Anna Miser, will make her debut as a prima donna, assuming the role of Amina in "La Sonnambula." Much interest is felt in musical circles, and all who have heard this charming vocalist in minor roles heartily wish her success in a leading character. Pietro Bacci will appear as Elvino, Miss Emeline Voeller will make her debut as Lisa, Madame Bianchi will appear as Teresa, Signor Orsini as Count Rudolpho, Signor Roncovieri as Alessio, and Signor Barbagelata as the Notary. There will, of course, be a brilliant assemblage on this occasion.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The drama of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" has proved a great success at this house. The part of Mary Morgan is very pleasingly played by Miss Minnie Loder, and Miss Jennie Johnson as the vivacious Polly causes much amusement. In addition to this Moore and Bray appear in song and dance, Miss Susie Robinson sings serio-comic songs, Johnny Pearse appears in first part, and in acts, and a very full and attractive entertainment is given.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETIES.—"Dodging for a Wife," "School," and "Boring for Treasure," are some of the features of the entertainment at this house to-night and to-morrow night. Miss Nettie Wayne will appear in vocal gems, Miss Lizzie Harmon in ballads, Mortimore in sketches, and others in varied specialties.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Rhoesenberg & Co the proprietors get up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as different from anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Lone Mountain Railroad.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—Skating in the pavilion, together with the museum, the picture gallery, the conservatories, and other attractions at these gardens can be enjoyed every day. Two balloons will arrive by the Panama steamer. These will be anchored, and hourly ascensions will be made.

NOTES.—The wonderful Girards will commence an engagement at the Alhambra Theatre on Monday evening. At its conclusion, they will probably play under engagement of John Piper, at Sacramento and Virginia City. These artistes are as great an attraction now as on the first night they made their appearance in this city.

A mammoth circus organization and menagerie from the East will arrive in this city in the latter part of February. They will show in this city and then travel, by railroad only, through the larger cities of this State, and get back to the East before the Spring season opens there.

Ella Wesner will shortly terminate her engagement at the Alhambra Theatre, and proceed to New York.

John Piper, during his stay in town, has succeeded in effecting an engagement with Bouciault, to appear the week after next at the Metropolitan Theatre, Sacramento.

Professor O'Reardon, with his Tambleroniconon, will be one of the numerous attractions offered at the Alhambra Theatre during the coming week.

Miss May Howard left yesterday for Denver City, where she is to play an engagement.

On the termination of Dion Bouciault's engagement at the California Theatre, Miss Katherine Rogers will appear in "Mimi." The date set for her first appearance is February 2d. We confidently anticipate that this actress will create a perfect furore in this city. She combines the personal attractions, youth and sympathetic qualities of Miss Bella Pateman with the artistic skill and emotional power of Carlotta LeClercq.

The "critic" of the Call, (he who said Miss Jennie Lee was not pretty,) says Miss Ellie Wilton has no conception of the dashing Irish girl, Annie Chute. We very much prefer to believe that he has no conception of the character. Miss Ellie Wilton played the part as the author insists that it shall be played, not as a hoyden, but as a young lady.

The Hemmelsberg Sisters went East yesterday.

"Arrah-na-Pogue" will be produced at the California Theatre, on Monday evening, with the author of the play as Shaus the Post.

John McCullough and Miss Annie Graham left for Salt Lake, City yesterday morning. Mr. McCullough will play an engagement of two weeks, supported by Miss Graham and the Salt Lake Theatre company.

The news of the death of Madame Parepa Rose, in London, was received in this city on Thursday night. During her engagement in this city, at the Metropolitan Theatre, pamphlets containing the chief events in the life of the great vocalist were freely distributed, and the public are pretty familiar with her history. She was, as stated therein, a daughter of Baron Parepa Rozesha, and was born in Scotland. Her debut was made in Malta, and she afterwards appeared in Naples. In England she seldom appeared in opera, but was acknowledged as a bright particular star of the concert room, and one of the most delightful ballad singers in the world. In oratorios she was very popular. At the time of her death she was contemplating organizing a concert troupe, with which she intended to return to the United States. It is sad to think that her glorious organ is still in death; but who can tell? Perhaps singers are wanted "on the other side."

Professor James Allen arrived in this city by last steamer from Panama, bringing with him two new balloons, constructed especially for Woodward's Gardens. These balloons will be anchored and will make ascensions of 500 feet. One of them is large enough to take up a party of six people. These balloons will probably be ready to make regular trips to the clouds by next Saturday. Captive balloons have long been among the attractions of the public gardens of London and Paris, but they are a novelty here, and the enterprise of Mr. Woodward in introducing this novel sensation to the public, entitles him to the thanks of a community greedy for novelty.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, Mrs. Junius Brutus Booth made her re-appearance on the 12th, in Adolph Belot's new play entitled "La Femme de Feu".....At the Academy of Music a season of English opera, under the direction of Messrs. O. D. Hess and Maurice Grau, was to be inaugurated on the 21st, when Miss Clara Louise Kellogg, Mme. Jenny Van Zandt, Milp. The chorus and orchestra were to be under the management of Frank Howson. The season will be limited to nine representations, and the operas will be selected from a list comprising the following: "Maritana," "Bohemian Girl," "Faust," "Mignon," "Il Trovatore," "La Traviata," "Martha," "Lucia di Lammermoor," Crispino e la Comare," "Fra Diavolo," "Don Giovanni," "The Marriage of Figaro," "The Barber of Seville," "The Daughter of the Regiment," and "Rigoletto."....At Wallack's "A Man of Honor" was to be followed by Lord Lytton's comedy of "Money," and John Brougham was to make his reappearance shortly.....At the Olympic Theatre, Fred Lyster's very successful novelty of "Gabriel Grub" was to be followed on the 19th by a grand vaudeville combination.

On the 19th "Saratoga" was revived at Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre, with new scenery and a strong cast....."Led Astray" was in its sixth week at Union Square Theatre, and promised to run for some time longer.....At Niblo's Garden, the Vokes Family will remain a week or two longer, prior to starting for Australia via San Francisco, and then a new play by George Fawcett Rowe will be produced.... At the Bowery, Marius Turck was performing in "Lightning Bob"..... At Robinson Hall, Raphael de Solis introduced his troupe of "Picaninnies," a minstrel company comprising a number of juvenile prodigies..... The Clipper, speaking of the performance at the Metropolitan Theatre and reappearance of Charles Howard, says: Charles Howard's excellence in his natural portrayal of the peculiarities of the aged Ethiopian, is patent to the Clipper's readers, and needs no panegyric from our pen. It may be proper however, to remark, that in his performance of Old Uncle Pete, in his original act of "Old Pete's Birthday," he fully sustained his reputation. E. D. Davies, the ventriloquist, commenced an engagement at this house on the 12th. The charming Miss Angelique Schott is a member of the company.....At the Theatre Comique, Harrigan and Hart were to reappear shortly, and the Foy Sisters, Harry Mack, James McAndrews, the Lisa Weber Burlesque Troupe, and Miss Ella Weaner, were underlined.....At Tony Pastor's Patti Rosa, clog dancer; Little Delmar, character change performer; Paddy Rooney, Irish comic vocalist; and Boyd & Scott, double song and dance men, were the attractions.....At Bryant's Opera House, "Cinderella" continued to draw large audiences .....At the Grand Opera House, "Humpty Dumpty Abroad," with G. L. Fox, the Martens, the Rigi Sisters, Herr Lind, and the Jackley Troupe was drawing pretty well..... At Wood's Museum, Oliver Doud Byron, was playing in "Across the Continent," and Dick Sands, Jennie Engel, Alex Davis and others appeared in a variety performance.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Florence commenced an engagement at the Opera House, Rochester, on the 19th.

"The Tempest" is shortly to be produced in grand style at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

Frank Mayo and Rose Rand opened in "David Crockett," at the Boston Theatre, on the 19th.

Mr. Charles Thompson is the new manager of the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau commenced an engagement in Philadelphia on the 26th.

Mr. T. C. King commenced an engagement in St. Louis, on the 12th.

Miss Clara Morris commenced an engagement in St. Louis, on the 19th.

Johnny Allen, John Hurlland and Add Ryman have formed a strong specialty combination and propose to start from New York, with Lew Swissler in advance, about Feb. 1.

During the performance of the "Belles of the Kitchen" on the 5th, the piquant and fascinating Rosina Vokes, dislocated the forefinger of her left hand which falling on the stage. She continued playing, however, to the close of the performance, when surgical aid prevented serious consequence.

E. T. Stetson, Front-street Theatre, Baltimore, 12th.

Morlacchi has added vocal comedy to her saltatorial repertoire. During the recent engagement of the Texan Jack, Buffalo and Wild Bill Company in Philadelphia, she made quite a success by singing the cavatina from "Ernani," and "Tacea la Notte" from "Il Trovatore."

Lawrence Barrett and troupe, Mobile, 19th, one week; New Orleans, 26th, two weeks; Jackson, Miss., Feb. 9, 10.

A Southern critic calls Lawrence Barrett a rising young tragedian, and says that he was flattered by the presence of a select audience at Richmond, Va. The terms "young" and "select" are very significant and original. The first suggests youth, which Barrett undoubtedly once possessed. The second adjective indicates a slim house, which is also not foreign to Barrett's experience; but above all, the sarcastic critic should not have added an

Edwin Booth, having met with great success at the Walnut, Philadelphia, has been re-engaged for two weeks more from the 12th.

Lizzie Price has, it is said commenced a suit against John H. Taggart & Sons, publishers of The Sunday Times of Philadelphia, for alleged libel. The alleged basis of the suit is the publication of an article in that paper recently, wherein it is stated that it was insinuated that Mr. Chas. Fecnter had sent William Wirth, the husband of Lizzie Price, to Europe as if on business, so that he might take advantage of the husband's absence to make her suitor to her marriage vows.

"Parricide" is in preparation at the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

"Across the Continent" was revived at Wood's Museum, on the 19th.

Miss Clara Morris will reappear at Union Square Theatre in March.

Miss Carlotta LeClercq was playing in Kansas City, Mo., up to the 19th.

The Holiday Street Theatre, Baltimore, will, it is stated, be finished by the 1st of July, and be opened with a first-class stock company. The new house will have a capacity of two thousand, and be much superior to the old theatre in every department.

The New York Mercury says:

King & Hoberg's great moral exhibition of a legless, armless-boy, a boa constrictor, a cocoanut, a monstrous woman in the world, a happy family, a panorama of the Holy Land and life of Christ, and of scenes in the Modoc war, left Vicksburg, Miss., 2d, for parts unknown.

Vicksburg must indeed be desolate.

Mrs. Lee (Miss Neilson) was, at last accounts, at Enterprise, Florida, fishing or driving a mule-wagon daily, in company with her husband. Her lungs were strengthening under the mild, pure air of the region.

"Davis & Company, the Cincinnati dramatic agents, advertise for ladies and gentlemen who can act and sing for a combination going to California; also, for players on the piano or any other musical instrument. Parties applying must be temperate, of good personal appearance, and supply their own wardrobe." All right. We shall welcome such a combination.

We take the following from the N. Y. Clipper:—Harry Cunningham, for some years a popular actor in this city, and now co-proprietor of a restaurant in the Bowery and a cafe on Broadway, determined to make glad the hearts of a number of deserving poor on New Year's Day. He caused the following ticket to be printed:

HAPPY NEW YEAR.—The bearer of this ticket will receive one loaf of bread and two pounds of meat, by presenting it at Cunningham & Lyon's, 241 Bowery, on January 1, 1874 at 11 o'clock, A. M. N. B.—This ticket is not good after date.

And sent 100 to different societies for the relief of the poor, and on New-Year's day, from 11 o'clock until 3, a large crowd, composed of the old and the young of both sexes, were in attendance at his restaurant, and each received, on presenting the ticket, the promised donation. It was a generous act, and Harry said "that it made his heart feel so much lighter that he would repeat the performance on January 1, 1875."

Dan DeBar has been playing Falstaff in Kansas City, and is pronounced by the critics of that place to be equal to Hackett. H. D. Chaplin played Mr. Ford, and was said to fairly divide the honors with the star. Miss Louise Arnot played Mrs. Ford. Miss Carlotta LeClercq followed DeBar.

In New Orleans, up to the 10th, John T. Raymond, Miss Marie E. Jordan, Charles DeWalcot and others were playing in "The Wicked World," at the Varieties Theatre, to capital business. Joseph Jefferson followed, for one week only, on the 12th, in "Rip Van Winkle." Lydia Thompson and troupe were at the Academy of Music. Miss Marion Mordaunt was playing at the St. Charles Theatre in "Darling," and "La Fille de Madame Angot" was still running at the Opera House.

The New York Clipper has the following obituary notice of the child American:

"American," the infant violinist, died suddenly in Boston, Mass., on Saturday, Jan. 10. He had performed at the matinee at the Boston Theatre, and on going to his hotel he complained to his father of feeling ill, and a telegram informs us that his father administered a powder to him when he almost instantaneously expired. Apoplexy or heart disease was thought to have been the cause of his demise. His name was James Speaight and his father was for some years connected with the orchestras of various theatres in New York City. When very young he developed a remarkably precocious talent for music, and a wonderful aptitude for violin playing, which his father, observing, took care to cultivate. He performed some of the most difficult music with Clerical Amusement.

Rev. Dr. Todd was once making some inquiries of a gentleman respecting a minister he had formerly known. The reply was, that he was considered a very good man, though some of his parishioners thought he had traded horses a little oftener than he needed to. The doctor said his case might be similar to that of a Connecticut minister he once accused of whipping his wife. A meeting was called to deal with the old parson, when his wife having heard of it, went in and told the church she hoped they would not be hard on her husband, as it was all the recreation the poor man had.

What Sothern Thinks of Minnie Walton.

Sothern has been interviewed by the Spirit of the Times Reporter, who among other questions asked, "What do you think of Miss Walton, who is now supporting you in Chicago?" Sothern replied:

I think her the most promising young actress for ingenue parts on the stage. She has youth, beauty, sprightliness, ambition and intellect, with a strong desire to cultivate her natural powers to their fullest extent. With these qualifications her success must be assured.

Promises.

Inferior creature—"You make all your arrangements, madam, to do this and do that, without even consulting me! Do you forget, madam, that I am your husband—whom you promised to love, honor and obey?" Superior creature (engagingly)—"Well, well, little man, it's no good being cross about that. I promised, of course, but you know I never meant it!"

Pleasing New Year's Gifts.

Everybody who has a patent sugar-coated pill publishes an almanac. There are liver almanacs, ague almanacs, kidney almanacs, consumption almanacs, almanacs for wounds, bruises and putrifying sores, itch, tetter, sore eyes, scurvey, rheumatism. Some of these almanacs present a new disease for every day in the year.

Stage Kisses.

"No actress of true delicacy can like to be clasped and kissed by casual actors. Neither does she appreciate the honor of having a weary head laid upon her faithful shoulder, when the head in question is addicted to pomatum and permeated with smoke." So says one who knows how it is herself.

Wasn't There.

The most innocent woman on record was the Illinois Sunday-school teacher who asked a stray reporter to give her class some theological information. He said that he wasn't a correspondent at the front when the children of Israel marched through the desert.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here.
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Pauline Lucca's Troubles.

Lucca's matrimonial experiences are not likely to furnish her a bed of roses. On the contrary, she is assailed with a succession of legal thorns. Her former husband, the Baron Von Rhode, not having heard that she had obtained a divorce until she had remarried with Emile Von Wallhoffen, commenced proceedings in the Supreme Court on the 9th for relief, and in order to have the decree set aside. Walhoffen was a major in the Prussian army, and a brother officer of Lucca's former spouse. Being wounded in battle, he was brought to Von Rhade's house, and nursed by the little prima donna, who fell in love with him. They came to the United States together, and were married two days after the divorce was obtained. Von Rhade denies the charges of adultery with Adelheide Grossi, a Berlin actress, and claims that the proceedings in the were suit irregular. The Court took the papers, and reserved decision. As the matter stands' die kleine Paulina may create as great a sensation in the courts as she has heretofore on the stage.

Gems of Thought.

If we would be happy in life, we should look upon the glad to-day as a long youth, and upon the sad to-morrow as a short old age.

He that does not know those things which are of use and necessary for him to know, is but an ignorant man whatever he may know besides.

To enjoy life you should be a little miserable occasionally. Trouble, like cayenne, is not very agreeable in itself, but it gives great zest to other things.

Love is the shadow of the morning, which decreases as the day advances. Friendship is the shadow of the evening, which strengthens with the setting sun of life.

Truth is mighty and will ultimately prevail. It may be overcome, obscured for a time by falsehood, ignorance, or sophistry, but it will come forth with undimmed brightness.

Some people imagine it is hard to get rich. Not at all. Earn a dollar every time you spend ninety cents.

Shakesperian Mottoes.

For a Tailor: "Where gat'st thou that goose-look?"—Macbeth.

For a Pawnbroker: "O my prophetic soul! mine uncle!"—Hamlet.

For a Dealer in "Green Tea:" "I do remember an apothecary!"—Romeo and Juliet.

For the Heir to an Estate: "To the manor born."—Hamlet.

For a Stern Parent: "For, indeed, my father did something smack."—Merchant of Venice."

For an Ill-supported Lessee: "A beggarly account of empty benches!"—Romeo and Juliet.

For a Butcher who reduces his price: "Quite chop-fallen?"—Hamlet.

For an Orator troubled with a Cold: "Stand back, and let the coughin' pass."—Richard III.

For a Speculator: "How came my man i' the stocks?"—King Lear.

Work Shop.

Offenbach has been interviewed at his house in Passy by a writer for Le Soir, a portion of whose account is follows: "His study is a sort of curosity in itself. It is a narrow, long room; nearly one-third of it is occupied by a very small 'pianino.' On the pianino lies a violin, which Rossini presented to Paganini. On the desk of the instrument lay a thick pile of coarse yellow paper, the last sheet of which is covered with red pencil marks—for Offenbach writes his music in that way, without using the ordinary music line. He keeps two young ladies as secretaries to copy his compositions for the press. The room is built with special regard to accoustics, and the pianino sounded wonderfully well in it, when, at my request, he played the overture to his unfinished operette, "Richelieu," upon which he had been at work for eight or ten months."

The Town Crier.

A. Bierce, formerly of this city, is still writing Town Crier for the London Figaro. We make the following extracts: The export of rice from the famine-threatened districts of Bengal is reported as "brisk." This implies a considerable influx of gold; so it is hoped that when these thrifty people have passed to another and a better world they will be found to have left behind them something for funeral expenses; in which case they will not have to tax the charitable good-nature of jackal and buzzard.

The Daily Telegraph has put forth an editorial protest against flinging orange-peel on the side-walks of the streets. It is certainly a wicked and wasteful habit. Orange-peel should be given to the poor. As for the objection that it causes people to break their necks, it is difficult to see the force of that in a town that has some two millions of necks the breaking of which would be a pecuniary advantage to their owners and a moral profit to the State. Besides, orange-peel does not break nearly so many necks as gin does; but nobody complains of gin being thrown on the pavement.

Mr. Christien has been lecturing in Cardiff on a variety of unpleasant subjects. He says there are seventy thousand illegitimate children born in England every year, numbers of whom are killed. "This," says he, "is not a right state of things; in fact, it is wrong." It may be wrong; very possibly it is; but dogmatic statement will never beget conviction in the mind of an intelligent British audience. Mr. Christien must study to assume that attitude of calm philosophic doubt so much in favor with the Fortnightly Review. It is really quite impossible to commend these hasty and unsupported expressions of individual opinion.

A Lost Novel.

I am now at Germantown. It's the very place where a female novelist was lost to society. She was lost in this way. She had written a novel, "The Dead Minister; or, the Fatal Dish Rag," or some such name, and she had a lover, and one fatal night she sat down to read that novel to her lover. She commenced to read as follows:

"Winifred Athleboro' sat with bated breath a fishing."

"You mean baited hook," said he.

"I mean bated breath," says she.

Says he, "Who the deuce ever fished with a baited breath?"

Says she, "You're a fool."

Says, he, "Farewell, Susan, Susan; alas! farewell."

He might have added another letter to that alas, for it proved a last farewell. Two loving hearts were severed, and her book was lost to the world, for in her rage she used it to kindle a fire to ripen some codfish balls with.

Alhambra Theatre.

To-night in addition to all the attractive performances of Ella Wesner, Sweatnam and Manning, George S. Knight, the Siegrist Troupe, Welch and Rice, and others whose names appear on our first page, the most remarkable acrobatic stars of the century—the Girards—will commence an engagement at this house, and Professor O'Reardon will appear with his sweet-toned Tumbleronicon. That these performers lost none of their popularity during their brief engagement at the California Theatre, was proved by the fact that they received as many recalls on the last night of their engagement as they did on the occasion of their first appearance. The full programme of entertainments for this evening may be seen by referring to our first page. It surpasses anything offered at any other variety theatre in the United States.

California Theatre.

To-night "Arrah-na-Pogue," which is generally considered the best of Boucicault's Irish dramas, will be produced, with the author as Shaun the Post, Miss Maggie Moore as Arrah Meelish, Miss Ellie Wilton as Fanny Power, Henry Edwards as the O'Grady, J. C. Williamson as Michael Feeny, W. A. Mestayer as Beamish McCoul, and a general by strong cast. During the piece the famous Barn Deer Jig will be performed by Mr. McCarty and Miss Louise Johnstone.

Opera House.

This evening, Morton's sparkling comedietta "The Little Savage" will be produced here; J. P. Burnett personating Mr. John Parker, John Howson, Mr. Lionel Parker, Miss Jennie Lee, Kate Dalrymple, with Miss Fanny Young, W. Simms and H. D. Thompson in the balance of the cast. The amusing farce of "The Goose with the Golden Eggs" in which John Howson and J. P. Burnett create so much fun as the two country lawyers will be the opening piece.

Opera Night—California Theatre.

A very good audience was present last night at the California Theatre when "La Sonnumbula" was performed and Miss Anna Eiser made her appearance as Amina. The popular young artiste fully came up to the expectations of her friends and acquitted herself admirably. Signor Baccei was taken ill shortly before the performance, and Signor Carmini Morley took the part of Elvino without rehearsal, and did uncommonly well under the circumstances. Miss Emmeline Foeller who made her debut on this occasion as Lisa was very successful.

Bella Union.

Johnny Lees will appear this evening in "The Poetry of Motion," Cassim and Fritz in lightning acrobatic feats, Little Minnie Loder in "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," Moore and Bray in song and dance, Miss Fanny Garretson in ballads, and others in various specialties set forth on our first page.

Buckley's Varieties.

"School," "Dodging for a Wife" and "Boring for Treasure," are among the acts to be performed at this house to-night. In addition, Mortimore will appear in sketches, Miss Nettie Wayne in ballads, Miss Lizzie Harmon in comic songs, and others in acts, songs and dances.

Notes.

On Friday evening Dion Boucicault will take his benefit, and will present for the first time in California his drama of "Daddy O'Dowd," appearing himself as Michael O'Dowd the hero of the play.

A German dramatic performance will be given at the California Theatre on Sunday next by the San Francisco Turn-Verein, for the benefit of Miss Betje.

An effort will be made during the present week to remove the lean from the Mission street theatre building, and proceed with its construction. Scenery is already painted for the stage, and the stockholders are not at all willing to let the enterprise fall through.

Miss Katy Holaway, George Holland, and Dora Worland, (formerly of Ohlarichi's circus) arrived yesterday from Australia, on the Macgregor.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating these sausages. 1z

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

For Bb to-crayons.

And reproduction in a superior style, go to Edouard & Cobb, 536 Kearny st, near California. Those desiring any of the above for Christmas presents, should make application before the rain sets in, and so avoid disappointment, satisfaction guaranteed in all cases 5z

MAXIMUS.

BY ADELAIDE PROCTOR.

I hold him great who, for love's sake,
Can give with generous, earnest will—
Yet he who takes for love's sweet sake,
I think I hold more generous still.

I bow before the noble mind
That freely some great wrong forgives;
Yet nobler is the one forgiven,
Who bears that burden well and lives.

It may be hard to bear, and still
To keep a lowly, steadfast heart;
Yet he who loses has to fill
A harder and a truer part.

Glorious it is to wear the crown
Of a deserved and pure success:
He who knows how to fail has won
A crown whose lustre is not less.

Great may he be who can command
And rule with just and tender sway;
Yet is diviner wisdom taught
Better by him who can obey.

Blessed are those who die for God,
And earn the martyr's crown of light;
Yet he who lives for God may be
A greater conqueror in His sight.

Historical Marriages.

Beauty's wedding was Beastly.

Lot's wife got into a pretty pickle.

Hepworth Dixon preferred spiritual wives.

King Arthur's wife loved him a little and Launce a lot.

Jack Spratt could not have married better if he had read "Counterparts."

The trouble with Blue Beard's last wife was that she dropped the key to the situation.

There is no record of Satan's marriage, which makes us blush to mention that he's the father of Lies.

Peter, Peter, pumpkin-eater, presented his wife with a snug residence. He understood the situation.

Socrate's antipathy to Xanthippe theologized him. [The reader will please observe the play on words, for there was no other play about it—it was business.]

Solomon the Wise married seven hundred times. It is asserted that this was carrying the thing to an extreme; but the example of his father and Bathsheba was before him.

"The monkey married the baboon's sister,
Smacked his lips and then he kissed her,
Kissed so hard he raised a blister,
And she set up a yell"—

to which happy union we owe the Darwinian theory and Swinburne's hot kisses.

Ferguson, the great astronomer, had a wife who used to come on to the stage when he was lecturing and knock his apparatus on to the floor, just from pure cussedness. She was a good wife for the business, though—she make him see stars frequently.

Lucretia Borgia was a good singer, and the most affectionate of wives, (you may have seen represented in opera) but she had a queer way of making things at times very unhealthy for her friends, and even her husband.

The wives of Brigham Young are the envy of their sex. They remain always Young.

The Joys of Eden.

Mortals have vague ideas of Paradise; but, such as they are, they do not harmonize with the situation on board the ship Eden at one period of her voyage from London to Valparaiso. This was the situation: A ship laden with gunpower and matches, a crazy captain who saturated his cabin with parafine, sets in on fire, and then amuses himself with firing his revolver at his crew and charging upon them with a bayonet. The bleeding crew knock him down with a handspike, bind him hand and foot, lower the boats and push away from the burning ship, with the maniac captain howling and struggling in the yawl. Finale: The Eden blown up, the boats are picked up by a passing ship, and the maniac captain jumps overboard at dead of night.

Important to Smokers.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Disobedient Parents.

We have changed the old commandment in this country. It is no longer "Children, obey your parents," but "Parents, obey your children." And our youth are determined to enforce the commandment, even should they be compelled to exterminate every parent in the United States. Last week furnished us with another instance of the deep determination of the young man of America. A widow woman of Jersey City, named Freeman, refused to let her son Joseph have two thousand dollars. He peremptorily demanded the money. Again this disobedient mother refused. This naturally irritated the son, and he pulled from his pocket a pistol and deliberately shot her dead. When a few more disobedient parents like Mr. Walsworth and Mrs. Freeman have been killed, parents will then discover that they must obey their offspring. And this is but proper. The parents were unfit for command. It was no uncommon thing for the mother to dress up her daughters and plant them in the parlor while she slaved in the kitchen. Fathers worked and toiled and grew old fast that their sons might become members of aristocratic clubs, drive fast horses, keep faster women, and riot in luxurious do-nothingism The parents showed themselves unfit for command, and the children have assumed it. The murder of Mrs. Freeman is a terrible example to all parents who disobey the commandment: "Parents, obey your children." Let us hope that they will accept the situation with becoming resignation. The young and chivalrous men of the country should at once present young Freeman with a series of resolutions of thanks for his spirited behavior in murdering his mother. A service of gold plate, with ten thousand dollars placed to his account in the bank, would also be a gracious acknowledgment of his great worth.

An Appreciative Critic.

Lapeer, Mich., has had a dramatic entertainment. The "Union Spy" was produced, and the local editor's ecstatic feelings on the occasion may be inferred from his allusion to "a billowy ocean of foaming skirts, which in their virgin and uncontaminated purity, rolled and surged and puffed in the gaslit air."

A Real Estate Investigation.

"Building castles in Spain, Mr. S. ?" said the landlady to Spicer, who was thoughtfully regarding his breakfast cup. "No, ma'am," said Spicer, "only looking over my grounds in Java."

Too True.

The man who is awfully urbane to his wife before strangers is generally also "her bane" behind their backs.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looms so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, fresh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

A RICH MAN AND A POOR MAN.

Grimy Grub is a rich man. Every one knows that he is rich. We made his acquaintance recently, and set to work to find out how rich he was. He was very willing to tell us. He owned stock in all the street railroad companies, in the Spring Valley Water Works, in several insurance companies, he owned acres of sand lots and some improved property on Market street. Of course this made Grimy Grub a rich man. We looked at Mr. Grub, and as we noticed his badly cut, ill-fitting clothes, it occurred to us that he did not spend his money on dress. Accompanying him to his rooms, the walls of which were hung with cheap chromos, we concluded that he did not spend it in encouraging the fine arts; we tasted his wine, it was rather cheap stuff; we saw him dine at a restaurant, his dinner was not good. We found that he did not go to the theatre or the opera, he did not drive out much, he did not play billiards. His business occupied him a good deal. We found that Mr. Grub had no money to spend; it was all "tied up." Then we came to the conclusion that Mr. Grub, though he considered himself, and was considered by others, a rich man, was a very poor man. It is all very well to say "Mr. Grub can get money when he wants it, and can spend it on what he chooses." This is not so. He cannot spend money; he does not know how to do it. The poor devil must go on until he dies, raking up money, and then he must leave it behind him.

Harry Scatter isn't worth a cent. It is a mystery to every one how he dresses as he does, how he dines so well, frequents opera and theatre, and actually helps poor people. Every one knows that his income cannot be much over $100 a month, and that he hasn't any money saved up. Yet, to look at Harry, any one would imagine him to be a millionaire. He walks the streets of San Francisco with the air of an owner of blocks of buildings; he smokes two-bit cigars and drinks good wine (better wine, old Grub says, than he can afford). Every one knows that Harry is poor. He is not looked upon by the young ladies of his acquaintance as a desirable parti, but he is welcomed as a good-natured, amusing fellow, a pleasant companion at ball or opera. If Harry had old Grub's money he would spend it well. he would encourage the arts and would probably make a good many people happy. As it is, he manages to feel rich himself, and being generally happy, makes those with whom he comes in contact brighter and more contented.

Is strikes us that the terms rich and poor are often lamentably misapplied.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Gorville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

Nutmegs.

[From the Danbur. News of Saturday.]

Job wished that his enemy would write a book. But he doesn't, however, he merely reviews it.

An economical Danbury woman, taking advantage of the panic prices, bought five muffs Saturday.

The position of usher in a country church must be singularly lucrative to permit the holder to appear in new boots every Sunday.

A lengthy article is in circulation telling how to make a mustard plaster. An article telling how to successfully dodge one is what a smitten people want.

City editors have the advantage of country editors in that they are located up so many pair of stairs that the indignant subscriber (who is invariably troubled with the asthma) rarely gets up there.

Several timid but well-meaning people, fearing that the attendance upon Gough's lecture would be so great as to endanger the building, gave their tickets to their friends and waited at home for the cutaropho.

A Danbury man who having variously and unsuccessfully tried to keep bees, cows, sweet potatoes through the Winter, his temper on wash days, and his courage always, is now trying to keep a diary.

A New Haven editor spent last Sunday in Slawson, and attended church. When the contribution box came around he was in a doze, but on being nudged, hastily explained: "I have a pass."

There is nothing quite so exhausting to a village newspaper man as to write up a complimentary notice of a local exhibition, in which there are thirteen performers who design sending copies of the paper to their friends.

The New Baby Washer.

The Pall Mall Gazette is a firm believer in the story that an invention is ready for parents, which acts as follows: You simply insert the begrimed and molasses-coated infant in an orifice, which can be made of any required size by turning for ten minutes a cog-wheel with electric attachments. The child glides down a highly polished inclined plane; its lips are met at its terminus by an India rubber tube, from which the infant can draw lacteal nourishment. While in this compartment, which is lined with plate glass mirrors, the perturbed spirit of the infant is soothed by its frantic efforts to demolish its own image, reflected in the glass, with a nickel-plated combined teeth cutter, nail-knife, rattle and tack-hammer, which are thrust into the baby's hand by an automatic monkey. Fatigued by its destructive efforts, the infant falls asleep, while the organ attachment plays softly the melody, "Put me in my Little Bed." Then it slips into the third compartment. Here the baby is washed. Another small tube administers a dose of soothing syrup, and the infant glides from the machine, its nails pared, its hair combed, ready for the habiliments rendered necessary by the fall of our first parents.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here man can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

This house was crammed full last night, and seats are reserved for every night of Boucicault's limited engagement. Mr. Boucicault represented Shaun the Post in "Arrah-na-Pogue," as a real being, not a melodramatic Irishman, and the public didn't like it as well as others they had seen. Charles Wheatleigh was in the habit of making the audience feel the points, Mr Boucicault trusts to the judicious to perceive them without having them thrust at them. His acting of the role is natural, and unaffected but not forcible. Henry Edwards as the O'Grady was of course perfect. Miss Maggie Moore was a charming Arrah, and Miss Wilton played the role of Fanny Power with much spirit and admirable discretion. J. C. Williamson was admirable as Michael Feeny, and can fairly challenge comparison with Shiel Barry in the same part. W. A. Mestayer as Beamish McCoul, played the part well as ever. E. J. Buckley whom we have been accustomed to see play Oxley Farrell, assumed the role of the Secretary on this occasion, and W. Barry played Winterbottom. The play was produced under the immediate supervision of Mr. Boucicault, and many changes were made in the scenes. "Arrah-na-Pogue" will be played to-night, and to-morrow night. On Friday Mr. Boucicault will take his benefit and appear in "Daddy O'Dowd; or; The Galway Pilot."

Alhambra Theatre.

Crowds flocked to this popular theatre last night, and all were delighted at the great entertainment prepared for them. Billy Sweetnam and Billy Manning "threw themselves" in the first part, and W. F. Baker, Con. T. Murphy and J. G. Russell delighted the audience with sweet ballads: Ella Wesner, who is in the last week of her engagement at this house, sang some of her most popular songs and the new song of "Dry Monopole," composed by Stephen Massett, and dedicated to Louis Eppinger. The wonderful Girards, who were received with thunders of applause on making their appearance, performed their extraordinary act entitled "Leg-Mania" with immense spirit, to the accompaniment of music by the combined orchestras of the Alhambra Theatre and the Opera House. George S. Knight presented some of his most admired songs and sayings, Professor O'Reardon brought forth sweet music from his Tambleronicon, the blegrists appeared with their wonderful dogs, and Messrs. Manning and Sweetnam introduced for the first time their thrilling melodrama entitled "The Robbers of Poverty Flat," at which the audience laughed most heartily. The same great bill will be played to-night.

Opera House.

The performance at this house, last night, commenced with the sparkling comedietta of "The Little Savage," in which J. P. Burnett, as Mr. John Parker, John Howson as Mr. Lionel Larkins, and Miss Jennie Lee as Kate Dalrymple, did some capital acting, and the latter won much applause for her songs. The performance terminated with the very successful farce of "The Goose and the Golden Eggs," with John Howson and J. P. Burnett as the rival lawyers. The same excellent entertainment will be presented this evening.

A Mammoth Circus and Menagerie Coming to this City.

A Cincinnati paper says:

"A manager of one of our largest circus organizations will take his company to California in the latter part of February, and do a Spring season there before the regular circus season opens here. The whole company, menagerie, specialties etc., will be on a grander scale than any organization that has yet visited the Pacific Coast."

This will be good news for our little folks, who will look forward with anxiety for the coming of the great show. Doubtless, the great success of Dan Castello and Cole, who were here last year, has induced some manager to make an early trip to this State, and thus put in time to good advantage that would otherwise have been wasted in idleness, in awaiting the tardy Eastern Spring.

Notes.

On Thursday evening, when the California Theatre will be given up to the masquerade of the Oriental Club, the California Theatre company will go over to Oakland, and play "Jones' Baby" and "Kerry."

Miss Susan Galton will probably make her re-appearance at the Opera House on Monday evening next, in the popular operetta of "Mons. Choufleuri." She will be heartily welcomed.

The success which J. P. Burnett has made in "strong character parts" will probably induce him to shave close, and go in for that line of business.

E. J. Buckley has the sympathy of the public in being cut out of his best part, Oiney Farrell. No one can play it like Buckley.

Bella Union.

Castlin and Fritz, Johnny Tuers, Tommy Barton Kittie Minnie Loder, Miss Jennie Johnson, and a host of other favorites will appear to-night in a great bill, comprising the acts of "The Oakland Ghost," "Deaf in a Horn," "The Picnic" and others specified on our first page.

Buckley's Varieties.

A brilliant first part is followed at this house by an attractive olio of songs, dances and amusing acts, and Hughey Morton, George Foster, Miss Maggie Brewer, Miss Lizzie Mason, Frank Mortimore and others, whose names appear on our first page.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fiend of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1x

THREE BUGS.

BY ALICE CARY.

Three little bugs in a basket,
And hardly room for two;
And one was yellow, and one was black,
And one like me or you.
The space was small, no doubt for all;
But what should three bugs do?

Three little bugs in a basket,
And hardly crumbs for two;
And all were selfish in their hearts,
The same as I or you;
So the strong ones said, "We will eat the bread,
And that's what we will do."

Three little bugs in a basket,
And the beds but two would hold;
So they all three fell to quarreling—
The white and black and the gold!
And two of the bugs got under the rugs,
And one was out in the cold.

So he that was left in the basket,
Without a crumb to chew,
Or a thread to wrap himself withal
When the wind across him blew,
Pulled one of the rugs from under the bugs,
And so the quarrel grew.

And so there was war in the basket
Ah, pity 'tis, 'tis true!
But he that was frozen and starved, at last
A strength from his weakness drew,
And pulled the rugs from both the bugs,
And killed and ate them, too!

Now, when bugs live in a basket,
Though more than it well can hold,
It seems to me they had better agree—
The white and the black and the gold—
And share what comes of the beds and crumbs,
And leave no bug in the cold.

Wit Among Dry Goods.

A Boston dry goods merchant named Johnson was very hard on his employees, and when customers left the store successively without purchasing, he would sometimes discharge the clerk. He took up a position near the door, and, as customers passed out, inquired if they had been satisfactorily served. On one occasion a lady was negotiating with a clerk for a shawl, but concluded to make no purchase. The clerk then called the lady's attention to the old gentleman near the door. "That old man," said the clerk, "is crazy. He may attempt to detain you as you go out, and you had better avoid him, as he is sometimes dangerous." The lady started for the door, and as the old gentleman approached, she gave a shriek and darted out. Johnson was astonished, and, walking back to the clerk, asked:

"Do you know that lady?"

"No sir," replied the clerk, "but I think she is insane."

"You are right," returned the old gentleman, "she must be crazy."

It was the clerk's fourth customer, and no sale, but the woman's strange conduct had the desired effect of preventing old Johnson hauling him over the coals for it.

A Thorough Education.

A bevy of little children were telling their father what they got at school. The eldest, reading, spelling, and definitions. "And what kind do you get, my little one?" said the father to a little rosy-faced fellow, who was at that time driving a tenpenny nail into the door panel. "Me? oh! I gets readin', spellin', and spankins."

Dry Monopole.

[Words and Music by STEPHEN MASSET, dedicated to LOUIS EPPINGER, ESQ Sung every night by ELLA WESNER at the Alhambra Theatre.]

Of all the wines Dry Monopole
Is just the wine for me;
Though new its name, soon, soon its fame
Will stretch from sea to sea;
Of Champagne Wines it is the best,—
Although we now keep "mum,"
A glass of this I do attest
Is better far than rum.

CHORUS—Of all the wines Dry Monopole
Is just the wine for me;
Though new its name, soon, soon its fame
Will stretch from sea to sea

The Emperor William drinks it too,
And thinks it awful nice,
He wrote to Louis Eppinger
"'Tis the biggest thing on ice!"
And as he means to drink it
As long as he shall reign—
He publicly pronounces it
The gem of all Champagne
CHORUS—

The "Widow Cliequot" she's gone in.
And Rhoeder's her partner,
And all the rest of the Champagne Wines
Are sure to follow after.
So hurrah for California!
Fill high the flowing bowl,
To this the latest and the best,
The wine Dry Monopole,
CHORUS—

Keep Your Love Letters.

Young ladies about to be married, tenderly preserve your intended husband's love letters, though ever so sadly they may be. You may find a world of comfort in them, as that poor woman at Oshkosh can tell you. She says there is nothing like it, looking over the old letters and reading "My dearest darling angel, Heaven alone knows the depth of my love for you," just after the writer, now her husband, has finished kicking her down stairs.

Lipman's Great Discovery

Probably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair, and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Sold by all druggists. General Agents, Chas. Langley & Co., Wholesale Druggists, San Francisco. 1v

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Alhambra Theatre.

The favorite character vocalist, Ella Wesner, is in the last week of her engagement at this house. She appears nightly in popular selections from her repertoire. Welch and Rice present a new and original act entitled "A Practical Joke." Professor O'Reardon performs on the sweet-toned Tambleroticon, the wonderful Girards appear in their bewildering act entitled "Leg-Mania." George S. Knight amuses the audience with Dutch songs and jokes, the Siegrists appear in clever acrobatic feats and the dors in a comical entertainment, and Sweetnam and Manning present their "comic drama" entitled "The Robbers of Poverty Flat." The house is crowded every night.

Opera House.

J. P. Burnett, John Howson, Miss Jennie Lee, H. D. Thompson, Willie Simms and Miss Fanny Young appear nightly in the comedietta of "The Little Savage." This is followed by the farce of "The Goose and the Golden Eggs," in which John Howson and J. P. Burnett do some extravagantly funny acting as Turby and Flickster, the two country lawyers. This very attractive entertainment gives general satisfaction.

California Theatre.

This house was thronged again last night, when "Arrah-na-Pogue" was presented for the second time, with the author in the character of Shaun the Post. It will be presented again this evening. To-morrow (Thursday) evening, this theatre will be given up to the masquerade of the Oriental Club. On Friday evening Mr. Boucicault will take his benefit, and will present for the first time in California his drama of "Daddy O'Dowd," appearing himself in the title role. He will also present the exquisite gem entitled "Kerry."

Platt's Hall.

A grand entertainment and ball will be given at this hall, to-morrow night, for the benefit of the Golden City Amateurs. The programme, which is a very attractive one, is published in full on our first page. It comprises a regular minstrel first part, an olio, and the screaming farce entitled "Scenes in a Police Court," by members of the Golden City Amateurs. Dancing will commence immediately after the performance.

Bella Union.

The moral drama of "Ten Nights in a Barroom," performed by Miss Jennie Johnson, Little Minnie Leder, John Woodard and others, song and dance by Moore and Bray, acts by Johnny Tuers, Nickerson, Bree, Barton and others, and a great number of other performances, will be given this evening.

Buckley's Varieties.

The acts of "White and Black," "U. S. Mail," and "Travelers in Trouble," will be presented to-night in connection with a great olio of songs, and dances by Miss Lizzie Harmon, Miss Maggie Brewer, Mlle Blanche and others.

Palace Amphitheatre.

Manager Wilson's new circus combination will give their first performance here to-night. The Amphitheatre was lighted last evening, and presented a very handsome appearance.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attractions at these beautiful gardens are numerous and can be enjoyed, let the weather be wet or dry. Great preparations are being made for the balloon seasch.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Dry Monopole.

[Words and Music by STEPHEN MASSETT, dedicated to LOUIS EPPINGER, Esq. Sung every night by ELLA WESNER at the Alhambra Theatre.]

Of all the wines Dry Monopole
Is just the wine for me;
Though new its name, soon, soon its fame
Will stretch from sea to sea;
Of Champagne Wines it is the best,—
Although we now keep "mum,"
A glass of this I do attest
Is better far than rum.

CHORUS—Of all the wines Dry Monopole
Is just the wine for me;
Though new its name, soon, soon its fame
Will stretch from sea to sea

The Emperor William drinks it too,
And thinks it awful nice,
He wrote to Louis Eppinger
"'Tis the biggest thing on ice!"
And so he means to drink it
As long as he shall reign—
He publicly pronounces it
The gem of all Champagne
CHORUS—

The "Widow Cliequot" she's gone in.
And Bheeder's her partner,
And all the rest of the Champagne Wines
Are sure to follow after.
So hurrah for California!
Fill high the flowing bowl,
To this the latest and the best,
The wine Dry Monopole,
CHORUS—

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to B. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1z

PROGRESS.

"Progress! progress! all things cry,
Progress, Nature's golden rule;
Nothing tarries 'neath the sky,
Learn in Nature's wondrous school.
Earth from chaos sprang sublime,
Broad-armed oaks from acorns grow;
Insects laboring, build in time
Mighty islands from below.
Press we on through good and ill,
Progress be our watchword still.

Onward! Orient nations know
Nothing of that magic word;
'Tis the trump that giants blow—
'Tis the spirit's conquering sword!
'Tis the electric, mystic fire
Which should flash around the earth,
Making every heart a wire,
'Tis a word of heavenly birth.
Onward!—at the sound we thrill!
Progress be our watchword still.

"La Femme de Feu."

The Arcadian doesn't like "La Femme de Feu," in which Mrs. J. B. Booth recently made her re-appearance at Booth's Theatre. It says: With wholesome remembrance of the occasional thorniness of the ways of criticism, we shrink from expressing all we feel regarding the adaptation of Belot's drama of "La Femme de Feu" as produced at Booth's on Monday evening. Immoral in tone, dreary in character, insipid in dialogue, thin-drawn to the extreme of tenuity, disjointed in plot, and repulsive in incident, we should almost call "La Femme de Feu" the dreariest piece by a clever writer we had ever heard, did we not remember Mr. Albery's "Fortune." The first two acts are terribly platitudinous, purposeless and thin, and the introduction of the so-called and ridiculously presented phosphorescent sea was utterly unwarranted by all rules of art, having nothing whatever to do with the development of the fable or the sequence of the events. The plot of the play is briefly as follows: Diane (Mrs. J. B. Booth) is a passionate, willful, ill-educated, impulsive, and motherless French girl who loves Lucien D'Aubier (Mr. Joseph Wheelock) to distraction, but finding his poverty a bar to their union, marries the old and wealthy Baron de Sery (Mr. H. Weaver), in the hope of his speedy death, for which event the lovers agree to wait. The Baron, however, proves ridiculously disobliging, and continues to live on so long that Diane loses patience and poisons him, which clears the way for her marriage with Lucien, now Attorney-General. After a year Lucien tires of his young wife, and renews his acquaintance with an old sweetheart, Marie (Miss Noah), on discovering which Diane is so carried away with rage that she proclaims herself the murderess of her late husband. This gives occasion for some intensely dramatic passages, Lucien finding himself in the terrible dilemma of being the husband of a woman whom, as Attorney-General, he should prosecute for murder. At this crisis another lover, Lami (Mr. H. F. Daly), who had been all along cognizant of Diane's crime, and used his knowledge to force her into an amour with him, turns up, and learning from her own lips that she had never loved him, kills her, and then commits suictde. Such is the fable, and even from this rude sketch, which omits to mention several comparatively important but subordinate figures and incidents, one can see that the piece in proper hands might be made a very striking and effective acting play. As it is, by eliminating the first two acts, and cutting down the remaining four by nearly a half, the drama might, morality apart, be made presentable. Of the acting we are compelled to speak very unfavorably. Mrs. J. B. Booth's Diane and Miss Rachel Noah's Marie were the only personations which rose into respectability. Mrs. Booth, although lacking power, pathos, and depth, and not forgetful enough of self, is an accomplished, winning, and graceful actress, who looks well, enunciates distinctly, and bears herself generally in a very willing and ladylike fashion.

Too Bad.

The Odd Fellows' Association is in a high state of indignation at the proposal to grant lands for a race course in the vicinity of their cemetery. It is argued that where the human race end their course, is no fit place for a horse race course. We don't know about this. Cemeteries are terribly dull places, and the establishment of a race course in the vicinity, would enliven them up a little.

A Flat ering Criticism.

The Call, noticing the ballad concert given at Platt's Hall last night, by Miss Fanny Marston, whom the country papers have allowed her agent to compare to Jennie Lind, Nilsson, Parepa Rosa and other artistes, can only say: "The vocalism was characterized by a good deal of vigor." Alas! Miss Marston must go and sing some more in Grass Valley.

In a Bad Way.

The Post, which used to be such a good little paper, is getting rabid. It must have a sensation article once or twice a week, and doesn't much care how it manufactures it. That Vande Mark article was in execrable taste.

A Last Request.

Jennie, aged seven years, is sick in bed in Oakland with a bad cold. Yesterday she felt particularly miserable, and calling her papa to her bedside said: "Promise me, papa, if I die, that you will put my doll in mourning."

A Large Practice.

Some one was praising Dr. G——to Muffington the other day, and saying how many patients he had. Muffington said: "Oh, yes, not only in this world but in the next."

Served Him Right.

A butcher-man in one of the markets took to selling the patent grease made by the Oleomargarine alias California Butter Company. He cannot understand why he has lost all his custom. We can very easily.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that winsome room to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain!
Who goes there once will go again.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Asa L Waugaman's New Saloon,

A First-Class Journal.

The Bulletin claims to be a first-class journal. It used to be, but alas! it is very far from being so now. Its editorials are worthy of the Alta in its silliest days, and its dramatic criticisms are simply lamentable. Witness, that on the performance at the Alhambra Theatre in yesterday's issue. We cut out a bit anywhere; it is all equally bad:

The effusions of Murphy, Manning and Sweatnam produced an acceptable innovation. Welch and Rice introduced their successful burlesque, entitled Morning Glories, and also several inimicable dances.

The kicking out of the Bulletin office of the man who wrote that stuff, would "produce an acceptable innovation." We would very soon make him execute an "inimicable" dance out of the Figaro office. This ruffianly murderer of the English language, then proceeds to tell us how well the Siegriet boys performed, and says they "fully merited the warm reception they received." Yes, and they quite deserved the gifts given to them also. This wonderful writer then enters into an extended criticism of Sweatnam and Manning's amusing bit of nonsense entitled "The Robbers of Poverty Flat," and says:

The piece vividly portrayed the life of the bold adventurer in California's palmy days, representing, as it did, the causes which led to desperation, stage robberies, the organization of vigilance committies, and the final extermination of the bloody villains who were then rampant in our towns and mining camps.

This is nice sort of stuff for a first-class journal to publish. Is the Bulletin going to the demnition bow-wows? It gives evident signs of it.

The Friend of Humanity.

Some people have the happy faculty of making friends out of all the dogs, cats, birds, and other creatures they meet. Others have not that faculty, and animals avoid them intuitively. It is said of Agassiz that no snake ever bit him, no animal ever ventured to assail him, that hyenas and other beasts eccentrically fond of biting human flesh never presumed to take a sample of him. Alluding to Agassiz and this characteristic of his, a correspondent thus writes of making friends of animals.

I was present when somebody said Agassiz had a means of communicating with animals, and that they seemed to understand the language. "Stop there, if you please," said the doubter. "I can go all the rest but that. The French language may be polite; but when you come tell me that a hyena understands French, you go a step too far." "His ways, then," said a frowning enthusiast. "Well, yes; his ways. I'll allow his ways, but not a word of French." This imperativeness was unpopular in that party, who were now only willing to hear wonders about men's influence over dumb animals, "if he only took 'em the right way." "That's the very nub of it. All wild beasts appreciate good nature. Show me a man who ketches the most fish, and I will show you the best-natured man. His electricity goes down his fishing-line to his hook, and they like it, and bite." "I should trust to the best bate," sneered the sour man. "Show me a man which a cat jumps onto his shoulders and feels at home, and I will show you another kind-tempered man. The fact is, we must tolerate. All our family was great on tolerating dumb beasts. I had an uncle which had a pig, which would breakfast off the same plate and was familiar as one of the family—seemed to like it. And what would you say if I told you my grandfather, in his last days, never walked out without his wood turtle following on him like a dog—never would go out without his wood turtle for a companion, in his old age? And after my grandfather died, the turtle died of grief." "How long after?" grunted the sour man. "Not more'n a year You see, turtles is slow a dyin'."—N. Y. Dispatch.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Drinking a Mouse.

On New Year's night Chubb came home very late, and when he went up stairs his wife and children were in bed asleep. He undressed as softly as he could, and then, as he felt thirsty, he thought he would get a drink of water. Fortunately, he saw a goblet full standing on the washstand, placed there for him, evidently, by Mrs. Chubb. He seized it and drank the liquid in two or three huge gulps, but just as he was draining the goblet he gagged, dropped the glass to the floor, where it was shivered to atoms, while he ejected something from his mouth. He was certain that a live animal of some kind had been in the water, and that he had nearly swallowed it. This theory was confirmed when he saw the object which he spit out go bounding over the floor. He pursued it, kicking a couple of chairs over while doing so, and at last he put his foot on it and held it. Of course Mrs. Chubb was wide awake by this time, and scared nearly to death, and the baby was screaming at the top of its lungs. Mrs. Chubb got out of bed and turned up the gas, and said:

"Mr. Chubb, what in the name of common sense is the matter?"

"It's a mouse, Louise!" shouted Chubb, in an excited manner. "It's a mouse in the goblet. I nearly swollered it, but I spit it out, and now I've got my foot on it. Get a stick and kill it, quick!"

Mrs. Chubb was at first disposed to jump on a chair and scream, for, like all women, she feared a mouse much more than she did a tiger. But at Chubb's solicitation she got the broom and prepared to demolish the mouse when Chubb lifted his foot. He drew back, and she aimed a fearful blow at the object, and missed it. Then, as it did not move, she took a good look at it. Then she threw down the broom, and after casting a look of scorn at Chubb, she said:

"Come to bed, you old fool; that's not a mouse."

"What d'ye mean?"

"Why, you simpleton, that's the baby's india rubber bottle-top that I put in the goblet to keep it sweet! You ought to be ashamed of yourself carrying on in this manner at one o'clock in the morning."

Then Chubb turned in. After this he will drink at the pump.

The Smiths on Their Side.

The name of Smith is once more to the front. This time the Smith renown is sustained by females, and females who are determined to have the rights of their much oppressed and vilely-abused sex righted. The female Smiths are two maiden ladies who live in Glastonbury, Conn., and they are wealthy. They have paid heavier taxes than any man in the town, and they have grown tired of the luxury, and have vowed that they won't do so any more. They say they are taxed without representation, and as their forefathers fought for and obtained the liberties of this country because England attempted to tax our people without our having a voice in the matter, so they will sooner be despoiled of all their property and inhabit dungeons dire, than pay any more taxes until they are allowed to vote. Recently, when they refused to pay the taxes, the stern collector seized upon their favorite cows, whose milk they had drunk and whose food they had provided. He even sold the cows, and the hearts of the female Smiths were torn with agony, and they could not be consoled until the next fashion magazine reached them. Now that the members of the Smith family have taken sides with the female suffragists, the women righters must triumph. The Smiths, without any outside assistance, can carry every State in the Union. Rejoice, then, oh, all ye women who have struggled to upset the vile tyranny of man. The hour of your redemption is at hand. The Smiths are on your side, and victory must crown your efforts!

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main.
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

A Pleasing Criticism.

Commend us to the dramatic critic of the New York Arcadian for saying what he thinks of an artist. In his criticism of "La Femme de Feu" as performed at Booth's Theatre, he says, after speaking of Mrs. Booth and Miss Noah: The other performers, without exception, were beneath contempt. Mr. Wheeleck reminded us of an over-padded tailor's dummy. Neither in his serenely stolid face, his action, nor his utterance, was there a spark of soul, and he asks Diane what her heart dictates as if he were asking for a light, and didn't care whether he got it or not. His passionless and magnificently inexpressive face, with its maddening ox-like placidity, might freeze a barrel of mercury, and it is a mystery how ever Mrs. Booth or Miss Noah contrived to throw any emotion into her utterances when addressing him. Mr. Weaver evidently aimed at being hideous, and succeeded to perfection. He seemed all the time to labor under the idea that he was taking part in a gigantic farce, and he did all in his power to make it so. The other actors were so indifferent, that we mercifully refrain from pointing out their shortcomings.

Impertinent Leislation.

Mr. Patterson has "by request" introduced a bill in the Legislature "to prevent discrimination in places of public amusement." This bill provides that no person shall be allowed to reserve a seat, but when the doors are opened all shall rush in together, and scramble and fight for the bests seats. We now "request" Mr. Patterson to introduce a bill "to prevent discrimination in places of public worship." This selling pews by auction is an outrage on the public, and should be put to a stop to. Another bill should be introduced to prevent any one from engaging a room in advance at a hotel. If this bill is a specimen of the legislation we can expect during the present session the sooner it comes to a close the better it will be for our liberties.

Still All Right.

"Little All Right," the wonderful Japanese acrobat, who used to delight California audiences when but six or seven years old, is now a very bright and industrious student in one of the grammar schools of New York City. He intends to return home after he gets his education, and engage in business. His name, "Little All Right," was given him on the occasion of a fall from the top of a twenty-foot pole upon the stage of a theatre, from which he picked himself up and shouted "All Right," much to the delight of the audience.

Overshot the Mark.

Indiana has brought its teetotalers to sudden grief. Their new law fines a drunken man heavily and compels him to tell, besides, where he procured his drink. One inebriate paid his fine lately, but refusing to turn informer, his case was carried up to the Supreme Court, which pronounced the law unconstitutional! The teetotalers defeated themselves, therefore, by their own ultraism.

Too Particular.

A Pennsylvania manufacturing establishment has been discharging men for telling falsehoods. This plan, if generally carried out, would be apt to paralyze the industry of the country.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Step," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

The Poet of the Poor.

Gerald Massey in the course of a speech at the Semi-centennial of the Franklin Typographical Society in Boston, said: It is true I am called a poet of the poor, and just as true that I have written a great deal of poor poetry, but to adopt the words of Heine, the German poet, I do not know whether I have won the laurel. I care little indeed what you may say of me as a poet, but when all is sung and said you may lay a sword upon my coffin because I was ever a good soldier and a faithful fighter for the universal freedom of mankind. I trust, however, that I may put that same sword to good use with my own hand before it shall rest on my coffin. There is stern work for me to do, and the spring-time of pretty songs is past. I do not belong mortally to things as they are, and cannot pipe to make them smooth and pleasant. I have had dainty ladies, who looked as though they had just come through a shower of jewels, congratulate me on the poetical beauty of my poem entitled "Little Willie," so innocent of the underlying fact in my heart that "poor lit le Willie" was my brother's child, and that he died a cruel death in the workhouse and was buried in its grave. That fact and a myriad others pertaining to the life of the poor, are lying wreathed in my heart of hearts, and will not be covered up with flowers. All I care for now is to get something done—help on the living deed rather than set words to music. Poor Hood sang his "Song of the Shirt" some thirty years ago, and the world wept and wiped its eyes. Something, doubtless, was done. But whereas the shirtmaker then made shirts for five cents a day, I saw a case lately in London in which a poor woman was making shirts for three cents a day! Mere sentimentality and charity do not touch bottom, and never will! Only to think how writers like myself have to sit all day—day after day—and toss restlessly at night, and put their health into their work, and agonize in feeling and sweat in body, brain and soul to produce a few thoughts that may fall as seed here or there, as they find the right mental soil, to bear some fruit perhaps in years to come. And how you people with money and means might act the thought and do the thing at once, and be

The living Power that we may not write;
The Picture that we cannot paint to sight;
The Music that we dream but do not get;
The Statue marble never mirrored yet.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

The Loaned Baby.

[From the Petit Journal Pour Rire.]

Recently an actor presented himself with his first born at the Maire, in order that it might be registered in conformity with the civil law. As he waited in an antechamber for the opening of the Bureau, the following conversation took place between two persons near him:

"Yes, dear cousin, my wife has just presented me with a superb boy. The mother and the boy are doing well."

"All goes well, then, and you have come to register it?"

"Certainly."

"Where is the bambino?"

"With his nurse."

"But he ought to be here with you. They will not take your declaration without him."

"Oh, that's only a formality. In general they only attend to what the father says, without troubling to look at the child."

"You will see. They will demand to see it, just because it isn't here."

"Oh, how annoying. However, with wit and audacity one can pull oneself through every difficulty."

In finishing the sentence the audacious father turned himself to the actor, and leading him aside said:

"Sir, I expect from you a signal piece of service."

"What is the trouble sir?"

"Lend me your baby."

"Lend you my baby! What do you take me for?"

"You don't understand me—"

"Why, it is my first born."

"That's nothing."

"Excuse me; if I had five or six it might be that—"

"But it is only for a minute or two. I have forgotten to bring mine from the house, and as soon as yours is registered I will borrow it from you, present it in my turn, as if it were my big boy, then I will return it to you, and then I shall be saved the trouble of going home again to fetch him."

"But, sir, your child is a boy, and mine is a girl."

"Well, where is the difficulty? The children are not examined."

"But suppose they should take it into their heads to—"

"I tell you they will do nothing of the kind."

"Very well, you shall have her."

Things turned out exactly as the baby-borrower predicted; the child was registered as of both sexes, and the two men went home happy.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men perfer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market sire t,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.

California Theatre.

An immense audience witnessed the performance of "Arrah-na-Pogue" last night, and Mr. Boucicault won much applause for his impersonation of Shaun the Post. This drama will be played for the last time at the matinee on Saturday. To-night the theatre will be turned into a splendid ball-room, and the masquerade of the Oriental Club will take place. The actors and actresses of the California Theatre Company will very generally participate, and the reigning star will probably appear in a favorite character. Friday evening will be devoted to the benefit of Dan Bryant, when he will appear in "Daddy O'Dowd" and also in "Kerry."

A CONNECTICUT BALLAD.

"Rebecca, put your fixins on,
You look uncommon plain,
And there is Deacon Parry's son
A-comin' up the lane.

"I saw he had his eye on you,
Last Sunday, in the choir,
Now, pray be careful what you do,
He's such a fine young Squire.

"I'm glad we've got the milkin' done,
And glad you swept the room,
He's at the door, Rebecca, run;
But wait, pick up that broom."

Just as he knocked she reached the door,
(To tell it is no sin),
And with her eyes upon the floor,
Said—"Will you please walk in."

Surprised to see her blushing face,
And see her bow so low,
The Deacon's son, with manly grace,
Politely answered "No;

"I only stopped to let you hear
Your cows were in our grain,
And father says 'twill cost you dear
If they get there again,"

A Hit.

Father O'Leary, a learned and witty Franciscan friar, who was received in the best society of London in the latter part of the last century, was introduced to Dr. Johnson by some mutual friends, who wished to see two such men together. Johnson, perhaps a little annoyed at the great popularity of the Irish wit, greeted him at once in the Hebrew language, with which Father O'Leary was not acquainted. Turning away, in a contemptuous manner, Johnson said: "This is a pretty fellow you have brought here; he is ignorant of the oldest language spoken in the world!" By this time O'Leary had recovered from his surprise. He courteously bowed to Johnson, and addressed him fluently in a few sentences of a tongue which, as his manner indicated, was entirely strange to Johnson. Then, turning to the gentleman who had brought him to the great champion of literature, O'Leary exclaimed: "Call you him learned? Why, I have spoken to him in the language of one of the British Islands, and he evidently does not know the meaning of a single word!" In fact, O'Leary had addressed him in the resonant vernacular of Ireland. Johnson, caught in his own trap, was highly amused by the Franciscan's ready promptitude in turning the tables, made a gruff apology for his own rudeness, sat down to enjoy a whole evening's company of his new friend, and ever after expressed and manifested the highest regard for him.

A Wonderful Book.

A New York correspondent, in referring to the musical and dramatic critic of the World, and to his valuable working library, says he possesses a scrap-book which contains all the criticisms and notices worthy of attention that have appeared in the most prominent reviews, magazines and newspapers for fifty years past, collected by successive persons—Mr. Wheeler himself having carefully edited this scrap-book for many years past. It is said that by reference to it he can tell the date and cast of each drama or opera produced during the last half-century in Europe or New York. He is generous with his material, too, giving to all the art and dramatic writers of New York full liberty to consult his invaluable treasure at their will, helping them often where newspaper rivaly would seem to suggest to him the exclusive use of his own property. But think of a fifty year old scrap book of that kind, carefully collated and indexed!

The Rule of Three.

Some one has discovered that to acquire an intimate knowledge of the "Rule of Three," one should live with his wife, mother, and mother-in-law.

A Sneak.

He who betrays another's secret, because he has quarreled with him, was never worthy of the name of friend; a breach of kindness will not justify a breach of trust.

The Vizier's Last.

He had been to see a traveling troupe of minstrels the night previous, and when he presented himself before the Sultan in the morning, he thought he would try one on that dignitary. "Why," said he, "Your Royal Highness, is the Turkish Wedding March, composed by Ev-anse Ali Schult-zie, like some part of ornamental drapery? Because," he went on, seeing the Sultan remained silent, "it is a festoon."

The Sultan clapped his hands, and immediately a thousand ebon slaves dragged the too daring Vizier from the presence. His sentence was, to be first bamboozled, and then bamboozled. After this, we don't know what became of him.

Sydney Entr' Acte.

This is the title of a very clever little programme paper published, for a number of years past, in Sydney, by John Levison. It is the programme of the Prince of Wales Opera House, and the Victoria Theatre. It keeps the Sydney people well informed about theatrical matters generally, is conducted with ability, and is evidently like FIGARO, prosperous and popular. We are indebted to W. F. Baker, of the Alhambra Theatre, for a file.

Hawk and Hound.

Greyhounds are employed in Persia to chase the antelope. As the speed of the latter is greater than that of the former, the Persians train hawks, for the assistance of the dogs. The hawks, when young, are fed upon the head of a stuffed antelope, and thus taught to fly at that part of the animal. When the antelope is discovered, the hawk, cast off, soon fastens its talons in the animal's head, impedes its progress, and so enables the hounds to overtake it.

Metropolitan Gauges.

A witty Cincinnati lady, writing from Washington says: "Boston draws herself up severely, scans your cerebral developments through her eyeglass, and coolly asks: 'What do you know?' New York displays her silks and diamonds, and pertly asks: 'What are you worth?' Philadelphia, with prim hands and pursed-up lips, asks: 'Who was your grandfather?' While Washington steps between the waltz and the German to inquire, 'Can you dance?'"

Something New in Pantomimes.

A new description of India-rubber masks are being used in the London pantomimes, which have extraordinary powers of inflation and general alternation. Bodies of dwarfs, also, of the same material rise into those of giants.

At the Masquerade.

Chronicle Map Girl, (who was distributing Chronicle advertising dodgers,) "Sir Knight, take a Chronicle extra?" "You make a mistake, Miss, this is not an advertising bazaar; it's a gentlemen's bal masque."

The best substitute for coal—the present warm weather.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam sand crabs and terrapins';
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated. s

Flat Irony.

Max Adeler tells the following story:

Busby, of Trenton, celebrated his "iron wedding" one day last week, and he invited about one hundred and twenty guests to the wedding. Of course each person felt compelled to bring a present of some kind and each one did. When Mr. and Mrs. Smith came, they handed Busby a pair of flatirons. When Mr. and Mrs. Jones arrived, they also had a pair of flatirons. All hands laughed at the coincidence. And there was even greater merriment when the Browns arrived with two pairs of flatirons. But when Mr. and Mrs. Robinson came in with another pair of flatirons the laughter became perfectly convulsive. There, was, however, something less amusing about it when the Thompsons arrived with four flatirons wrapped in brown paper. And Busby's face actually looked grave when the three Johnson girls were ushered into the parlor carrying a flatiron apiece. Each one of the succeeding sixty guests brought flatirons, and there was no break in the continuity until old Mr. Curry arrived from Philadelphia with a castiron cow-bell. Now Busby has no earthly use for a cow-bell, and at any other time he would have treated such a present with scorn. But now he was actually grateful to Mr. Curry, and he was about to embrace him, when the Walsinghams came in with the new kind of double-pointed flatirons with wooden handles. And all the rest of the guests brought the same articles excepting Mr. Rugby, and he had with him a patent stand for holding flatirons. Busby got madder and madder every minute, and by the time the company had all arrived, he was nearly insane with rage; and he went up to bed, leaving his wife to entertain the guests. In the morning they counted up the spoils, and found they had two hundred and thirteen flatirons, one stand, and a cow-bell. And now the Busbys have cut the Smiths, and Browns, and Johnsons, and Thompsons and the rest entirely, for they are convinced that there was a preconcerted design to play a trick upon them. The fact, however, is, that the hardware store in the place had an overstock of flatirons, and sold them at an absurdly low figure, and Busby's guests unanimously went for the cheapest thing they could find, as people always do on such occasions. Busby thinks he will not celebrate his "silver wedding."

The Drury Lane Pantomime.

The London Figaro says:

The feature of the Drury Lane entertainment which will be recollected the longest, is the sudden growth of the magic mushrooms at the midnight hour, and their disclosure of the small people hidden at their roots. When, by an admirable mechanical contrivance, these giant fungi turn into the glittering canopies of a fancy fair; when, far away in the long vista of the distance, the stage is lighted up by all the glowing color which the scene-painter's art naturally bestows upon a subject such as that of the flower-show in fairyland—then, indeed, with the clapping of many little hands and the buzz of many small voices, is the triumph of the Drury Lane pantomime at its height.

The Reigning Fashion.

The Cleveland Voice gives this advice to young ladies who attend Saturday matinees:

Oh, if you'd win the young men's hearts
We'll tell you what to do:
Just step into a dry goods store
And buy a Navy Blue.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor C. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

Draw Poker.

The Louisville Courier-Journal has a very amusing contributor who signs himself John Glades, and some of his humorous paragraphs are enjoying an extended newspaper notoriety. One of the best of his recent effusions was simply called A Card, and it detailed an incident in a little game of draw-poker which will make every man who ever took a hand in that North American diversion instinctively clutch his pocket-book, and wonder, as he wipes the cold perspiration from his brow, why four of a kind are ever allowed to run out against a full hand. Five were playing at the game in question—Mr. Simmons, Ike Raggles, Jones, Brown and John Glades himself, who tells the story. It was Simmon's deal, the blind was three, the ante one, and, of course, it took seven to call. After the discard there were about 200 chips in the pot, and Raggles took three cards, Jones two, Brown said he had enough, John Glades took one, and the dealer took five—a new hand. The betting proceeded until the pot contained about 300 chips, and Glades had gone "sixty better." Then all passed out except the dealer, and the remainder of the game must be described in John's own words: Says the dealer to me, "How many did you draw?" Says I, "a card." "Well," says he "I don't want to lay down this hand; I will bet sixty more than you!" Now the dealer was a stranger like to our party. He was from the country, and didn't know much about d. p. So I thought it was my charitable duty to let him down easy, and I only called him. "What have you got?" said I. "Two pairs!" said Mr. Simmons. Then it was my time to be sorry that I had an ace full on kings. "But," says the genial Mr. Simmons, "mine is two pairs of jacks?" Then I said "Oh!" and put on my hat and went down in the street to look for Christmas. As I went out the door, Brown asked me "how many I took?" But Brown always was a person which will kick a man when he is down.

Accidental Insurance.

Between Kenosha and Milwaukee, an agent of the Travelers' Insurance Company entered the car, and having issued tickets to several passengers, approached an elderly lady, who, it afterwards proved, was deaf.

"Madam, would you like to insure against accidents?" inquired the agent, at the same time exhibiting his tickets.

"I got my ticket down to Kenosha," she said. "I am going to Oskosh to visit my darter who's married up there, and has just got a baby."

The agent raised his voice a little.

"Would you like to insure your life against accidents?"

"She's been married two years and a half, and that's the first child; it's a gal."

Agent still louder.

"I am an insurance agent, madam; don't you want to insure your life against accident?"

"She's got along first-rate, and is doing as well as could be expected."

Agent at the top of his voice.

"I'm an insurance agent, madam; can't I insure your life against accident?"

"Oh, I didn't understand you," said the old lady. "No, her name is Johnson; my name is Evans, and I live five miles from Kenosha."

An observer says, "The men who interrupt the end of a play by breaking for the door have low foreheads and scrubby hair." We never noticed the foreheads, but we can vouch for their low manners.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The performance at this house to-night will be for the benefit of Dion Boucicault. It will commence with the charming drama of "Kerry," in which Mr. Boucicault has won golden opinions here as elsewhere. After this, his latest Irish drama entitled "Daddy O'Dowd," Miss Ellie Wilton as Mrs. Dudley Fowler, Lewis Morrison as Percy Walsingham, Henry Edwards as Forrester, E. J. Buckley, as Osgidew, J. C. Williamson as Tom Greenough, Miss Maggie Moore as Kitty, and a generally strong cast, which is given on our first page. The last Boucicault matinee will be given to-morrow, when "Arrah-Na-Pogue" will be performed, and Monday night the great playwright and actor, will make his last appearance in San Francisco.

Alhambra Theatre.

This house was crowded last night as is the case every night. The multitude of attractions offered causes every one to pay a visit to this popular theatre. To-night Sweatnam, Manning and Murphy will appear in the first part, Welch and Rice in "A Practical Joke," Ella Wesner in character songs, Professor O'Reardon in his delicious Tumblerican performance, the wonderful Girards, Russell, Julian and Emile, who are as popular as when they made their first appearance, in their bewildering "Leg-Mania," George S. Knight in his humorous Dutch stories and songs, the Siegrists and their dogs in an entertaining performance and Manning and Sweatnam and Reed in the extravaganza entitled "the Robbers of Poverty Flat." This excellent bill will be performed at the matinee to-morrow. The performance to-night will be for the benefit of those pets of the public, the Siegrists.

Opera House.

The performance at this house last night commenced with J. B. Buckstone's capital musical farce of "Mischief Making," in which Miss Jennie Lee, as the sprightly Manette, did some capital acting and sang charmingly. The very popular comedietta of "The Little Savage" in which J. P. Burnett, John Howson and Miss Jennie Lee, all appeared, terminated the entertainment, which will be repeated this evening and at the matinee to-morrow.

The Masquerade Ball.

The Orientals' Masquerade Ball last night, at the California Theatre, was a complete success. There must have been fifteen hundred people present in the auditorium, and some five hundred on the floor in masque; in fact the stage, which was extended for the occasion, over the parquette and orchestra was uncomfortably crowded, so much so as to impede the Grand March, and the dances. There was an unusual variety of characters represented, and the stage looked like an immense kaleidoscope with its bright and ever changing figures. There was nothing occurred to mar the general enjoyment, and the managers deserve great credit for the excellent arrangements made throughout. Even the supper, prepared by George Thiele, formerly of the Faust Cellar, was an exceptionally bountiful and excellent one.

Platt's Hall.

The entertainment and ball given at this house last night for the benefit of the Golden City Amateur Minstrels proved a great success. There was a large attendance and the programme was well carried out, the Amateurs acquitting themselves remarkably well, and winning much applause. After the minstrel entertainment, which terminated with the lively farce of "Scenes in a Police Court," dancing commenced and was kept up until a late hour. 1,000 FIGAROS were used as house programmes.

Bella Union.

Great attractions will be offered at this house to-night. The management announce the first appearance of J. W. Summers, comedian and character actor, who will take the part of Dennis Mc Carthy in the local play of "The Police Court," written expressly for this house. Charles Harcourt, serio-comic vocalist, will also make his first appearance in this city on this occasion, and a great variety of acts, songs, dances and gymnastic feats, will be performed by other members of the company.

Buckley's Varieties.

Miss Maggie Brewer, Miss Fanny Webster, Mlle. Blanche and Miss Zadie Zelms, appear nightly in dances, Miss Lizzie Harmon, Katie Zoe, Mollie La Forest, Maggie St Clair in songs, comic and sentimental, Frank Mortimore, George Foster and Harry Devoy in acts, Hughey Morton in local hits, and others in various specialties.

Woodward's Gardens.

The extra attractions at these gardens on Saturday and Sunday will consist of the startling feat of "The Devil's Post," the act of "Leotard" and the pantomime of "Nicodemus."

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Important to Smokers.

Few men in San Francisco are aware that the enterprising firm of Kahn & Hass are employing white females labor in the manufacture of their Cigars. The very best material is used in this establishment. Call and convince yourself at 773 Market street, between Third & Fourth street. Finest brands Havana Cigars constantly on hand. 11x

H. Peyser, 719 Montgomery Street,

Wishes to inform his friends and customers that he has removed back again to his old stand, has enlarged his store, and has on hand the cheapest and finest stock of Men's, Youth's and Boy's Clothing ever opened in this city; and also, a fine stock of Men's and Boy's Furnishing Goods. Don't forget the number. Call before examining elsewhere. 11x

For Photo-crayons.

And reproduction in a superior style, go to Edouard & Cobb, 506 Kearny st. near California. Those desiring any of the above for Christmas presents, should make application before the rain sets in, and so avoid disappointment, satisfaction guaranteed in all cases 5x

REMOVAL.—Madame Clara Antonis, the Clairvoyant Physician and Independent Trance Medium, 20 Geary street, near Kearny. Consultations in English, French and German. 1o

ELLEN EVELINA.

Ellen Evelina Waggles
Back to you my memory struggles!
Now that pantomimes are coming and the ballets t-the fore.
For I loved you fondly—madly!
And my recollection sadly
Turns to those old days of yore.

I was sixteen—sentimental—
Had not cut my wisdom dental,
And was still at Doctor Rapper's Classic and Commercial School.
From the pit I then adored you,
And no doubt I often bored you,
And you called me "that young fool!"

How could your bosom harden
To bouquets from Covent Garden?
So I spent my pocket money, and invested all my tips!
At your glancing feet I laid me,
And you might have overpaid me,
With one smile from those rouged lips!

Round the theatre aye and after
I made friends with hot scene-shifter,
Who quaffed-off my pot of porter, and then broke a true-ting heart.
"Nelly Waggles was I meaning,
Which 'er real name it was Greening,—
'Er as took the Prince's part.

"Did he know 'er? Well, yes rather—
Had been great chums with 'er father:
Broke his neck permiskus, he did, through a trap-door falling down.
So 'twas he away as guv 'er
When she married 'er old lover,
Johnny Waggles, tumbler, the clown!"

Oh, my Ellen Evelina,
You have never, never seen a
Loving heart as crushed as mine was at the carpenter's remark,
Evelina—Mrs. Waggles—
Backward still my memory straggles
To that sorrow deep and dark!

Opera Bouffe.

The critics who predict the early dissolution of opera bouffe will be pleased to learn that no fewer than three houses are giving these species of entertainments in Paris. They have "La Vie Parisienne" at the Varieties, "Le Timbale d'Argent" at the Bouffes-Parisiennes, and "La Fille de Mme. Angot" at the Folies Dramatiques. The last named opera has been performed over 300 nights in Paris, and at two theatres in London for many weeks. Great preparations are making at the Gaiete for the production of "Jeanne D'Arc." This noble heroine has been ungratefully treated by the French. A conclave of French bishops and priests sent her to the stake at Rouen; a French poet buried her in a ponderous epic, and Voltaire made her the burlesque heroine of an infamous poem.

Biding his Time.

"Who hurt you, bub?" asked a pedestrian yesterday, of a small boy who sat howling on the curbstone.

"Johnny Kydd," sobbed the victim.

"I'll see about it if he does it again," remarked the man, condolingly. But the boy stopped howling, and exclaimed:

"Just leave him alone. When I grow up I'll get on the police force, and then I can belt him all I want to!"

A Man of Standing—A car conductor.

Dry Monopole.

[Words and Music by STEPHEN MASSETT, dedicated to LOUIS EPPINGER, Esq. Sung every night by ELLA WESNER at the Alhambra Theatre.]

Of all the wines Dry Monopole
Is just the wine for me;
Though new its name, soon, soon its fame
Will stretch from sea to sea;
Of Champagne Wines it is the best,—
Although we now keep "mum,"
A glass of this I do attest
Is better far than rum.

CHORUS—Of all the wines Dry Monopole
Is just the wine for me;
Though new its name, soon, soon its fame
Will stretch from sea to sea

The Emperor William drinks it too,
And thinks it awful nice,
He wrote to Louis Eppinger
"'Tis the biggest thing on ice!"
And so he means to drink it
As long as he shall reign—
He publicly pronounces it
The gem of all Champagne
CHORUS—

The "Widow Clicquot," she's gone in,
And Rhoeder's her partner,
And all the rest of the Champagne Wines
Are sure to follow after.
So hurrah for California!
Fill high the flowing bowl,
To this the latest and the best,
The wine Dry Monopole,
CHORUS—

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to R. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. Bunker's celebrated Club Sausages will tickle the palate of the most fastidious. Even dyspeptics laugh after eating those sausages. 1x

New and Original Act, by Messrs. WELCH and RICE.

ELLA WESNER
In the celebrated Rice Song and Dance "DRY MONOPOLE," dedicated to Louis Eppinger, sole importer of the Wine of this name.

PROF. O'REARDON,
IN HIS WONDERFUL TUMBLERONIOON PERFORMANCE.
But a faint conception can be had of the delicious music produced by his extraordinary manipulation of an ordinary pair of drinking glasses, whereon he introduces as many octaves as the most elaborate piano-forte. Still more extraordinary, with one hand he will play an accompaniment on the piano, and anon, he will execute one tune upon that instrument and another upon the tumblers, closing the performance with a spirited distinct whistling air.

WONDERFUL GIRARDS

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—An immense bill and immense audiences. This has been the record of this house during the week. It is lucky that it has been so, for the public must remember that the manager calculates these to be paid out every Monday. All confess that these is not one variety theatre in the United States, that can show such a gathering of stars as the Alhambra Theatre, San Francisco, Cal. fornia. The Girards, the most popular stars of the day, the unmistable Ella Wenzer, those remarkably funny Ethiopian comedians and vocalists, Sweetnam Manning and Murphy, Welch and Rice, Russell and Baker, Professor's O'Rourke's unexceptional performer on the Tumblerotem. George A. Knight confessed to be the best Dutch low comedy man living, the wonderful Siegrists and their dogs, all these make up a list of attractions that are unequalled. The full programme to be performed at the matinee to-day, and again this evening, appears on our first page.

THE OPERA HOUSE.—There is nothing heavy about the entertainment at this house. Costuming and good scenery are its chief characteristics. The musical farce of "Mischief Making" with Miss Jennie Lee as Madame Manette, has proved quite a success, and the "Little Savage" in which John Howson appears as Mr. Lionel Lawkins, J. P. Burnett as Mr. John Parker, and Miss Jennie Lee as Kate Dalrymple is one of the best things we have seen for a long time. The attractive bill will be performed at the matinee to-day and again this evening.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The rainy weather had no effect on the attendance at this theatre last night when Dion Boucicault took his benefit. Early in the evening the announcement "standing room only" was displayed, and by the time the curtain rose the house was packed perfectly full of people. The performances commenced with the charming drama of "Kerry;" and after this an admirably companion play entitled "Daddy O'Dowd" was performed for the first time in San Francisco. The plot of this is as follows: Michael O'Dowd (Dion Boucicault), and Bridget (Mrs. Judah) are a plodding old couple in Galway, Ireland, who send their son to London to be educated as a gentleman. Michael O'Dowd has made considerable money as a pilot, and is willing to spend it all on advancing his son in life. This son Michael O'Dowd (Lewis Morrison), is discovered in the first act under the name of Percy Walsingham, leading a fast life in London, betting on horse and boats races, and the guest and companion of honorables and ladies. Moreover he is in love with Lady Gwendoline (Miss Ellie Wilton), a charming girl who is also attached to him. Percy Walsingham has got into the hands of a money leader, Leake (W. Barry,) who with his factotum Chalker (W. A. Mestayer), is keeping a watch on him. Percy and his friend Tom Grenough (J. O'Williamson), have staked all they can raise on Chatterbox owned by the former, the horse loses the race and both are utterly ruined. Then Percy Walsingham confesses to Grenough that he has been acting under false colors and tells him who his father is. Mike O'Dowd and Kitty (Miss Maggie Moore), come to London, to look after the boy of whom they are so proud. They meet Percy and his friends on their return from a shooting excursion. The surprise is mutual all around. In the second act we find Percy accompanied by his friend Grenough who still sticks to him, keeping out of the way of Money Leake and Chalker on Daddy O'Dowds little farm near Galway. Grenough is in love with Kitty, but is too poor to marry. Daddy O'Dowd who knows nothing of his son's embarrassments is in high glee and joy at having him at home, when a deputation of voters arrives to ask "his boy" to stand as member of Parliament for Galway. His joy is dashed by the arrival of Leake and Chalker, who have discovered Percy's hiding place, and armed with a warrant for his arrest for obtaining money under an assumed name have come down to bleed the old man. Daddy O'Dowd is thunderstruck, but to save the name of his son gives up his home and all he has in the world. Lady Gwendoline who has arrived with her uncle Forrester, clings to Percy, and offers to share his lot whatever it may be. He determines to go to America, and by leading an honest life clears his name of the stain which has come upon it. In the third act, Tom Grenough, who has also gone to America, returns rich, a silver lead having been struck on his property; he meets Kitty, and learns from her that poor old Daddy O'Dowd utterly ruined is now making his living by wheeling a truck, and carrying baggage from the steamers. Percy Walsingham is supposed to have been lost in the "Prairie Belle" which was deserted by most of her crew when in a sinking condition, thirteen persons remaining on board. Lady Gwendoline and her uncle Forrester arrive: they are in possession of the news, that by the exertions of Percy Walsingham, the "Prairie Belle" was saved from sinking, and are in search of the O'Dowds to tell them. Tom Grenough has through an agent purchased the O'Dowd farm, and it is arranged that the re-union shall take place here. Percy Walsingham arrives and there is an overwhelmingly happy meeting. The noble conduct of Percy has made the name of O'Dowd once more honorable, and of course he marries Lady Gwendoline, and Tom Grenough marries Kitty. Mr. Boucicault's impersonation of Daddy O'Dowd was in every way as excellent as his Kerry. It was an artistic and consistent portraiture of an old man wrapped up in the one hope that his son should be a gentleman and willing to sacrifice himself to that end. Miss Ellie Wilton, Miss Judah—who was warmly welcomed on making her re-appearance, Messrs. Morrison, Edwards, Williamson, Barry and others in the cast personated their parts with unusual care and fidelity. "Kerry" and "Daddy O'Dowd" to-night.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—J. W. Summers, comedian and character actor, and Charles Harcourt serio-comic vocalist, will appear again this evening. The new local play entitled "The Police Court" will be performed, Moore and Bray will appear in song and dance, Cassim and Fritz in gymnastic feats, Johnny Tears and others in acts and altogether a great Saturday night bill will be presented. The same bill will be performed to-morrow night.

BUCKLEY'S NEW VARIETIES.—"Ireland vs. Africa" by E. Morton, George Foster and Miss Maggie Brewer causes much fun at this house. "Hard Cheek" by Frank Mortimore and Harry Dewey, is another amusing act and a great olio of songs and dances, is performed by the artists whose names appear on our first page.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—The extra attractions at these gardens on Saturday and Sunday will consist of the startling feat of "The Devil's Post," the act of "Leotard" and the pantomiming of "Miscellanea."

ARTISTS' ANNUAL SALE.—At the gallery of the Art Association, 313 Pine street, on February 5th, a fine collection of oil paintings will be offered at auction. This is not a speculator's sale, but is organized by the artists themselves. The contributors number the following well known artists: Sy Hill, Williams, Marple, Irwin, Denny, Marjo, Butman, Harrington, Bloomer, Deakin, Jorgheson, Sutherland, Butler, Lee, Bush, Frost, Ched. Rose, Holdredge, Welsh, Fletcher, Herrick, Miss Herrick, and others. Many of these works have been exhibited this season at the Art Association, and the rest are fresh from the easel. The collection will be on view to the morning of the sale. Admission free. In the evening the gallery will be brilliantly lighted. About three-fourths of the works are of cabinet size, and will be sold with or without the frames. Compare to the artistic sale now on.

GOLDEN GATE PARK.—Those who drive out to the new park should visit The Villa which has just been opened. Here they will find four public parlors and ten private dining rooms. Guido Mangenberg & Co the proprietors get up epicurean breakfasts, dinners and suppers at short notice.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—Captain Foster, the genial host of the Cliff House, entertains visitors from all parts of the Globe at his famous sea-side resort. The Cliff House is THE one thing San Francisco has to boast of as differentfrom anything else in the world. Omnibuses run every day from the terminus of the Sutter Mountain Railroad.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour way to profitably spent here.

NOTES.—The last number of the New York Clipper, which has come to hand, contains an illustration, burlesquing, operatic artistes on the stage. The Clipper says of its artist:

On the first page of this issue of the Clipper will be found the result of his high-handed operations, in a truthful representation of our new enlisted singers in an olio of lyric gems called from the favorite operas of the day. Here, the reader has for ten cents what otherwise would cost him three or four dollars; for, with a skill for which we had not given him credit, our own artist, Lou Destine taken on the spot, has given us a grand combination bill, comprising "Lucia," with Miss Kellogg as Lucia; "Faust," with Maurel as Mephistopheles; "Lucrezia Borgia," with Campanini as Gennaro; "La Perichole," with Capoul as Piquillo, first time; "Norma," with Torriani as Norma; and "Les Huguenots," with Nilsson as Valentine. Observe with what truthfulness to nature he has limned the pose, the bearing, the very gesture even, of each illustrious exponent of lyric art.

We turned to the first page, and there we found reproduced an old caricature by E. Jump, which was exhibited in the window of a store on Montgomery street, during the Brambilla ope a season at the Metropolitan Theatre. We did not find Kellogg, Maurel, Campanini, Torriani and Capoul but had no difficulty in recognising Brambilla, Morelli, Bianchi, Mancusi, and Madame Bianchi Even the features of the members of the old Italian opera chorus, and of Herold, the conductor of the orchestra, were easily recognizable. Oh! Clipper this is very thin. Who that ever saw Bianchi, could mistake him for Capoul? Are the people of New York such fists as to be taken in by this sort of things?

The wonderful Girards will continue at the Alhambra Theatre during the coming week.

Miss Susan Galton, after a long season of rest, will make her re-appearance at the Opera House on Monday evening in the charming operetta of Mona. Chouffleuri. The public are quite ready for another season of Opera, and will welcome the talented prima donna back to the stage.

J. G. Russell, the favorite baritone, of the Alhambra Theatre, will take his benefit on Friday evening. A host of volunteers will appear. Box sheet open on Monday.

On Monday evening, H. J. Byron's capital two-act comedy of "The Old Story" will be produced at the Opera House.

Ella Wenner, the clever character vocalist, will make her last appearance at the Alhambra Theatre to-morrow night, and will early next week leave for New York, to fill an engagement there.

On Monday Boucicault will make his last appearance at the California Theatre. The bill will consist of "Kerry" and "The Colleen Bawn."

Miss Katherine Rogers, whose success in Sacramento, will be found chronicled elsewhere, will make her first appearance in San Francisco on Tuesday evening, in a new drama entitled "Mimi," written expressly for her by Dion Boucicault, who will personally superintend its production.

Mr. Ed. Marrs, Irish comedian and vocalist, and Miss Alice Rose, sentimental vocalist, arrived, overland, last night, under engagement to Bella Union Theatre. They make their first appearance on Monday night.

Geo. C. Thompson, formerly in the minstrel business, has left the stage for the bar, and has opened a saloon on Sutter street just above Montgomery.

B. Booth in a leading role..... At the Grand Opera House "Humpty Dumpty Abroad" continued to draw well..... At Bryant's Opera House, "Cinderella" was still the attraction.....The English Opera Company mentioned last Saturday, continued to perform at the Academy of Music.....The Coliseum, with the famous cyclorama of London and Paris which were among the sights of London for many years, was drawing immense crowds....At Wood's Museum, Oliver Dead Byron was playing in "Across the Continent".....At the Metropolitan Theatre, Charley Howard, Miss Katie Wilson, Sam Rickey, Ada Ryman and others were giving a capital entertainment.....At the Theatre Comique, Miss Clara Belmont, serio-comic vocalist, made a first appearance, and Harrigan and Hart had reappeared..... At the Bowery, the attractions was a new drama entitled "The Scouts of the Sierra Nevada".....The last Clipper received says: "Frank Kearns, the Ethiopian comedian, in consequence of his continued indisposition, has been advised by his physician to pass the remainder of the present Winter in Florida. A complimentary benefit is to be given him at the Theatre Comique on Thursday afternoon, Jan. 22, when the entire company engaged at that theatre and numerous volunteers are to appear." It does not take long for a man to become a popular Ethiopian comedian" in New York, if he graduates in San Francisco. We are sorry Kearns is sick, but glad he is popular, and had a benefit.

It is announced that Miss Lydia Thompson will withdraw from the American stage at the close of the present season. Her agent states that in April next he will be prepared to sell the title, repertoric, wardrobe and entire effect, of the company.

Mr. G. W. Gipchie, of the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, will, says the Age of that city, travel next season with a piece entitled "Startling; or, Clerical Errors." He will visit San Francisco, where he first commenced studying for the stage.

Mr. C. W. Cauldock commenced an engagement at Wood's Museum, Philadelphia, on the 19th, appearing as Luke Fielding in "The Willow Copse."

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams commenced an engagement of two weeks at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 26th.

"The Tempest" was produced in grand style at the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 19th.

Madame Janauschek will play an engagement at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, in March. Miss Charlotte Cushman will also appear in that month.

Mr. Arthur Cheney is going to rebuild the Globe Theatre in Boston. The theatre, as before, will have two entrances, one on Essex street and the other on Washington. The auditorium of the new theatre will be much larger than that of the old one, and will surpass it in the richness of its decorations and fittings, so that the increase in size will not be at the expense of that comfort for which the auditorium of the old theatre was noted. The theatre will seat 2,000 persons comfortably and conveniently. Around the auditorium will be dressing, retiring, and lounging rooms of the most elegant description, by which the attractions of the theatre will be greatly increased. Fine, commodious lobbies will be constructed, also—cheerful and lively pieces, in which the gentlemen may pass their waiting time, being thus provided. The theatre will be completed in time to open in December next.

The New York Dispatch says:

We regret to announce the death of Miss Laura C. Alexander, the young lady who represented Catherine Cholas, in the play of "A Man of Honor," on its first production, a few weeks ago. The deceased lady was a native of Charlotte, N.C., and was only twenty-five years of age. She adopted the stage as a profession four years ago, making her first appearance at Ford's Theatre, Baltimore. She played for some time in the South, and subsequently joined Madame Janauschek's company. She was engaged by Mr. Wallack for "A Man of Honor," and made her first appearance in this city for that play. The critical comments on her performance were unanimously severe, and at the end of the first week, she withdrew from the company. Her temporary failure affected her greatly, and, it is feared, hastened her premature death. Miss Alexander was widely and deservedly respected.

Mr. John E. Owens and company opened at the Academy of Music, Chicago, on the 19th.

The Reynolds Brothers, George and Charley, are at the Front Street Theatre, Baltimore.

Mr. Frank E. Aiken, late lessee and manager of Aiken's Theatre, Chicago, has become bankrupt and the theatre is closed.

Messrs. White and Goulland, No. 66 Tremont street, Boston, have just issued a touching ballad, written by Darter Smith, and entitled "Please God, Make Room for a Little Boy." These words, it will be remembered, were the last uttered by "Americus," the well-known child-violinist, who died in Boston on the night of Jan. 19, 1874.

The Arcadian's Philadelphia correspondent says: The Chestnut street Theatre is reviving considerably under the vigorous management of Mr. Chas. Thompson. It is now devoted to the production of sensational plays, which seem to thrive in Philadelphia, where the "purr peanut" is the real god of the drama. Under Davenport's management, when "legitimate" plays were frequently produced the receipts at the box-office were insufficient to meet the daily expenses, and the manager, in a few months was, so report hath it, a ruined man. Mr. Thompson has evidently taken warning, produces plays in which a dozen deaths or so occur in a very off-hand manner—and is making money.

By telegraph we learn of the destruction of two Eastern theatres by fire: the New Olympic, Philadelphia, formerly of the National Hall, on the 29 and the Royal Lyceum at Toronto (Ont.,) last night after the performance.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—Miss Katherine Rogers entered on the last week of her engagement at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday evening, when she appeared in Boucicault's drama of "Hunted Down; or, the Two Lives of Mary Leigh." The Bee says:

The part of Mary Leigh is sufficient to test the skill of the best emotional actress on the American or English stage, and when the exponents of the dramatic art can infuse into this character that same indescribable feeling—that is the birthright of genius—and that was seen last night in Miss Rogers' impersonation of Mary Leigh, then we can say this person has equalled Miss Eytinge, but until then we shall adhere to the opinion that we have before expressed, that Miss Rogers is the best and most finished emotional actress that we have ever seen. To enter into any further description of this lady's acting would not be just. In the words of a morning contemporary we can only say, the acting was "virtually perfect."

This play was performed on the following evening. On Wednesday, "The Lady of Lyons" was presented, with Miss Rogers as Pauline. On On Thursday, "East Lynne" was performed. Last night, Miss Rogers was the recipient of a complimentary benefit tendered her by Governor Booth, the members of the Legislature and citizens of Sacramento. She had a tremendous house. Miss Rogers will close her engagement to-night. On Monday evening, Miss Kate Denin will take her benefit, on Tuesday W. J. Cogswell will take his, and on Wednesday Dion Boucicault will commence a short engagement. Fay Templeton, John Templeton and Misses Alice and Isabel Vane will appear on February 10th.

SAN JOSE.—On Thursday and Friday evenings, Reed's Panorama of the Great Northwest was exhibited at the Opera House, and will be presented again this evening. The Mercury says: "It is one of the most magnificent works of art ever exhibited upon the Pacific Coast, and embraces the most sublime scenery in Oregon, Washington Territory and other notable localities. It also comprises elegant and lifelike representations of the great Modoc massacre, in which the veteran hero, Brig.-Gen. E. R. S. Canby, and the Rev. E. Thomas, D. D., fell victims, including accurate representations of the Modoc stronghold, the lava beds and fortifications. The artist, Col. C. A. Reed is a native of Salem, Oregon."....On Wednesday, the cantata of "Esther" was performed at the Opera House under the direction of Prof. O. W. Parker, and drew a good house.....On Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of next week, the Templeton Star Alliance will appear at the Opera House. On Thursday evening Manager Delacy will take a benefit, on which occasion the entire company will volunteer their services.

STOCKTON.—The Templeton Star Alliance will appear at theatre this evening, and on Sunday and Monday.

OROVILLE.—Two entertainments were given at Union Hall, Thursday and Friday evenings, 29th and 30th inst., for the benefit of the Oroville public school, the proceeds being devoted to purchasing a piano. On Thursday evening the entertainment consisted of dialogues, charades, tableaux, vocal and instrumental music, and the farce of "Pleasant Neighbors." On the second night 'Ingomar" was performed with J. B. Badger, who directed both entertainments, as Ingomar and Miss Ella F. Badger as Parthenia.

MARYSVILLE.—The Star Alliance Troupe appeared at the Theatre on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings and Fay Templeton, John Templeton and Miss Alice Vane were all highly spoken of by the papers. The Appeal, noticing the first night's performance says: The sensational piece entitled "Cuba; or, No War with Spain," was well put on the stage. John Templeton, as Seth Swop, very soon won the admiration of the audience and kept the house in a constant roar of laughter. He'll do to travel. Miss Alice Vane, as the lonely Cuban Creole, was quite affecting in her role, and Miss Isabel, as Pedro, was clever in her male character. But May the Fay, the eight-year-old artist, was most wonderfull in her assumed characters, winning enthusiastic plaudits.

PORTLAND, O.—The Metropolitan Minstrels, from Vancouver, performed at Oro Fino Theatre on the 23d. There was an immense attendance. The Oregonian says: Just fifteen minutes to 12 o'clock, some person ran past the door of the theatre, and shouted the one word "fire," loud enough to be heard distinctly by every person in the house. Quick as an electric flash, the audience rose as one man. Throughout the entire assembly scarcely a single person retained his seat. The idea that the building was in flames, and that every person's life was in jeopardy, appeared to possess the crowd. Almost simultaneous with rising to their feet, a general rush was made on the narrow stairway, which affords the only means of egress. In vain did a number of persons who retained presence of mind, shout for the audience to sit down; in vain were they assured that the building was not on fire, and that there was no danger. For a few minutes a scene of confusion, which is indescribable, ensued, during which time a number crowded out. But at length several soldiers at the head of the stairway, assisted by a policeman and others of the spectators, managed to stop the jam toward the door, and induced a portion of the audience to resume their seats. This they did, and so quiet was restored and the "play went on."

SALT LAKE.—John McCullough supported by Miss Annie Graham and the stock company, appeared on the 26 h to one of the largest audiences ever assembled in the theatre. The play was "Jack Cade." The Salt Lake Footlights appropriately introduced him to the public by reprinting, with due credit, an estimate of his abilities which appeared in FIGARO, "the only," etc.

Asa L. Waugaman's New Saloon,

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to behold it."

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish bock."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
So sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,

Dry Monopole.

[Words and Music by STEPHEN MASSET, dedicated to LOUIS EPPINGER, Esq. Sung every night by ELLA WEBBER at the Alhambra Theatre.]

Of all the wines Dry Monopole
Is just the wine for me;
Though new its name, soon, soon its fame
Will stretch from sea to sea;
Of Champagne Wines it is the best,—
Although we now keep "mum,"
A glass of this I do attest
Is better far than rum.

CHORUS—Of all the wines Dry Monopole
Is just the wine for me;
Though new its name, soon, soon its fame
Will stretch from sea to sea

The Emperor William drinks it too,
And thinks it awful nice,
He wrote to Louis Eppinger
"'Tis the biggest thing on ice!"
And so he means to drink it
As long as he shall reign—
He publicly pronounces it
The gem of all Champagne
CHORUS—

The "Widow Clicquot," she's gone in,
And Rhoeder's her partner,
And all the rest of the Champagne Wines
Are sure to follow after,
So hurrah for California!
Fill high the flowing bowl,
To this the latest and the best,
The wine Dry Monopole,
CHORUS—

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men perfer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rocksaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped is a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-1

X. Y. Z. to the Rescue.

We find the following in the New York Spirit of the Times:

EDITOR SPIRIT—Dear Sir: Shiel Barry, on whom Mr. Gayler wasted much time, influence, and managerial tact, but who proved to be a most disastrous failure, owing to his incapacity, neglect of business, and the frequent exhibitions of a "weakness" always fatal to success, is revenging himself upon Mr. Gayler for having severed his connection with him by getting up scurrilous paragraphs in the papers reflecting upon the professional capacity of Mr. G. We have seen one of these paragraphs, which we presume every honorable paper will decline to publish—first, because it is scurrilous; secondly, because the reasons of Barry's failure are known to be entirely within himself. Mr. Gayler's position has been too well earned, and his reputation is too well established to be injured by Mr. Barry.

X. Y. Z.

When Mr. Gayler has the support of X Y. Z. he need not fear the machinations of Barry. X. Y. Z. is always the champion of the distressed. We have seen his name appended to many letters in the newspapers. We are quite sure Mr. Gayler's well-earned reputation (as the worst of all bad playwriters not excepting the author of "The Foster Brother") will never be lost.

Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

The London Globe remarks that some statistics contained in Mr. Winslow's book, just published, shows that the increase of insanity in England is too formidable to be contemplated without dismay The census of 1861 in England showed one insane person in 842. Ten years later the proportion had increased to one in 403, which, taking into consideration the relative increase of the population, makes the number of the insane very nearly double.

We don't know who Mr. Winslow is, but have a suspicion that he is the man who makes the soothing syrup. For making children idiots there is no more effective preparation than Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and we have no doubt it is a great cause of insanity in after life. So probably Mr. Winslow knows all about it.

A Satisfactory Apology.

A country carpenter having neglected to make a gibbet, which was ordered by the executioner, on the ground that he had not been paid for the last that he erected, gave so much offense that, the next time the Judge went the circuit he was sent for. "Fellow," said the Judge in a stern tone, "how came you to neglect making the gibbet that was ordered on my account?" "I humbly beg your pardon," said the carpenter, "had I known that it had been for your lordship, it should have been done immediately."

Webster gives the following definition of this word: "anything eminently splendid or luminous; that which is the cheif source of light and honor." How things are preverted in this world!

"Bring Up a Child" etc.

We were sorry to see the following paragraph in an exchange:

Mrs. Sarah Aldridge, said to be the widow of Tom Sayers, the pugilist, was lately fined at the Marylebone police court, in London for neglecting the education of two of her children.

This is very sad. The eldest of these children is seven years old, and he doesn't know the first thing about putting his hands up. He doesn't understand the art of fibbing (that is to say not with his fists, he probably uses his tongue for the purpose), and he doesn't seem to have any idea of what his mawleys were made for. We hope she who was once Mrs. Sayers was fined heavily for neglecting the children of such a father. No one can deny that Tom Sayers was highly educated, in a manner, and was really a man of science. We hope that these children will be educated immediately. If their poor dead and gone father was alive he would have seen to it that they had advantages, and would probably have made them both ornaments of the P. R.

A Maid's Mistake.

I heard when in England a good story of Florence Nightingale which perhaps has not been told here. She took to the Crimea a perfect dragoon of a maid, of mature years, whose duty it was to "keep all vexatious intruders away," so, when one day a very shabby-looking elderly man called at Miss Nightingale's tent, the maid refused him entrance. "Very well," said the caller; "my name is Raglan. Perhaps she will see me." The maid went inside, but presuming that he was a man who wanted help, and finding Miss Nightingale was asleep, she returned and dismissed him on her own account, saying her mistress could see nobody. When Miss Nightingale awoke she said, "Well, Abigail, has any one been here?" "Yes, Miss, a very poor man, who said his name was Ragman; and he looked it." "Oh, Abi gail! Abigail!" said Miss Nightingale in distress, "you have dismissed the commander-in-chief!"

The Connecticut Baby.

Mr. Wendell Phillips tells us, in his last lecture, that "a Connecticut baby six months old, looks over the side of his cradle, plans a model, and gets out a patent for it." There has been some little surprise expressed at the precocity of Mr. Mill as an infant, who was in Greek at the age of three; but, after this, the youthful achievements of the English philosopher go for naught. The Connecticut baby is the champion of the world in the way of precociousness.

It is never politic to overstate the age of a lady. George Warwick did it in Cleveland, and is now in jail. He wanted to marry a girl of sixteen, and to get a license he swore she was twenty-one.

A hen stopped a train on the Pensylvania railroad, her body striking the trigger that put on the air brakes, but she will never stop another.

A Michigan newsdealer recently received this order from a young lady: "Send me A Novel called bufalo bill and the dais doing." Contrary to what might be inferred, she was not from Boston.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Model Son-in-Law.

"McQuade" writes to the Fireside Friend as follows:

There are people, I know, who are constantly hurling jokes at their mother-in-law, and at everybody else's mother-in-law, just as if the old lady had no business in the world after marrying her daughters. I'd like to see the chap who dare to fling jokes at my wife's mother. It always rests me to have the good old dear arrive with her four bandboxes, two hot bricks, five bundles of herbs, a chest and a pillow slip full of dried apples and burdock root. I always feel just like falling on her shoulder; but I don't because my disposition is quiet and undemonstrative. She no sooner gets into the house than she says Maria looks like a ghost, or just like a woman up at Tarrytown whose husband mawls her with a sled-stake and is drunk half the time. She says this looking full at me, but of course I very well know she doesn't mean anything. "Heavens! but this is the same old carpet on the floor!" exclaims my mother-in-law, as she removes her bonnet. And then she looks at me and tells me how Tom Scott saved his cigar and tobacco money and bought Nelly a royal Wilton. I remember, when I was sparking my wife, there was no carpet on the floor, and so I laugh at the old lady's joke. The baby, who has been playing all day, is declared sick, and a quart bowl of catnip is prepared. My wife is sent to bed to sleep off her sick headache, though she hadn't made any complaint, and I am told I had better go to the hotel for supper.

"And no one will get into this house tonight after eight o'clock!" adds the good old creature. The parlor stove has to be moved to coincide with her views. I cheerfully move it. The pictures have to be raised or lowered; the sofa rolled over; the whatnot placed in the other corner, and all the time I am working she—bless her old heart!—is telling me how Baker, who wanted to marry our Maria, but didn't get a chance, is now worth his thousands and thousands, and has a parlor which a king would hardly dare to enter. The servant girl is declared a sloven, and I cheerfully discharge her, though she has been with us a year. The kitchen stove has to be moved to the left, and the heads of all the beds turned to the north so as to get the benefit of the electric current, and the watch-dog shot because his bark wakes her at midnight. "Anything farther, dear mother?" I ask, as I look into her smiling face. And she replies that Maria ought to be sent South for her health; the baby boarded out by the week; the front door steps repainted; the lambroquins exchanged; the interior of the house grained, the kitchen-stove exchanged for a range; and a few more trifling matters performed. Some men get out of patience the moment the mother-in-law enters the house, but I meet her with a smile.

The Model Deacon.

One of the deacons of a Congregational chapel in Lynn, Mass., refused to allow a musical entertainment to go on in the building, an entertainment announced to be given by a blind boy "in aid of the poor of the city." The reason given by the good deacon was a curious one. The use of two American flags as a curtain he pronounced a "desecration of the house." God and mammon he considers a natural enough sort of union, but that of "God and patriotism" fills him with frightful despair.

Here is another awful example for the anti-tobaccomen. At Columbus, Ohio, a bank robber had successfully opened and entered, when he could't resist the temptation of taking a pinch of snuff. His sneeze betrayed his presence; and they don't allow snuff in the penitentiary, either.

A circus elephant, wintering at Louisville is on the watch for the man who tossed him an apple full of catarrh snuff.

A doorkeeper at one of our theatres says that deadheads always make him feel sorrowful. They remind him of the passed.

"Good blood will show itself," said the old lady with the red nose.

Keep Them Back.

The Providence Press is alarmed at the progress made by women. It says: What shall be done with the women? That they have been put to mending and making, boiling and baking, and all that's endearing, scrubbing and washing, singing and weeping, and so on for generations, at the order and dictation of man, is not disputed, but in spite of this apparent submission to the decrees of the masculines, women have been advancing slowly in the direction of dominion, gaining points here and there, holding on to every foot of vant ge ground, and threatening to take new and more advanced steps from year to year as civil zation progresses. The American woman emancipated herself from household service some time ago, and so completely that one of the species if found as a domestic in any household in the land would be as much of a curiosity nearly as Barnum's mermaid.

There are but two living animals—the man and the dog—which can stand an instantaneous change from arctic to tropical heat without suffering deterioration or losing their health.

Opera House.

To-night Miss Susan Galton and Alfred Ketcheler will make their reappearance at this house, and supported by John Howson, Mrs. Julia Melville and others will perform Offenbach's sparkling opera bouffe of "Chouffleuri." The evening's entertainment will commence with the comedy of "The Old Story," in which John Howson will appear as Waverly Brown; J. P. Burnett as Thompson, and the vivacious Miss Jennie Lee as Mrs. Minerva Deadset. Professor O'Reardon will also appear in his delightful performance on the Tumbleronican.

California Theatre.

To-night, Dion Boucicault will close his brilliantly successful engagement at this theatre, and will appear in "Kerry," and as Myles na Coppaleen in "The Colleen Bawn." There will, as a matter of course, be an immense audience to take leave of the gifted playwright and excellent actor, who has afforded so much delight to the public of San Francisco. To-morrow night, Miss Katharine Rogers will make her first appearance in San Francisco, in Boucicault's drama of "Mimi," which will be produced under the personal supervision of the author.

Alhambra Theatre.

A great bill will be presented at this popular house to-night. After a great first part in which Billy Sweatnam, Billy Manning, Con T. Murphy, J. G. Russell, W. F. Baker and others will appear Messrs Welch and Rice will present their very successful original act of "A Practical Joke," Billy Sweatnam and Con T. Murphy will appear in "The Gripsack," the wonderful Girards, who are in the last week of their engagement in their ever-popular "Leg-Mania," Geo. S. Knight in his original songs and sayings, Manning and Sweatnam in "The Robbers of Poverty Flat," and the Siegrist troupe and their dogs, in their very attractive performance.

Artists' Annual Sale.

The public is invited to visit the Gallery of the Art Association 313 Pine street, where nearly 100 original pictures are to be sold by auction on Thursday morning at 12 noon. Admission free.

Bella Union.

This evening, Miss Alice Rose, a popular vocalist from the Eastern theatres, will make her first appearance here in serio-comic gems, and Mr. Edward Murray, Irish comedian and vocalist, from the East, will also make his first appearance as Barney in "Barney's Courtship," supported by Miss Alice Rose as Molly. The local play of "The Police Court" and other sketches constitute a good bill, which can be found in full on our first page.

Buckley's Varieties.

Miss Lizzie Harmon in comic and sentimental songs, Frank Mortimore in sketches, George Foster, Hughey Morton, and others in acts and other favorite artistes whose names appear on our first page will give a capital entertainment this evening.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

Besides the thousand and one standard attractions and exhibition of the trained animals, the fifteen sea lions, on Saturday and Sunday, there is a grand performance including a comic pantomime and the magic feat of La Marmite du Diable.

Notes.

J. G. Russell, the popular baritone, will take his benefit at the Alhambra Theatre on Friday next. A great bill has been prepared for the occasion. Its salient features are set forth on our first page.

George T. Evans, the talented leader of orchestra and musical composer, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit on Feb. 19th.

Alfred Wilkie, the sweet-voiced tenor of Mad. Anna Bishop's late concert troupe, is to have a benefit on the 13th, when he will present a rich and varied entertainment at one of the music halls.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street,
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.

Epicure's Retreat.

The epicurean fond of nice grain-fed, pig-pork chop, tenderloin or roast, resorts to B. F. Bunker's 74 and 75 California Market, and is never disappointed, for "Bob," is a good feeder himself, and always keeps on hand the very best in his line. DAISY'S PUZZLES.

Little Daisy is five years old;
Hair a tangle of red and gold;
Eyes like violets wet with dew;
Lips where pretty pearls peep through.

When the bells began to say
"This is Washington's birthday,"
"Yes," said Daisy, very wise,
"He's the man that made the pies."

When the Spring began to grow,
Daisy thought her flowers were slow;
Curious why they showed no shoots,
She pulled them all up by the roots.

"Why is a needle so hard to thread?
Why must children go early to bed?
Do potatoes have eyes to see how to grow?
Does the corn have ears to hear the winds blow?"

Only five Summers has Daisy seen
The blossoms burst and the earth grow green;
And a curious puzzle it is to her
Why sweet things like chestnuts are hid in a burr?

Not Quite a Success.

The Gold Hill (Nev.) News tells the following:

When you wish to crop the ears of your pet pup in an aristocratic manner, or decorate your neighbor's tom-cat by bobbing off his tail, you can do it very agreeably, and without pain or trouble, by applying a sponge wet with chloroform to the animal's nose. Our friend Bilfkins, down Lower Gold Hill, treated his new yellow mastiff pup that way the other Sunday. He stayed at home from church to do it. The pup got a few whiffs of the choloform into him and went off to sleep, stretched out on his side just as natural as possible. He never even winked, kicked or grunted when his ears were trimmed off, although the shears were dull. When Bilf. got them fixed just right and the points tied up over the dog's head, he rubbed his hands with delight to see how the pup evidently enjoyed it. "Oh! no!" says Bilf, "'tant me that can crop a dog's ears pretty and not hurt him; guess not. Some style about that; hey, boys?" Then they waited awhile to see the pup come to, but he didn't. They rubbed him with snow and bit his tail, but 'twas no use; that pup was dead. The only trouble was in giving too much chlororofm; otherwise than that the operation was a fine success.

Young America Wonders.

Wonder why mother keeps Bridget home from church to work all day, and says it is wicked for me to build my rabbit house on Sunday.

Wonder why our minister bought that pretty cane, with the yellow lion's head on the top, and then asked me for my cent to put in the missionary box? Don't I want a jewsharp just as well as he wanted a cane?

Wonder what makes papa tell such nice stories about hiding the master's rattan when he went to school, and about his running away from the school mistress when she was going to whip him, they shut me up in a dark room because I tried just once to be as smart as he was?

Wonder what made papa say that wicked word when Betsy upset the ink all over his papers, and then slap my ears because I said the same thing when my kite string broke? Wonder why mamma told Bridget the other day to say that she was not at home when Tommy Day's mother called, and then puts me to bed without any supper every night I tell a lie?

Oh dear! there is lots of things I want to know. How I wish I was a man.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins!;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

SANCTIONING ASSASSINATION,

The base and dastardly attempts at murder yesterday are followed up this morning by an editorial in the Chronicle endorsing the right of assassination. This is not to be wondered at when the proprietors of that sheet find the detective officers are willing tools in their hands, that a prejudiced or weak-kneed judge places a number of poor printers under $5,000 bail each for a mere alleged misdemeanor against them, and sets them free from their great crime. The most concerted and distardly attempt at murder ever committed in this city, under the absurd bail bondage of $3,000 we say it is no wonder that they should look upon the law as a mere system of forms and orders entirely subservient to the Chronicle's power, and deem themselves above its penalties. The events of the last few days have created a great revolution in public opinion, and every man, with almost marvellous unanimity, is plain-spoken in his denunciation of the high-handed outrages which have been committed both without and with the sanction of the law. The good repute of our city is already tarnished enough: let the law be administered hereafter strictly and impartially, without fear or favor, to all offenders.

The Fog in Brooklyn.

The New York Dispatch says: The fog doesn't agree with some people. During the fog of last week, a gentleman living in Clinton avenue, Brooklyn, returned home in the evening very fatigued. He said to his wife: "Marisha, lesses gotobred." "What did you say?" asked his wife. "Lesses graw bred." What in heaven's name is the matter with you?" asked the uncomprehending wife. "Dono. Guess rits re frog." "Frog?" said the wife, with contempt in every tone of her voice. "It's the hot rum and whisky punches you've been drinking, you miserable old rum bottle. Go to bed, you incomprehensible old fool, or I'll throw a pail of water over you." He is disgusted with this treatment of him by the partner of his income. But women, he says, never could understand scientific matters. They don't know the difference between fog and whisky.

Remedy the Evil.

The Archbishop of Santiago declares that females in the choir are dangerous to true piety and devotion. He thinks, probably, that the congregations will be thinking of the sweet voices, the pretty faces and bright eyes, when they should have their thoughts entirely on the celestial beauties. The Archbishop is right. The female sex always were deluders, and their smiles are more potent than priestly homilies. It would be a good thing to kill off all the women, and then there wouldn't be any temptation in the world.

Young America Wonders.

Wonder why mother keeps Bridget home from church to work all day, and says it is wicked for me to build my rabbit house on Sunday.

Wonder why our minister bought that pretty cane, with the yellow lion's head on the top, and then asked me for my cent to put in the missionary box? Don't I want a jewsharp just as well as he wanted a cane?

Wonder what makes papa tell such nice stories about hiding the master's rattan when he went to school, and about his running away from the school mistress when she was going to whip him, they shut me up in a dark room because I tried just once to be as smart as he was?

Wonder what made papa say that wicked word when Betsy upset the ink all over his papers, and then slap my ears because I said the same thing when my kite string broke? Wonder why mamma told Bridget the other day to say that she was not at home when Tommy Day's mother called, and then put me to bed without any supper every night I tell a lie?

Oh dear! there is lots of things I want to know. How I wish I was a man.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410½ below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Not Quite a Success.

The Gold Hill (Nev.) News tells the following:

When you wish to crop the ears of your pet pup in an aristocratic manner, or decorate your neighbor's tom-cat by bobbing off his tail, you can do it very agreeably, and without pain or trouble, by applying a sponge wet with chloroform to the animal's nose. Our friend Bilfkins, down Lower Gold Hill, treated his new yellow mastiff pup that way the other Sunday. He stayed at home from church to do it. The pup got a few whiffs of the choloform into him and went off to sleep, stretched out on his side just as natural as possible. He never even winked, kicked or grunted when his ears were trimmed off, although the shears were dull. When Bilf. got them fixed just right and the points tied up over the dog's head, he rubbed his hands with delight to see how the pup evidently enjoyed it. "Oh! no!" says Bilf, "'tant me that can crop a dog's ears pretty and not hurt him; guess not. Some style about that; hey, boys?" Then they waited awhile to see the pup come to, but he didn't. They rubbed him with snow and bit his tail, but twas no use; that pup was dead. The only trouble was in giving too much chlororofm; otherwise than that the operation was a fine success.

Danger of Changing Habits.

An Indian, named Squatting, came into Omaha, the other day, and while he was in a condition of intoxication, somebody induced him to go in and take a Turkish bath. The next day, he went home. As he approached the camp, a squad of Indians rushed at him, and began to shoot arrows at him, and to hack him with their tomahawks. He yelled for them to stop, and asked them what they meant by treating him in that manner. He declared that he was Squatting Bear. They received the statement with derision. But as he insisted upon it, they took him to the wigwam to see what his squaw had to say about it. That amiable woman instantly darted at his hair, and began to fumble among it with a carving-knife, while his dog bit a coffee-colored chop out of his left leg. Then they took him away and killed him. It was the first wash he had had since 1827, and it was too much for him. His fate affords an impressive warning against the sudden change of habits. Let our readers who have not used soap since 1827 beware how they begin the practice now.

A Maid's Mistake.

I heard when in England a good story of Florence Nightingale which perhaps has not been told here. She took to the Crimea a perfect dragoon of a maid, of mature years, whose duty it was to "keep all vexatious intruders away," so, when one day a very shabby-looking elderly man called at Miss Nightingale's tent, the maid refused him entrance. "Very well," said the caller; "my name is Raglan. Perhaps she will see me." The maid went inside, but presuming that he was a man who wanted help, and finding Miss Nightingale was asleep, she returned and dismissed him on her own account, saying her mistress could see nobody. When Miss Nightingale awoke she said, "Well Abigail, has any one been here?" "Yes, Miss, a very poor man, who said his name was Ragman; and he looked it." "Oh, Abigail! Abigaill" said Miss Nightingale in distress, "you have dismissed the commander-in-chief!"

X. Y. Z. to the Rescue.

We find the following in the New York Spirit of the Times:

EDITOR SPIRIT—Dear Sir: Shiel Barry, on whom Mr. Gayler wasted much time, influence, and managerial tact, but who proved to be a most disastrous failure, owing to his incapacity, neglect of business, and too frequent exhibitions of a "weakness" always fatal to success, is revenging himself upon Mr. Gayler for having severed his connection with him by getting up scurrilous paragraphs in the papers reflecting upon the professional capacity of Mr. G. We have seen one of these paragraphs, which we presume every honorable paper will decline to publish—first, because it is scurrilous; secondly, because the reasons of Barry's failure are known to be entirely within himself. Mr. Gayler's position has been too well earned, and his reputation is too well established to be injured by Mr. Barry.

X. Y. Z.

When Mr. Gayler has the support of X. Y. Z. he need not fear the machinations of Barry. X. Y. Z. is always the champion of the distressed. We have seen his name appended to many letters in the newspapers. We are quite sure Mr. Gayler's well-earned reputation (as the worst of all bad playwriters not excepting the author of "The Foster Brother") will never be lost.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

In spite of the rain there was a capital audience at this house last night, when Dion Boucicault took his farewell of the San Francisco public, appearing in "Kerry," and as Myles na Coppaleen in "The Colleen Bawn." To-night, the public will enjoy a treat to which they have been anxiously looking forward for some weeks. Miss Katharine Rogers, from the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, will make her first appearance in San Francisco, choosing for the occasion the character of Mimi, in the play of that name, written expressly for her by Mr. Boucicault, who will personally superintend its production. The full cast appears on our first page. We have had many fine actors in this city, but the great actresses who have appeared here can be counted on the fingers of one hand. We only regret that Miss Rogers' engagement is necessarily a short one.

Alhambra Theatre.

The new bill performed at this house last night, drew a large audience and was much enjoyed by all present. The Girards are as popular as ever in their wonderful "Leg-Mania." Welsh and Rice are great in song and dance, the amusing act of "The Gripsacs," by Billy Sweatnam and Con T. Murphy, is received with roars of laughter, George B. Knight introduces new songs and stories, the Siegrists and their wonderful dogs appear in a very amusing performance, and "The Robbers of Poverty Flat," by Manning, Sweatnam and Reed, causes great laughter. The same bill will be presented to-night. J. G. Russell, the popular baritone, will take his benefit on Friday evening.

Opera House.

A thoroughly enjoyable entertainment was given at this house last night. It commenced with H. J. Byron's capital comedy of "The Old Story," in which Miss Jennie Lee gave a charming impersonation of the lively widow, Mrs. Minerva Deadset, John Howson was excellent as the erratic Waverly Brown, and J. P. Burnett as Thompson did another of those clever bits of character acting for which he is becoming famous. This was followed by the performance of Professor O'Reardon on the Lumbleronicon, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. This evening's entertainment terminated with Offenbach's opera bouffe of "Choufleuri," in which Miss Susan Galton and Alfred Kelleher made their reappearance. They were heartily welcomed and sang splendidly, the rest of which they have enjoyed having had a perceptible effect on their voices. John Howson, as Babylas, caused much amusement, and the opera was rattled off in capital style. The same bill will be played to-night.

Bella Union.

There is no end to the novelties at this popular variety theatre. Charles Harcourt, serio-comic vocalist, and J. W. Summers, comedian, who made their appearance last week, have already established themselves as favorites, and last night Miss Alice Ross, vocalist and actress, and Ed. Murray, Irish comedian and vocalist, who were engaged in the East expressly for this house, made their first appearance and created quite a sensation by their capital acting and singing in the musical sketch entitled "Barney's Courtship." Miss Alice Ross has a good stage presence and is a good singer and a sprightly actress; Mr. Murray in Irish characters does not have much to assume, as he is evidently a son of the old sod. He makes a good rollicking stage Irishman, and is gifted with an excellent voice. Both were recalled at the end of their act.

Buckley's Varieties.

"The Tragedians," "The Wig Block," "Obeying Orders," and "Woman's Trials; or, Virtue Triumphant," are among the acts to be performed at this place of amusement for the million to-night. Mortimore, Miss Lizzie Harmon and many other favorites will appear in specialties. Ned Buckley having recovered from his recent indisposition, now appears nightly on the end in the first part as good as new.

Artists' Annual Sale.

The public is invited to visit the Gallery of the Art Association 313 Pine street, where nearly 100 original pictures are to be sold by auction on Thursday morning at 12 noon. Admission free.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

Besides the thousand and one standard attractions and exhibition of the trained animals, the fifteen sea lions, on Saturday and Sunday, there is a grand performance including a comic pantomime and the magic feat of La Marmite du Diable.

Changed Hands.

The saloon 720 Market street, now known as the "Orient" will in the future be kept as a first-class house in every respect by Messrs Goldsworthy & Weston, who are well known as gentleman who understands all the requirements of the business. We are sure that the "Orient" in their hands will become one of our most popular resorts. 2c

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture, will be glad to learn that Professor O. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

SOMEWHERE.

Somewhere await the treasures we have strewn,
Which idle hands and feet have rudely shattered,
And tenderest love shall gather as its own
The pearls thus scattered.

Somewhere the tears of broken-hearted trust,
Of patient sacrifice and self-submission,
Shall form the rainbow promise of a just
And full fruition.

Somewhere the narrow stepping-stones we tread
The steep and terrible ascent of duty,
Shall turn to velvet terraces o'erspread
With emotional beauty.

Somewhere the doubtful seed that we have sown,
Shall well dispose a cold, uncertain rootage,
And vindicate the hope we now disown
By fairest fruitage.

Somewhere our human efforts of to-day,
The tattering outcome of a pure intention,
Eternity shall hold as brave essay
And true ascension.

O, universal! The finite range
Of earth and time may dwarf our high endeavor,
Yet life is victory through the involving change
Of thy forever.

Musical notes.

Messrs. Strakosch and Merrelli have entered, report says, into partnership, which has for its object the control of all the great opera-houses of Europe. They now operate the opera-houses at St. Petersburg, Moscow, and the Paris Italiens, to be followed soon by the San Carlos of Naples, and others. Turn about is fair play. The great prima donnas have been continually striking for higher pay, and now the managers propose to strike for lower salaries.

The opera at Paris is non est, on account of the burning of the Opera House. Strakosch hopes to open again somewhere, and is trying to engage novelties for the occasion, Novelties are scarce. Many have made their debut, but few have succeeded. Four tenors have passed into oblivion, viz.: Benfiatelle Brignoli, Villa and Gillandi. Three others have made their debut: Serazzi, De Bassini and Genevois. Three baritones made their debut recently.

The Paris Figaro complains that fifteen out of the London theatres are playing operas and pieces by French composers and authors, without paying to them one shilling for their rights.

A Satisfactory Apology.

A country carpenter having neglected to make a gibbet, which was ordered by the executioner, on the ground that he had not been paid for the last that he erected, gave so much offense that, the next time the Judge went the circuit he was sent for. "Fellow," said the Judge in a stern tone, "how came you to neglect making the gibbet that was ordered on my account?" "I humbly beg your pardon," said the carpenter, "had I known that it had been for your lordship, it should have been done immediately."

The Wife's Business.

A servant once entering in fright the study of his master, who was in deep thought and contemplation, told him that the house was on fire. "Well," said he, "inform my wife. I do not interfere in household matters."

A hen stopped a train on the Pensylvania railroad, her body striking the trigger that put on the air brakes, but she will never stop another.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here;
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a T."
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins!
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

The Connecticut Baby.

Mr. Wendell Phillips tells us, in his last lecture, that "a Connecticut baby six months old, looks over the side of his cradle, plans a model, and gets out a patent for it." There has been some little surprise expressed at the precocity of Mr. Mill as an infant, who was in Greek at the age of three; but, after this, the youthful achievements of the English philosopher go for naught. The Connecticut baby is the champion of the world in the way of precociousness.

Lipman's Great Discovery

Propably no object has called forth more preparations than that of restoring and beautifying human hair; and among all, J. Lipman's wonderful restorer stands beyond question at the head for efficiency and perfect safety. This is absolutely free from Sugar of Lead or Lac Sulphur, and never fails to produce the effect desired; requires no other preparation; is easily applied, and is, without doubt, the simplest, best and cheapest hair restorative in use. Slaughter of the Innocents.

The following, which will startle thousands of fond mothers, is from The Druggists Circular:

"Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has several times been condemned in the columns of The Druggist's Circular, but we have not published the formula. The original recipe is kept secret, but the results of analysis have been made known. It has been shown that one ounce of the syrup contains one grain of morphia. If, then, Mrs. Winslow's instructions be followed, the dose for an infant three months old contains an equivalent of ten drops of laudanum, and this Mrs. Winslow recommends to be repeated every two hours! The injury that may be done by the ignorant use of such a nostrum is hardly to be estimated; and yet a calculation has been made that not less than 15,000,000 ounces of the syrup are annually sold in the United States; in other words, that the children of this country are dosed every year with as many million grains of morphia!"

Surely this is a slaughter of the innocents on a most fearfully wholesale scale.

High Literary Authority.

The dramatic critic of the Post has taken up the pedagogues ferule, and on Tuesday administered a castigation to a Chronicle reporter for using bad English and showing an ignorance of Latin. The Post man does not know too much himself, as is proved by the following extract from his lecture.

Again, it is not very easy to imagine what a "prurient prude" is, but perhaps our brother thinks the rythm of the alliteration makes up for the obscurity of the meaning.

We think that any one conversant with the literature of the day, and who has read Charles Reade's novels and the letters he has written in their defense, can imagine very easily the signification of "peurient prude." The novelist introduced the expression and it was at once accepted by the public.

A Scotch Brute.

They tell this story of a Scotch Judge, who, when one of his colleagues failed to take his seat on the bench, leaving his brother to excuse his absence on the ground that he had lost his wife, exclaimed: "Has he? That is a good good excuse, indeed, I wish we all had the same."

Mistaken.

When we saw a paragraph in yesterday's Chronicle headed "Hoodlums Rampant; two more disgraceful displays of Violence," we thought it had something to do with the Chronicle-Sun imbroglio but it hadn't.

New Music.

We have received from the composer, M. O'Reardon, a ballad entitled "The Dream of love is o'er," sung by Con. T. Murphy at the Alhambra Theatre.

Slightly Impertinent.

Wm. Lane Brooker, H. B. M. Consul, was welcomed back to San Francisco at a re-union held on Monday evening, at the rooms of the British Benevolent Society. The Rev. John Hemphill made the welcoming address, and in the course of it alluded to a rumor that Mr. Booker had gone to England to get married. He said:

But we are woefully disappointed in one thing. You are here, but where is Mrs. Booker? We expected her. It was whispered around from lip to lip that the British Consul had gone home to marry a British lady. We speculated, as we have an undoubted right to do, as to what the coming lady would be like—whether she would be tall or short, brunette or blonde, grave or gay; but we were all agreed in one thing, that the Consul's good judgment would lead him to select one of whom he and we should feel proud—a worthy helpmeet for a worthy man—a representative daughter of old England. But we have been "building castles in the air" all these months, nothing more.

He then continued in the following strain:

Now you will pardon me, sir, if I offer you a little bit of friendly expostulation. You are far too sweet a flower to waste your fragrance on the desert air. It is not good for man to be alone, and it is not right. Nevertheless, with united heart and voice we bid you welcome—thrice welcome to your home again.

Parsons are privileged we suppose, and as marrying is part of their trade they must be pardoned if they talk sharp even at social gatherings. According to Mr. Hemphill, a bachelor is no use in the world. We differ with him entirely. We have no doubt that Mr. Booker understands himself perfectly, and will not be driven into matrimony by Mr. Hemphill or anyone else. That was very "pretty" calling him a "sweet flower," a sweet William of course. Sweet William need not waste his fragrance on the desert air, but as a blooming bachelor may shed his fragrance on many, instead of being potted up by one woman.

Baby's First Tooth.

A comparatively small matter sometimes causes a great excitement in a village. Last Monday morning, about half-past one o'clock, the citizens of New Castle were aroused by a succession of shouts, followed by firing of pistols and the springing of a watchman's rattle. In a few minutes the entire population was in the street, and everybody hurried to the place from whence the noise came. When they reached Pitman's house they saw Pitman leaning out of the window turning a rattle furiously, and hallooing at the top of his voice, while every now and then he would brandish his revolver and fire it half a dozen times. The policeman felt certain that burglars were in the house, and while they were bursting open the back window to capture thieves a rumor spread that the house was on fire. In two minutes the engine was on the ground, a ladder was raised, and they had a stream playing through the third story window, and meanwhile a telegraph was sent asking for assistance from the Willmington fire department. As the policeman entered the back window the firemen kicked down the front door and rushed in followed by the crowd. Pitman met them on the stairs, and the mayor of the town said:

"Pitman, what on earth is the matter?"

Pitman pranced around for a minute, and then he shouted;

"Come in boys; come right in and see it."

"See what?" demanded the crowd.

"Why, our baby. It's just got its first tooth. Come right up, and let's have a tearin' old time."

As the conviction grew stronger that Pitman was intoxicated, the crowd then gradually dispersed and went home. Good judges estimate that the tooth will cost Pitman about four hundred dollars for damages; and Mrs. Pitman intimates that subsequent dental appearances in the child's mouth will be concealed from Mr. Pitman untill he gets sober.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Night to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

A Social Time in Texas.

"You never was at a dance in Texas, was you?" said an old fellow to us one day, recently. As we never had been, we were so reckless as to tell the truth. We were immediately button-holed. "Well, then, you don't know what fun is. I remember one that I was at in Waco that was lively, you bet. There was about eighty present, most on 'em men. The music was furnished by a pious Methodist deacon. He could yank as neat a dancing tune out o' that fiddle o' his'n as e'er a horsehair puller slung in the Academy or Steinway Hall. And he was mighty strong at a protracted meetin', and could hide away corn juice as e'er a bull-whacker in the country, and it would a done yer heart good to have seen him jine in a free fight. Of course, as there wasn't enough of gals to go round, by a heap, they had plenty of dancin', you kin just bet yer last chaw on to that. After a while the corn juice began to kind o' excite the men, and they got up stag dances, and the way they'd yell and youp, and sling their legs and jump up and make the buildin' shake when they come down was exhileratin' I tell you. One o' the gals danced till she dropped down in a faint, and the blood run out o' her mouth and nose, and she died two days arter. She was grit, she was. After this ere little onpleasantness the men got bein' meloncholy like, and sympathized with the friends of the gal a good deal, and drank more corn juice, pooty soon somebody made a remark that didn't jibe with the sentiments of some other gentleman, and the consekence was as beautiful a free fight as e'er I seed. There were half a dozen noses chawed off, two or three eyes gouged out, and one or two died from gettin' in the way o' bullets. It was a lively fight I tell you. Durin' it all, the pious deacon kept on a sawin' his old fiddle and yanking sweet melody out on its old carcase. You kin bet you'd a liked to been there, it was roarin' fun." We expressed an opinion that we were perfectly satisfied at having been absent. We asked him to take a little "corn juice." He didn't refuse. In lifting his glass he released our button hole, and we retreated. As we issued from the door we heard him say, "I was at another dance up at Waco—" Probably he had captured some other unfortunate.

Shall the Sexes be Separated.

Sleeping coaches on night railroad trains have become the rule rather than the exception. People have learned that they can sleep comfortably, and travel at the same time. The custom for those accommodations is now so large that each "sleeper" runs crowded. Persons of either sex are crowded in as well as may be, and cases are coming to light where the male passengers have far exceeded the bounds of traveling familiarity. Generally, the facts of these assaults do not become public, because ladies are slow to bruit such matters. In view of all this, the public are now calling upon the managers of these cars for separate cars for male and female passengers. But this will hardly do, for husband and wife will not consent to this. To continue the rule, because women are insulted on the streets, a demand might arise for separate cities, and even planets for men and women. "Masculines allowed on this planet," would be a nice label for old mother earth as she plows through space.

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba.
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Rockaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped in a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat.
The food is good, the prices low
At 1004 Market street. 12-t

Opera House.

"The Old Story," one of H. J. Byron's best comedies, is admirably performed at this house by Miss Jennie Lee, John Howson, J. P. Burnett and others, whose names appear on our first page. Miss Jennie Lee is perfectly irresistible as Mrs. Minerva Deadset, Professor O'Reardon appears nightly in his performance on the Tumbleronicon, and the evening's entertainment concludes with Offenbach's very lively opera bouffe of "Choufleuri; or, the Prima Donna of a Night," in which Miss Susan Galton and Alfred Kellsher do some delicious singing, and John Howson causes much fun.

California Theatre.

Miss Katherine Rogers made her first appearance at this theatre last night, and at once captivated the audience by her charmingly natural style of acting. She was called before the curtain at the termination of every act in which she appeared The plot of Boucicault's "Mimi" which was played on this occasion may be briefly sketched. In the first act we find Maurice (Lewis Morrison), a young man of bohemian proclivities, at the house of his uncle, M. Durosel (Henry Edwards), who is trying to reform him, and marry him to Madame D'Arblay (Miss Ellie Wilton), a wealthy widow. A party of students and grisettes Max, (W. A Mestayer) Schneider (J. C. Williamson), Rigolette (Miss Maggie Moore), Colinet (E. J. Buckley), and Solope (Miss Emily Denin), arrive for the purpose of picnicing on the grounds of M. Durosel. Maurice is delighted with such congenial company invites to them to an al fresco collation, prepared by his uncle for Madame D'Arblay, and finally make his escape with them, and his faithful servant Cliout (W. Barry), to Paris. In the second act we find him in an attic in Paris, supporting himself by his pen, and learn that he has fallen in love with Mimi (Miss Katherine Rogers), an inmate of a foundling asylum. He wishes to marry her, but has not the means to support a wife. In the adjoining room is Rigolette, who has had a row with he lover Max, and is now alone and in poverty. These two poor bohemians meet, and condole with each other. The postress, Rosalie (Mrs. O. R. Saunders), and informs them that they are both to be arrested for debt, that the room occupied by Maurice is let to a young lady, and Rigolette's to a gentleman. The lady turns out to be Mimi, the gentleman Max. Maurice is taken to prison, and Mimi after an affectionate meeting with her lover, gives herself up to the officer in Rigolette's place choosing to share captivity with Maurice. In the third act Max is in funds, and is supporting Rigolette in comfortable style. Maurice is still at enmity with his uncle, and owes Max, money. Mimi is ill and requires change of air. The uncle writes to Mimi offering her a handsome annuity, if she will give up Maurice, At the same time she receives this letter, Rigolette receives one from Count M——proposing and elopement and offering marriage. Rigolette shows this letter to Maurice as the one received by Mimi and complications ensue The uncle who plays a role very similar to that of the father in "Camille," while Mimi is an angelic Camille who never did anything wrong, arrives and offers Mimi any amount of money to leave his nephew. She like Camille refuses the money, but consents to give up her love. Maurice supposes of course when she tells him they must part for ever, that she is going to accept the hand of Count M— In the fourth act, there is a party at the house of M. Durosel, present Madame D'Arblay, Maurice Max, Schneider and Collinet. Madame D'Arblay is happy with Maurice, but knowing the history of his affair with Mimi is afraid he still loves her. Mimi having learned of the deception practised on Maurice arrives to explain that she is not false to him, and has an interview with Madame D'A blay who by her taunts provokes the poor girl into boasting that the heart of Maurice is still hers. In the last act, Maurice, Rigolette. Rosalie, Max and Schneider are in deep distress at the disappearance of Mimi, when the ever faithful Cliout arrives and announces that Mimi has been found in a hospital. She arrives among her friends in a dying condition. Madame D'Arblay arrives full of penitence at her treatment of Mimi and gives Maurice her purse, next comes the cynical M. Durosel, who is convinced that Mimi's sickness is all "put on," and says he 'can cure it." He places the girl's hand in that of her lover and says "There, take him, be happy, I share my wealth with you." Mimi utiers no sound, she is dead. The curtain falls. Miss Katherine Rogers gave an exquisite rendition of the very difficult role of Mimi, which in less capabable hands might be maudlin and tiresome. She has no staginess and never indulges in the "gush" which too often disfigures the acting of professedly "emotional actresses." There was no straining for effect, no appealing to the gallery, no making of stage points at the expense of natural acting. Miss Rogers is an actress who would wear well with the public of San Francisco, and would be, at the conclusion of a year's engagement more popular than when she commenced it. Lewis Morrison did some capital acting in the character of Maurice, notably in the scenes which called for the display of strong emotions; he was not so happy in the first act. Miss Maggie Moore was excellent as Rigolette, playing the part with a finish worthy of an actress of far more experience than she has had on the stage. No one can deny that this promising young actress avails herself of every opportunity to display her undoubted talent to its best advantage, or that her progress in her profession during her engagement at this theatre has not been remarkable. Miss Ellie Wilton, who only appeared in the last two acts, dressed splendidly and acted the part of Madame D'Arblay admirably. W. A. Mestayer as the Jovial Max was perfectly at home, and did full justice to the part. J. C. Williamson as Schneider, a good-natured German student, made up for the character extremely well and carefully avoided over-acting it Many actors would have made the part very "funny" and entirely spoiled it, for the judicious, who could appreciate it as drawn by the playwright. Henry Edwards as the hard-hearted uncle, played his part well, making in Durosel a man of the world, not intentionally cruel but unable to appreciate the nobility of Mimi's nature. E. J. Buckley as Collinet, the medical student, did very well, and W. Barry as the devoted Cliout, who always stuck to his master, through good fortune and bad fortune quite realized the character. Mrs. O. R. Saunders as the jolly little portress Rosalie, was pleasant as she always is in every part she undertakes, and Miss Emily Denin did very well with the little part of Solope. "Mimis" will be played every night until further notice, and at the Matinee on Saturday.

Free Art Exhibition.

The collection of pictures which has been on view for the past four days at the gallery of the Art Association, 313 Pine street, and has been admired by several thousand visitors, will be sold at auction to-morrow at 12 noon. Admission free this evening and to-morrow till hour of sale. This is an attempt to organize a special sale for the benefit of the artists themselves, and as the collection is really first-class, deserves to be successful. All, or nearly all, of the works are of excellent quality, while on such pictures as Hill's "Last Gleam" and "Scene in Knight's Valley;" Irwin's "Don Quixote" and "Alice in Wonder-Land;" Bush's "Sacchante Crowning a Fawn;" Hahn's "Going to Market;" Marple's, and Bloomer's, and Deakin's landscapes; and Denny's marines; Butler's glorious sketch of a "Night Bivouac;" and the large work by Butman of "Mt. Hood," there should be very lively bidding. There are some very frosty Siberian studies by Frost, and several other artists; notably, Ross, Welsh and Shed are very well represented.

Bella Union.

The company at this house is a very strong one and an excellent entertainment is given. The programme for to-night comprises the musical sketch of "Barney's Courtship," by Ed. Murray and Miss Alice Ross, who have made a decided hit. serio-comic songs by Charles Harcourt, J. W Summers Miss Jennie Johnson and others in the local play of "The Police Court," and a great variety of other performances.

Buckley's Varieties.

The revival of the sensational play of "Woman's Trials; or, Virtue Triumphant," and reappearance of Ned Buckley, have the effect of crowding this house nightly. A very full and varied entertainment is given, as may be seen by referring to our first page.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

Besides the thousand and one standard attractions and exhibition of the trained animals, the fifteen sea lions, on Saturday and Sunday, there is a grand performance including a comic pantomime and the magic feat of La Marmite du Diable.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at Trisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Very Particular.

The Republic-Courier published in New Berne, North Carolina, is a very particular paper, and sticks rixidly to its rules. We judge this from the following which we find in a recent issue:

J——W.—The poetry "We yet may meet in Heaven" is received, but we cannot depart from our rule, to exact the real name of persons sending articles for publication. Your real name will be known only to us, and your article published under whatever nom de plume you choose to name.

Now we should have thought that J——W. might have been allowed to remark in mellifluous rhyme in the columns of the Republic-Courier "We yet may meet in Heaven" without signing his full name to the assertion. Perhaps he is modest, and does not care about putting in print his idea that he is himself going to Heaven, and does not even care about letting the proprietors of the Republic-Courier know that he has such a good opinion of himself. We believe that the Republic-Courier people are possessed with an impertinent curiosity to find out who there is in New Berne, N. C., who thinks he'll be in heaven to meet any one else there. If this poetry had been sent to any San Francisco paper it would have been declined as "unsuited to our columns." FIGARO might, as the only religious paper published here, have accepted it, if the rhymes were good and the English tolerably good.

The New Drunk Bill.

Bowers, of San Diego, has introduced a bill to prevent drunkenness in public places. We approve of it as a whole, but object to it in this particular, that it still keeps up the fine at $5. This is too much. The price of liquors has come down, wages have come down, and consequently the fine for drunkenness should come down. Two dollars and a half in these times is as much as five dollars was six years ago. This is simple justice. Even inebriates have rights which should be respected. Two dollars and a half is a handsome price to pay for a night's lodging, even in the comfortable and cleanly home which Mr. Bowers suggests shall be provided for "drunks."

Own Up.

The San Francisco Chronicle is continually telling its readers of the large number of new subscribers which are daily being added to its list, but never says a word about the very large number of subscribers who are daily stopping their paper.

Complimentary.

In describing a trial in a court, a New Orleans reporter says of the defendants: "During the recital both demons occasionally smiled in a hellish, sarcastic way."

The Chronicle had an editorial yesterday on "The Jackals of Journalism." Who are the Jackals of Journalism?

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

The Moneycracy.

The elections in England prove that the laboring man in that country realizes who are his friends. He knows that the aristocracy are not his enemies, that gentlemen born and bred are always willing to give the working man his due, that they sympathize with him in his troubles and do not wish to see him oppressed. The manufacturers, those who distil the sweat of the mechanic into gold, are fiercely radical; they are willing to extend the suffrage, to give the working man free speech, the ballot, representatives in Parliament, everything but fair wages. The working man of England looks to the aristocracy—the conservatives—to do this. He is right. The man who inherits land inherits with it its responsibilities, and does his best to make his tenantry happy. The manufacturer, the railroad king, has no sympathy with his employees, he simply uses them as a means to enrich himself. He will wear out the lives of thousands of men, women and children and care nothing about it; their places are easily supplied. The moneycracy of any country is the vilest despotism ever inflicted on any human beings. The suddenly-grown rich are hard, cruel masters. The men who have grabbed all the land in California care little about making happy homes for their fellow creatures. All they want is more money. They own the land, and they are going to get their price for it. The gentleman who has been accustomed all his life to live in ease has none of this accursed greed of gain. He is willing, nay, anxious, that all around him should in a measure share the good things which he enjoys. He feels that to make others happy makes him richer. The working men of England are right in entrusting their interests to the care of the gentlemen instead of the manufacturers.

The Old Bull Dog Growls.

The Bulletin has become very sleepy and stupid of late, but we always knew there was plenty of life in the old bull dog. It has now awakened, and is growling fiercely at the blackmailing press. The Post, which had an opportunity, has neglected to improve it. It has taken the unpopular side, and is now classed with the Chronicle and the Sun. We are sorry for this. The Post was edited with ability, and was cutting into the circulation of the Bulletin considerably. Now it will probably lose all the ground it has gained. It pays to be respectable. We wish all the newspaper proprietors would understand this.

Printer's Ink and Pictures.

An Eastern paper says: Frank Mayo is a firm believer in the printer's ink. He has no less than seventeen different cuts as posters, a large lithograph of himself and a similar one of Miss Rosa Rand, two or three small lithographs, several colored prints, besides the mammoth varnished picture of Davy Crockett, and the elegant imperial photographs by Watkins of San Francisco. Mr. Mayo has printing in Chicago now a print covering six three-sheet posters, which for elegance of execution and design is said to be unsurpassed.

The Art of Murder.

Speaking of law as at present violated, Rev. T. K. Beecher says: "It is extremely difficult to commit the crime of murder in such an accurate and honest way that it shall satisfy the specifications of the statute. Unless the would-be-murderer take legal counsel beforehand and follow instructions minutely, he will fail nine times in ten, however sincerely he may try. Anybody can kill a man, but he cannot do it in the first degree murder style without counsel and care."

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Rothschild at a Discount.

Here is an incident said to have occured at a small faro bank kept by a colored gentleman in St. Louis at the beginning of the war. The proprietor, a haughty old house servant from Virginia, who had somehow got his freedom and strayed westward, although his capital was small and his banking house an humble shanty in the suburbs, inspired immense awe in the crowd of blacks who came to woo chance under his roof by wearing a terrible frown, a suit of seedy black, a vast shirt collar, and a ruffled shirt, to which last garment the boldest African mind surrendered at discretion. The stakes, as may be imagined, were exceedingly small, being nicely proportioned to the meagre capital of the bank, and ranging from half dimes to quarter dollars, the last being the highest single bet that was permitted. The son of the proprietor acted as dealer, while his dignified sire paced the room during the evening sessions and kept a general oversight of the gamesters. One evening a couple of army officers induced their black servant, by the present of a small fee, to smuggle them into this temple of luck where whites were not commonly tolerated, and providing that facile menial with ten silver dollars, instructed him to put them on the ace. The proprietor, who was absorbed in spelling out the news from the evening paper, had not observed the entrance of the strangers nor the queer turn the game had taken. Presently, however, he lifted his eyes and espied the fabulous pile of specie glittering over the painted cards. For a moment he was struck dumb, but recovering his voice, he cried out in a voice of thunder: "who put dat money on dat ace?" There was a dead silence. The trembling darkies were all afraid to answer, "who put dat money on dat ace?" repeated the outraged son of Guinea. There was still no answer, and he went on. "Whoever put dat money on dat ace had better take dat money off dat ace, and be dam quick about it too. You niggahs mus' think thah's some of dese here Roffschiles roun' dis bank."

A Child's Belief.

The Nashua Telegraph says the familiar sentence, "one touch of nature," was beautifully illustrated by three little girls, who not long since lost their mother by death. Hearing that a lady friend of the family was dying, these three little children went to their grandmother, called her aside, and whispered in her ear, "Mrs.——is dying, and we want to give our best love to our mother."

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

Opera House.

The charming comedy of "The Old Story," is very popular at this house. Miss Jennie Lee as Madgerone widow, Mrs. Minerva Deadset, is particularly clever, and John Howson and J. P. Burnett play their respective parts with much spirit. Professor O'Reardon's performance on the Tumbleronicon draws much applause, and the operetta of "Chouffleuri" is performed in excellent style by Miss Susan Galton, Alfred Kelleher, John Howson, Mrs. Julia Melville, W. Burk, H. D Thompson, and D. J. Sherwood. This bill will be presented to-night.

California Theatre.

"Mimi," which presents a vivid picture of Bohemian life in Paris, was performed again last night, and Miss Katharine Rogers as the heroine won every heart in the audience. She is ably supported by Miss Maggie Moore, Lewis Morrison, Miss Ellie Wilton, J. C. Williamson, Henry Edwards, W. A. Mestayer and others. "Mimi" will be played again this evening and at the matinee on Saturday for the last times. As Miss Rogers engagement cannot be extended beyond twele nights. No play will be retained on the boards longer than three nights. "Leah" is announced for Friday and Saturday evenings. "Pygmalion and Galatea" will be produced on Monday.

Alhambra Theatre.

The highly successful engagement of the wonderful Girards, at this house, is fast drawing to a close, and those who wish to catch another glimpse of "Leg-Mania" should not neglect paying a visit to this popular theatre. J. G. Russell, who will take his benefit to-morrow night, sings in the first part; Geo. S. Knight appears in Dutch songs and sketches, the Siegrists appear in gymnastic feats and introduce their trained dogs, and altogether a great performance is given.

New Opera Season.

A new season of Italian opera will be commenced at the California Theatre on Sunday next. Chas. Shultz, the business manager, who so successfully engineered the last season, informs us that he has obtained a larger subscription list for the coming season than was ever obtained in this city. Six operas will be performed, the theatre having been secured for six Sundays. The first opera will be "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Madame Inez Fabbri as Lucia, Pietro Bacci as Edgar, Signor Orlandini as Henry Ashton, and a generally strong cast. After this, "La Fille du Regiment," "Il Trovatore," "Der Freischutz," "William Tell," and "La Dame Blanche" will be produced in succession. Professor Maider-Fabbri will conduct the season.

Bella Union.

Johnny Tuers appears nightly in amusing acts, the new stars—Ed. Murray and Miss Alice Rose—perform the musical sketch of "Barney's Courtship," Charles Harcourt sings comic songs, Miss Jennie Johnson and J. W. Summers appear in the local play of "The Police Court," and others in various specialties enumerated on our first page.

Buckley's Varieties.

"The Two Tragedians," by George Foster and Harry Devoy, sketches by Mortimore, comic songs and sentimental ballads by Miss Lizzie Harmon, and a great variety of other entertainments will be given at this house to-night.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

Besides the thousand and one standard attractions and exhibition of the trained animals, the fifteen sea lions, on Saturday and Sunday, there is a grand performance including a comic pantomime and the magic feat of La Marmite du Diable.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of sparkling waters, made a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners,"
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.
Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

The Art of Dancing and Deportment.

Those who appreciate culture will be glad to learn that Professor O. H. Lester has opened an Academy for the purpose of teaching, not only dancing, but those graces of deportment without which no one can shine in society. Prof. Lester is a thorough master of his art, one of the best on this side of the Rocky Mountains. Classes are held at Grand Central Hall on the corner of Sixth and Market streets on Mondays and Thursdays.

THE MIDNIGHT CRY.

"Merciful God, Make Room for a Little Fellow."

O God, most merciful, make room for me,
So weak and small, so weighted with earth's care,
Thou surely hast a little room to spare,
A corner in Thy heaven, where thankfully
A little boy may come
And take the rest that is on earth denied,
And share the peace that broodeth like a dove
In that bright place. O, let Thy voice of love
Call through the dark, and safely to Thy side,
O Father, take me home!

Because I am so young, too young for toil—
My childish eyes have scarce looked out on life—
I am not fitted for this awful strife;
From all the fever of the world' turmoil
I struggle to be free.
O, take me where my music, sacred art,
Thy gift divine, lives ever; let me stand
Amid the psean-singing angel band,
To sing Thy praise. O, let me have a part
In Heaven! Make room for me!

Soft, through the dark, the answer swiftly came;
"Come, dear, unhappy child; here's room for thee;
Here with the seraphs, round the crystal sea,
Tune thy sweet harp anew, and hark! thy name
Is whispered 'mid the throng.
'Tis I, Thy Saviour, calls. My Father's house
Has many mansions; thine is waiting now,
A crown is ready for thy fair young brow,
And I will lead thee home. Dear soul, arouse
And join the angels' song."

The child obeyed; there was no place on earth
For this young life; the panting, childish soul
Was stifled with the load it could not roll
Away. O, Ye who gave this wonder birth,
To whom this soul was given
To bless the world, could Ye not guard from care
This fresh young life? Alas! for human love,
The fight for daily bread too strong doth prove
There is no room, but God doth answer prayer,
And there is room in Heaven!

—Violet Fuller.

A Warning.

Max Adeler says: An Alabama editor offers to name his baby after the patron who will pay his subscription the longest in advance. He runs a great risk. When we were on the daily Bugle with Colonel Jones, the colonel made the same offer, and bound himself by the most solemn obligations to stick to it. The man who won the prize was named Abednego Smoot. The colonel refused to give his child such a poetical and musical title as that, whereupon Smoot sued the colonel for damages, and had him sent to jail; and after his release Abednego Smoot not only thrashed the colonel, but started another paper, the Morning Fog Horn, which ran the Bugle into the ground and made the Colonel so poor he had to seek refuge in the almshouse. An infuriated Smoot is something terrible to encounter. Let the Alabama editor beware lest he stirs one up.

The Jealousy of Actors.

The London correspondent of the Boston Courier, speaking of the jealousy which exists among members of the dramatic profession, says: An amusing instance occurred at a theatre in the Strand last week, when a gentleman not very prominent in the company had a hearty round of applause for his delivery of a couple of lines, while the leading man, who was also the stage manager, was "on." The next night he was told the lines were cut out, nevertheless Sock and Buskin spoke them with even greater success. The result was, that immediately he left the stage he was informed that he was fined a night's salary—high words ensued. Words led to blows, in which both parties received considerable injury, and it required all the tact and persuasion of the lessee to prevent the entire quarrel being fought over again at Bow-street Police Court.

The Hungry Pious.

A lady in Boston, who was about to give a party to the members of the Protestant Episcopal Convention, sent for a caterer to assist in the preparations. He asked if she intended to give a dancing party. She replied that it was to be composed mainly of clergymen. "In that case, Madame," replied he, "I would advise you to provide bountifully. These pious people do eat dreadful."

The Will.

Theodore Parker says:—Men often speak of breaking the will of a child, but it seems to me they had better break the neck. The will needs regulation, not destroying. I should as soon think of breaking the legs of a horse in training him, as a child's will. I would discipline and develop it into harmonious proportions. I never yet heard of a will in itself too strong, more than of an arm too mighty, or a mind too comprehensive in its grasp, too powerful in its hold. The instruction of children should be such as to animate, inspire, train, but not to hew, cut and carve; for I would always treat a child as a live tree, which was to be helped to grow; never as dry, dead timber, to be carved into this or that shape, and to have certain moldings grooved upon it. A live tree, and not dead timber, is every little child.

A Popular Man.

They are queer people up in Virginia City, Nevada. One of the papers there casually observes:

The lightning Chronicle carrier has not been shot at lately—something wrong.

This refers to the carrier of the San Francisco Chronicle, at whom the miners are in the habit of discharging their revolvers every now and then.

Pardonable Pride.

The Portland Oregonian says:

A late Eastern pictorial contains a sketch showing the horrible child murder which was enacted by Mrs. Farley, about five weeks ago, in this city.

This sort of thing is an advertisement for Portland. Won't some one else enact a child murder for the Eastern paper to make a picture of?

Afraid.

The Post of yesterday contained the following paragraph, which was, we suppose, inserted as an explanation of its course with regard to the Chronicle:

Never kick a man when he's down unless you are sure he can't get up.

Very Untimid.

The Virginia City Footlights says: The San Francisco Call has a very poor opinion of Miss Fannie Marston's singing: She probably owes the Call a bill like the balance of the printing offices where she has been.

One of a Numerous Class.

A correspondent tells of a lazy genius, who, being asked, as he lay sunning himself on the grass, what was the height of his ambition, replied: "To marry a rich widow that's got a cough."

Talk.

The Virginia Chronicle marvels at the ingenuity of Prof. Faber's talking machine, but sees no utility in it—"As there is more talk than pure cider in the market already."

Go Where the "Woodbine" Twineth

Hair Goods.

The cheapest place in the city to buy Human and Imitation hair goods, Toys, Dolls, Ribbons etc., is the New York store 110 Second street. Agency for hair silk goods, made of pure silk No branch stores. Goods sent, C. O. D. The New York store has been established for years, and is the leading one in the city.

The Idiotic Drama.

E. A. Sothern when interviewed by The Spirit of the Times reporter, was asked, "What do you think of the idiotic drama?" He replied: "There is no such thing, unless you call all the fools in Shakespeare, and the works of our best dramatists, a part and parcel of the "idiotic drama." Unsuccessful people, envious people, and jealous people, especially actors who write their own criticisms, very often apply terms which, while they are not at all characteristic of the thing to which they are applied, are thoroughly indicative of the author's feelings. If those who characterized the "American Cousin," and my performance of Lord Dundreary, as examples of the "idiotic" drama had properly considered the popularity they have enjoyed for so many years, and the manner in which they have been received by the most refined and cultivated audiences of America, France, and England, they would not have applied to them so inappropriate an epithet; or if they had, they should also have characterized the entire public as idiotic who found their enjoyment in such representations. If the person who catered to and was the source of that enjoyment represented the idiotic drama, it has been the public who has endorsed the representation."

Chaucer's Wife.

We are informed by an English paper which is very exultant over the fact, that "an antiquary, after a long and painful examination of old documents, has discovered that the name of Chaucer's mother was Agnes." It is probable that no tongue will ever be able to tell what a load this has taken off our mind. For years we have been haunted by a dark and dismal dread that it should turn out that Chaucer's mother's name was Mary Jane. It brooded over us like a nightmare; it haunted us like a goblin. We would wake up at night and feel the cold chills run down our back as we meditated upon the unutterable horror which attended the possibility of the discovery that that woman's name was Mary Jane. We felt that if it should be found that she had that name, all the happiness would be blotted from our life, existence would become a burden, annihilation would be bliss, and groceries and marketing useless. But her name was Agnes, and things are serene again. That is, they are partially serene, we can not be entirely happy until some other antiquary ascertains if Chaucer's maiden aunt had a wart on her nose. Clear this up, and the world will no longer be a gloomy prison for us.

An Omission.

We miss, in looking over the Chronicle now-a-days, the familiar heading: "What our exchanges say of us." The Alta and Call, however, are attending to that department and publish "Opinions of the Press" concerning the Chronicle. They are very pleasant reading.

No Taste for Poetry.

A lady who offers to furnish "some stories" to a Michigan paper, says in a postscript: "N B I can send you sum pomes to sum real pretty verses if you desire the i writ myself for I can write pomes as well as storys." The editor is mean enough to decline on the ground of poverty superinduced by the panic.

The Young Man from the East.

"I'm a stranger in this city,
I'm lately from the East,
And mighty fond of oysters;
Where can I get a feast?
I've been to all the restaurants,
But nowhere could I find,
A plate of Eastern oysters,
Of the old-fashioned kind."

"Well, I can tell you," said his friend,
"Exactly where to go,
And where to get your oysters,
Direct from where they grow.
Just take a stroll down PINE STREET,
At 410, below the Market,
You'll see a sign, 'THE SADDLE ROCK,'
You can't fail to remark it.

"Emerson Corville keeps the place,
The best saloon in town,
There you can get your oysters raw,
Or fried so crisp and brown.
He's the largest oyster dealer
On the Pacific Coast,
And that he keeps the freshest
Has ever been his boast.

"He's got nice little private rooms,
Where you can sit at ease,
And eat your California stew,
Or Eastern if you please.
All the young men of fashion go
Right to the SADDLE ROCK,
To eat their EASTERN OYSTERS
And drink their Rhenish hock."

Hamlet and the Play.

E. J. Furnivl writes to the Academy: Professor Seely asked me to-day whether any critic had ever identified the "dozen or sixteen lines" which Hamlet asked the Player, if he could study, and insert in his play. The Professor said that he had identified them, and that they went far to explain Hamlet's character. No doubt some of the thousand and one critics of Shakespeare have identified the lines; for, the point once raised, mistake in the lines is impossible. But as neither Coleridge; Hazlitt, Schlegel, Gervinus (though he quotes the lines as applying to Hamlet), Dyce, or the Cambridge editors, have a note on the point, it is worth a few words now.

Hamlet say to the Player, whom he asks, "Can you play the murther of Gonzago?"

You could or a need study a speech of some dozen or sixteene lines, which I would set downe, and insert in't? Could ye not? Play.—I (—ave), my Lord,

Then, having "set downe" this speech, and declaimed or "pronounced" it to this Player, Hamlet afterwards says to "two or three of the Players," evidently speaking mainly to the one who is to speak the inserted speech

Speake the Speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the Tongue ....Be no to tame neyther: but let your owne Discretion be your Tutor, and so forth.

Then comes the play, and in it the more than a "dozen or sixteene lines," "the Speech" "set downe" by Hamlet for the Player who plays the King, and thus pictures Hamlet himself:

But what we do determine, oft we breake:
Purpose is but the slave to Memorie,
Of violent Birth, but poore validitie:
Which now, like Fruits unripe, sticks on the Tree,
But fall unshaken, when they mellow bee.
Most necessary 'tis, that we forget
To pay our selves, what to our selves is debt:
What to ourselves in passion we propose,
The passion ending, doth the purpose lose.

* * * * * *

But orderly to end, where I begun.
Our Willes and Fates do so contrary run,
That our devicesstill are overthrowne;
Our thoughts areours, their ends none of our owns,

This is surely Hamlet's inserted speech, the moral of The Tragedie of Hamlet, written by Shakespeare himself. Weak Will, strong Fate, are at war throughout the play, till the end comes, and the Will, in a way "none of its own," carries out Fate's decree.

Cynical Old Cuss

Peter Van Dyke, an old chap, who died in New Hampshire the other day, worth $140,000 in cash, requested in his will that no one "should snuffle and shed crocodile tears at his funeral, but cover him over and then hurry home to fight over his money."

War Declared.

Some people talk of Cuba,
And speak of war with Spain,
Hoping our soldiers will go forth
And take the Spanish main,
But wiser men prefer to go
And get an oyster stew
At the Hookaway House on Market street
So elegant and new.
Here men can talk their business
While heaped is a pile
Oysters and different kind of fish
Are cooked in every style,
A private door on Eddy street,
Admits the ladies fair
While the saloon for elegance
Makes everybody stare.
For business men, and other folks
It never can be beat,
The food is good, the prices low

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

To-night Miss Katherine Rogers will appear in her great character of "Leah," in the play of that name, in which she will have a much better opportunity to display her well-known dramatic powers than in the play in which she made her debut. The performance will conclude with the rollicking farce of "Jones' Baby." The public have not yet seen Miss Rogers in her strongest parts. Only "Mimi" matinee to-morrow.

Alhambra Theatre.

Mr. J. G. Russell, the popular baritone of this theatre, will be the recipient of a benefit to-night. The programme is an excellent one and comprises acts by Manning, Swanham and Murphy, the Niagara Leap by Master Thomas Siegrist, the really "wonderful Girards" in their eccentric act, a quintette from "Ernani" by Messrs. Russell, Baker, Murphy, Montague and Loomis, and other extra acts by the Alhambra company. Murphy and Mack, amateurs, volunteer the "O'Shaughnessy Guards," and the performance will conclude with the biggest troupe and dogs. The usual matinee to-morrow.

Opera House.
